TUCKER APPEALS AGAIN TO PUBLIC TO HELP SETTLE TRUCKER STRIKE

'Only Force Left' Stronger Than Disputants — Says Books Can Be Examined If Needed.

(Text of Mayor Tucker's Statement on Page 4A.)

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker today awaited reaction by the Teamsters Union to his second public appeal that striking construction material truck drivers submit to arbitration the unsolved issues in their stubborn dispute with 35 building material firms.

Referring to his proposal last Friday that a public arbitration board be named to hear the facts and settle the dispute, the Mayor said he was again calling on public opinion "as the only force left that is stronger than either of the parties in this needless strike."

The union, through Harold J. Gibbons, trustee of the Teamsters Joint Council, has termed the Mayor's arbitration proposal "vague and unrealistic."

Contractors Accept.

The Ready-Mix Concrete Dealers' Association, representing employers, accepted the Mayor's arbitration proposal. Members of Teamsters Local 682 rejected arbitration at a meeting Friday night.

Gibbons explained that the union is demanding assurance that employers' books be available to an accountant as a "proper safeguard" for a fair and impartial hearing.

Gibbons declared: "It is not good business to leave it to an arbitration board to determine wages, the terms of the contract and other matters vital to the union membership."

"Members of Local 682 have voted down arbitration on three occasions," Gibbons recalled. "We insist that, since the employers have described our demands as exorbitant, it is necessary that their books be available to an auditor."

Some Work Resumed.

The tieup of the $75,000,000 St. Louis construction program, due to the strike, was eased slightly today with the return to work of Teamsters members employed by the Home Builders' Association. Settlement of the dispute with the Home Builders, and previously with three other employers' groups, permits resumption of some work.

Major building cannot be resumed, however, until the 500 drivers employed by material firms end their walkout, now rounding out its ninth week. The Home Builders' drivers received a wage increase of 15 cents an hour now and 5 cents additional in the second year of a two-year agreement.

"My proposed procedure for arbitration provides that the arbitrators have full power to determine the facts," Mayor Tucker said in his latest City Hall statement. "In other words, both parties are to agree that the arbitrators can look at books and records if they deem that necessary to arrive at a fair decision.

"The proposal does not say the arbitrators must look at the firms' books or, for that matter, at the union's books. It does say that they may look at the books, company or union, and neither side can object if the arbitrators so decide.

Up to Arbitrators.

"The Teamsters object that this does not give them adequate safeguards. As one of the parties to the arbitration, they would have me dictate in advance of arbitration exactly what evi-

CONSTRUCTION FINISHED ON HUNGRY HORSE DAM; COST UNDER ESTIMATES

HUNGRY HORSE, Mont., July 20 (AP).

THE nation's fourth highest, fourth largest concrete dam is 99 per cent complete—below cost estimates and ahead of schedule.

Bureau of Reclamation officials said the cost of constructing Hungry Horse Dam was $102,000,000, below the scheduled cost of $108,800,000 when the project started in 1948.

Water storage in the reservoir now totals 1,700,000 acre-feet and stretches back for more than 31 miles. Capacity is 3,250,000 acre-feet. The dam is 564 feet high, 2115 feet long.

General-She-Morrison, prime contractor for construction of the dam, wound up its work this weekend, ahead of the Nov. 27 deadline. The $48,000,000 contract was awarded April 21, 1948.

SMOKE BLANKETS DOWNTOWN AREA, CUTS VISIBILITY

Smoke apparently carried from the East Side by a southeast wind blanketed the St. Louis downtown area early today. Persons who went to work early found the odor and fumes annoying. Last previous "moderate smoke" here was Sept. 12.

Visibility was reduced to one and one-half miles at 7 a.m. and 8 a.m., the Weather Bureau said. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said smoke probably kept temperatures up in the downtown area.

This morning's minimum temperature was 77 degrees at 6 a.m., whereas the lowest recorded at the weather station at Lambert-St. Louis Field was 73.

$71,450 IN JEWELRY HIDDEN IN RADIO LOST BY ACTRESS

WEST LOS ANGELES, July 20 (AP)—Actress Andrea Leeds and her wealthy husband asked police for help today in finding $71,450 in jewelry which they said disappeared from its hiding place in a portable radio.

The couple said they took the jewels from the safe at the Bel Air Hotel so Miss Leeds could wear them to a party Thursday night. Later her husband, automobile heir Bob Howard, hid them in the back of a portable radio.

Twice he took the radio to the hotel pool. When he looked in the radio again the jewelry was missing, Howard said.

The police report lists the fortune as "lost," and said that among the missing items are a $60,000 platinum and diamond engagement ring, a $3500 diamond pin, a $2000 pearl necklace and two pairs of diamond and pearl earrings valued at $5800.

SENATOR BRIDGES STRUCK BY AUTO, IS ONLY BRUISED

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) — Senator H. Styles Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, was struck by an automobile today at a busy midtown intersection. Doctors said he suffered only bruises.

The mishap occurred just after Bridges, the Senate's temporary president and chairman of its appropriations committee, had left the White House where he and other Republican congressional leaders had conferred with President Eisenhower.

An assistant to Bridges said the Senator's chauffeur pulled up to a curb and that Bridges stepped into the sidwalk but then walked around behind the car and appeared "much absorbed in thought."

He was hit by a passing automobile and knocked down. An X-ray examination disclosed no broken bones.

SAYS WALTER BEDELL SMITH MAY SOON REPLACE DULLES

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —Representative Clarence Brown (Rep.), Ohio, said today he had heard "a faint whisper" that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles soon may be succeeded by Walter Bedell Smith.

Brown made the statement to his constituents in his weekly news letter, "With a Buckeye in Congress."

Smith, now Under Secretary, previously headed the Central Intelligence Agency. Before that he was Ambassador to Russia. He is a lieutenant general in the Army.

DONNELLY SAYS 'LAWLESSNESS' IN COUNTY MUST BE STAMPED OUT

Governor Reports Progress in Investigation — Is Well Satisfied With Way It Is Going.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, reporting progress in the state's investigation of an apparent breakdown in law enforcement in St. Louis county, declared today "lawlessness must be stamped out there or anywhere else it occurs in Missouri."

Speaking at a press conference in Jefferson City, Gov. Donnelly said he was well satisfied with the way the inquiry was going under direction of Attorney General John M. Dalton.

"Every agency and authority of state government is working and will continue to work in close harmony and co-operation with the Attorney General and his staff of assistants," he said.

Investigations Ordered.

Shortly after Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley's handling of the shooting of one of his deputies by another touched off a flood of complaints about lax law enforcement in the county, the Governor authorized agents of the Liquor Control and Revenue departments and the Highway Patrol to make investigations. The shooting was June 26.

Attorney General Dalton reported his staff was making "definite progress" in collecting evidence in support of charges that some elected officials in St. Louis county have been guilty of non-enforcement of laws and oppression in office.

The county offices most frequently complained of, he said, were those of Sheriff Mosley and Prosecuting Attorney Stanley Wallach, who are accused by complainants of failure to properly enforce laws against illegal operation of taverns, gambling, prostitution and other violations.

Other officials are involved, he said, leading to the belief that the entire situation can be traced to operation of a "courthouse ring." He said another office under investigation is the County Highway Department.

Precautionary measures were being taken to keep movements of the investigators secret, Dalton said, because of efforts of some persons associated with the county "courthouse ring" to learn what direction the inquiry is taking.

Dalton previously said telephone lines used by his staff at its Hotel Chase headquarters apparently had been tapped, that someone was keeping a close watch on who appeared before the staff there, and that investigators were being shadowed.

Most of Force in Field.

Most of the investigative force is in the field now working on leads, he said, and will report progress direct to Jefferson City. Hugh P. Williamson, assistant Attorney General in charge of the investigation here, will remain at the Chase to correlate work and conduct interviews.

"We have received a great number of letters containing potent information," he said, "and are taking steps to insure that the identity of the writers does not become known. For general use, copies omitting the names of the writers are being prepared."

More than 60 persons have been interviewed at the Hotel Chase headquarters and more were scheduled to be heard today. Dalton, who was in St. Louis this morning conferring with assistants, planned to be back at the state capital this afternoon.

Deputies for Merit System.

Several deputy sheriffs on Mosley's staff expressed opinions to a Post-Dispatch reporter that failure to organize the staff on police department lines is partly responsible for the enforcement breakdown. They said they would welcome a metropolitan county department, supported by a merit system, a proposal now being considered by the county council.

They said little actual police

EAST GERMANS DEFY THREATS OF REDS, CROSS LINE FOR FREE FOOD

Communists Warn That Those Accepting Aid Will Be Considered U.S. Spies, Liable to Prison Terms.

BERLIN, July 20 (UP)—Hungry East Germans today openly defied Communist threats to jail them as "American spies" and swarmed across the Iron Curtain to West Berlin to get free food.

They came to accept coupons good for five West German marks ($1.20) worth of food even though the Red German government said they would be considered spies and agents of the "imperialtistic Americans" and become liable to harsh prison sentences.

Distribution of the food coupons began in the American sector border borough of Kreuzberg. More than 1000 East Germans were lined up outside the borough hall before it opened and many more arrived as the coupons were handed out.

Mayor Organizes Relief.

Willie Kressmann, Socialist mayor of Kreuzberg, organized the local relief action after becoming impatient with American and West German officials who, he said, "talk too much." Kressmann set up special food markets for East Germans last week and sold them fruits, potatoes and milk at bargain prices.

American and German officials have still not come to any decision on how to distribute the $15,000,000 worth of food promised East Germany by President Eisenhower. The offer was rejected by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and the German puppet government. Both denied that any food shortages existed.

Despite the rejection, the first shipment of American food already was en route to Germany by ship from New York.

U.S. Promise Renewed.

(In Washington Eisenhower renewed the promise of food supplies. He told West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer the food will be placed "at your disposal for use in relieving the suffering of the people of East Germany in the best available manner."

("At the same time," Eisenhower's message said, "we shall continue to make clear to the Soviet government that the offer made July 10 was motivated solely by humanitarian impulses and that the fodd is available if that government wishes to permit its entrance into the Soviet zone of occupation."

(Eisenhower's newest promise was in response to a second plea from Adenauer, who pledged his government would do everything possible to make the food available to the Eastern zone Germans.

'New Hope and Courage.'

(Adenauer said the American offer has caused "great joy in all of Germany and especially given new hope and new courage to the people in the Soviet-occupied zone.")

With the coupons distributed today, East Germans will be able to buy sorely needed flour, butter, margarine, meat, fruits, vegetables, milk or other foods in any of Kreuzberg's shops.

Kressmann estimated some 12,000 East Germans who live on 38 East Berlin streets adjoining his borough are eligible for the coupons. He was certain that most of them will defy the Reds and cross into Kreuzberg to get them.

By the Associated Press.

Sixteen workers were sentenced to prison by a Communist court in Dresden today in the largest show trial yet held of East German rebels.

Photographer Gets Life.

A free-lance photographer received the stiffest sentence—life imprisonment—for leading an uprising on June 17 in the little Polish-German border town of Niesky, where secret police headquarters was burned and Red officials beaten. Fifteen alleged accomplices were given terms ranging from 13 years to six months.

It was the first disclosure that the June 17 rioting had erupted also in Niesky. The town is near Goerlitz on the Niesse river where striking workers were saluted by Polish tank troops on the same day.

The Soviet zone news agency A.D.N. issued a special report of more than 1000 words on the

CHINESE ENGULF VITAL OUTPOSTS; SURVIVORS TELL OF FIERCE FIGHT

14 Americans Stagger Back to Allied Lines, Say Others May Be Alive—Area Heavily Bombarded.

SEOUL, July 20 (AP)—Recklessly-attacking Chinese engulfed two vital western front outposts defended by United States Marines last night and the first Leatherneck survivors staggered back to Allied lines today.

In their last act before their radio went dead, the trapped Marines—back in the battlelines only three weeks — called in their own artillery on top of them in a desperate effort to halt the violent onslaught.

Fourteen men of the First Marine Division, back in the lines since July 8 after being in reserve, were the first known survivors of the bloody battles for Outposts East Berlin and Berlin, part of a key hill area on the western front.

How they got out was not learned immediately. It was assumed they worked their way down the slopes after the Reds left the hill during daylight.

More May Be Alive.

They said more Marines may still be alive in the battered bunkers and shell-ripped trenches on the outposts.

The survivors described the hills as a battle-torn no man's land. They said no Chinese were left atop the outposts, which were plastered by Red and Allied artillery fire during the 1500-man Red assault.

Allied fighter-bombers and Marine guns pounded the hills relentlessly, but there was no immediate move to retake them.

The Fifth Air Force said its planes slammed 500,000 pounds of bombs at Communist frontlines from the Berlin outposts to the Kumsong front in the east.

Sabre jets in their dual role as fighter-bombers, Australian Meteor jets, and Marine planes hit other Red targets deep in North Korea.

Meanwhile, the Eighth Army said the Communists lost 6290 killed and 1260 wounded across the front Sunday, mostly on the turbulent east-central front where the Reds last week hurled their biggest offensive in two years. Thie figure may have included some delayed reports.

(Peiping radio last night claimed Communist troops killed, wounded or captured 26,089 Allied troops in the Kumsong bulge area in the week ended Saturday. The broadcast, heard in Tokyo by Radio Press Agency, also claimed the Reds extended their front six miles and expanded their hold on ground by about 65 square miles.

(The United States Eighth Army has not disclosed Allied losses during the Red offensive but front dispatches indicated casualties were heavy on both sides.)

Barrage Signals Assault.

A thunderous artillery barrage heralded the Reds' assault on East Berlin and Berlin even as Communist and Allied truce teams met at Panmunjom to the southwest.

Two reinforced Chinese battalions—about 750 men each—stormed the slopes of the twin hills at 10:30 p.m. Sunday. About two hours later, a burst of machine-gun fire signaled the end of the Marine resistance as the Chinese overran the outposts.

The Red victory gave the Communists full control of a vital hill area made up of outposts Reno, Carson and Vegas, East Berlin and Berlin.

Allied observers speculated the Reds grabbed the Berlin outposts in the belief no effort would be made to retake them with an armistice apparently imminent.

The fighting on the western sector hills was the most violent along the 150-mile front, although smaller scale but fierce action flared along the tense Kumsong sector in east-central Korea.

There, South Koreans troops attempting to regain ground lost in last week's massive Red assault were pushed back slightly.

A Chinese battalion hit the ROKs as they advanced cautiously near the junction of the Kumsong and Pukhan rivers, just south of Lookout mountain.

It was the farthest northward penetration of the South Kore-

ST. JOSEPH MAN NEW CIVIL DEFENSE EDUCATION HEAD

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 20 (AP)—Clem M. White of St. Joseph has been appointed director of civil defense educational services throughout the United States. The position pays $14,800 a year.

Congressman William C. Cole was notified today in Washington of the appointment of White, who will serve as one of the three directors directly under Civil Defense Administrator Val Petersen.

White is a former Missouri department commander of the American Legion and a past grand chef de gare of the 40 and 8 of the state. He is a Republica n.

He served in both world wars and attained the rank of colonel while serving abroad in the last one. He is a lawyer and also heads an insurance business here.

SUBPENA SERVED ON TRUMAN TO EXPLAIN KOREA QUASHED

KANSAS CITY, July 20 (AP) —A subpena served on former President Harry S. Truman to explain why the United States entered the Korean conflict was quashed today in United States District court.

The subpena, served by Fyke Farmer, Nashville (Tenn.), Attorney, and leader in a world peace movement, had directed him to produce certain records. Judge Albert A. Ridge held that Truman had submitted an affidavit to the court saying he was not now in possession of these documents and they are in control of the Government.

The judge stayed the taking of a deposition from Truman until a federal court in Nashville rules on a motion to dismiss a damage suit brought by Farmer against the Government. Farmer contends the Government cannot collect income taxes from him for war purposes.

Truman was not personally in court.

TAFT WOULD ENTER CLOSE PARTY VOTES THIS SESSION

NEW YORK, July 20 (UP)—Senate Majority Leader Robert A. Taft "hopes to vote on any close party votes" in the rest of the present session of Congress, it was announced today at New York Hospital.

The hospital's bulletin today said:

"Senator Taft's progress continues to be good. He will be able to leave the hospital within another 10 days. Though Senator Taft will not return to his duties at this session of Congress, he hopes to vote on any close party votes before adjournment. Senator Taft will resume his duties in Washington after three or four months rest.

The only way Taft could "vote" without being on the Senate floor would be through a "pair" arranged with another Senator who planned to vote opposite to Taft.

G.O.P. CONGRESS CHIEFS OFFER TO EXTEND SESSION

They List Appropriations, Reciprocal Trade, Other Bills as 'Must' Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP) —Republican congressional leaders said at the White House today they are still aiming for a July 31 adjournment but told President Eisenhower they will extend the session if necessary to complete his "must" program.

They listed these things which "must be done before we get out":

Pending appropriations bills, Reciprocal Trade Act extension, oil rights in the outer continental shelf, emergency refugee legislation, higher postal rates, farm credit extension, military public works authorizations, a small business loan agency, Senate ratification of five treaties on commerce and navigation, and an agriculture surplus disposal measure.

Acting Senate Republican Leader Knowland said those are "priority" bills but others may also be run through "if we have time." He said the others conceivably could include Hawaiian statehood and legislation on disposal of Government-owned synthetic rubber plants.

A conspicuous addition to the "must" list was the bill for a $240,000,000 annual increase in postal rates.

Knowland said this is one of the measures for which Congress will be held overtime if necessary.

Reminded that last week he said he did not believe that bill would pass this year, he commented he was thinking then of the "practical" situation in terms of a July 31 adjournment. He said the more "flexible" schedule resulting from today's conference caused inclusion of the postal bill on the "must" list.

Both Knowland and House Speaker Martin said Congress can meet the July 31 deadline—if it wants to.

Martin and Knowland have no secondary target date for adjournment because they think the July 31 goal can be met, but they said they are prepared to hold Congress until all "must" bills are cleared—no matter how long it takes.

Knowland said if need be he will call Senate sessions to start as early as 9 or 10 a.m. and continue until midnight for the next two weeks.

Knowland said the refugee quota bill, as approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee "would be acceptable" to the Administration. The committee cut the original requested figure from 240,000 over a two-year span to 220,000 over a three-year period.

MEN WHO WOULD HAVE CHARGE OF CEASE-FIRE TAKE PART FIRST TIME

(Text of Communist Statement on Page 8A.)

PANMUNJOM, July 20 (AP)—Three teams of Allied and Communist officers—including for the first time the men who would oversee a cease-fire—worked today on final details of a Korean truce which seemed almost at hand after the Reds issued a go-ahead Sunday.

There was no official indication when the armistice would be signed to end the three years of fighting. Some observers said it could be within a week. Fighting would end 12 hours after the signing.

*Gen. Mark W. Clark, United Nations Far East commander in Tokyo, hailed the Communists' announcement Sunday that they are ready to complete work on a truce as "most encouraging," and said it "should lead to an early signing." However, he said some details remained to be worked out.

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai indicated more opposition from Syngman Rhee's government might be in the wind with a statement that the Communist agreement contained "many traps."

Warning on Red Plans.

He said it showed the Reds intend to take "all South Korea by subversive activity and by liquidating the army which we have built so painstakingly and with so much expense."

An unnamed Republic of Korea spokesman said Allied assurances meant the U.N. "had lost the war."

The Reds made public Sunday a list of assurances they said the Allies gave that South Korea would obey a truce. They said the U.N. Command promised not to support any aggressive action by the ROK army in violation of a cease-fire.

Another assurance listed by the Reds was that "there is no time limit to the armistice." There have been reports that South Korea had promised to abide by the armistice for only 90 days.

It was on the basis of these assurances that the Communists said they were ready to go ahead with final preparations for signing the truce.

Three United States members of the Military Armistice Commission flew here to join an Allied-Red staff officer session. The commission, which would be composed of top officers from the opposing armies, will control the buffer zone separating the opposing forces.

They met at 2:40 p.m. (12:40 a.m. St. Louis time) and recessed an hour and 50 minutes later without setting another session.

"We discussed suggested arrangements which they (the Reds) will consider and probably come back with their proposal," said Navy Capt. B. M. Coleman, McClean, Va., one of the three.

The staff session then reconvened at 4:50 p.m. without the commission members. More staff officer sessions were set for tomorrow.

Delegates Await Call.

The main truce delegations presumably are awaiting a call from the staff officers to set a date for the signing.

Liaison officers also met as both sides quickened the pace toward a truce signing.

The Peiping radio announced that Czechoslovakian and Polish delegates who would serve on a four-nation armistice supervisory commission have arrived in the Red China capital. The Swedish and Swiss delegates already are in Tokyo.

The Reds sent 200 North Korean and Chinese troops to resume work on the "signing building" at Panmunjom. Construction had been suspended for a month since Rhee freed 27,000 anti-Red North Korean prisoners from Allied camps.

Communist correspondent Alan Winnington of the London Daily Worker said the building should be finished Thursday, but that the signing probably would not be that early.

The Peiping radio, the voice of Red China, said the Communist agreement to go ahead with truce signing preparations came after "resolute efforts by the (Red) Korean and Chinese side in the past one month."

Townsfolk Shout 'Hi, Ike' as He Returns From Mountain Lodge

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —"There goes Ike," an astonished housewife calls from her front porch, and a surprised policeman tips his hat as President Eisenhower drives by.

That's the way it goes on Sunday evenings when Eisenhower motors back to Washington after a weekend at his Camp David lodge in the Catoctin mountains near Thurmont, Md.

Last night, for example, the President and Mrs. Eisenhower left the camp about 6:30 o'clock. The folks in the little town of Thurmont know the usual departure time and small groups gather.

"Hi, Ike," they shout as the big black limousine rolls by. He smiles and frequently waves a greeting. So does Mrs. Eisenhower.

From Thurmont on, there never is anything certain about the President's route on the 60 mile trip to the White House.

Last night the President traveled the main road into historic Frederick.

A few miles south of Frederick the caravan turned off the main highway and onto back roads.

The President has been spending many recent weekends at Camp David, called Shangri-La when it was established by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Eisenhower spent a quiet weekend. He fished for trout Saturday and caught two, but played no golf.

Two Being Tried in Absentia Look In on Trial, Are Spotted

NAPLES, Italy, July 20 (AP) —Paolo and Alfonso Danto, brothers, on trial for murder in absentia, got curious about how the trial was going. So they went to the courtroom Saturday to see.

They were recognized and officials moved them from the spectators' benches to the prisoners' box to join another brother, Santo. All three are accused of committing a murder last August.

MONRONEY URGES SENATE TO VOTE ITSELF POWER TO HALT INQUIRIES

Offers Resolution He Says Is Aimed at McCarthy Group Which Is Drawing Criticism of Chamber.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —Senator Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, proposed today that the Senate arm itself with authority to force a quick halt to investigations undertaken by its committees.

He introduced a resolution which he described as aimed at "one man rule" by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin.

The resolution would clothe the President of the Senate with broad powers to forbid Senate investigating groups to continue any investigation, with appeal only to the Senate itself from his ruling.

In a speech marking introduction of the resolution, Monroney called it a desirable step to assure that investigating committees do not exceed the powers the Senate had intended them to have, and live up to "rules of fair play."

'One-Man Rule.'

He contended it also would "transfer back to the Senate powers assumed in the one-man rule" of certain committees, "particularly the one" headed by McCarthy, whom he referred to only as "the distinguished junior Senator from Wisconsin."

"His committee is the one causing the greatest amount of criticism to be heaped on the Senate," said Monroney, who last week took the Senate floor to assail McCarthy's avowed intention of subpenaing officials of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Monroney said the projected investigation of the super-secret intelligence agency was "the straw that broke the camel's back" and led him to draw up a proposed change in the Senate's rules.

Majority Vote Plan.

Under his proposal, the Senate by majority vote could halt investigations by its committees just as it can now discharge committees from further consideration of legislation.

He said the effect of his proposed rule would be "to put direct responsibility on the Senate" for the investigations of its committees. He said he regarded this as necessary in view of the sharp criticism some of them have aroused.

The proposed amendment to the rules, before becoming effective, would have to clear the rules committee headed by Senator Jenner (Rep.), Indiana, and then win the approval of the Senate itself.

Verbal sparring continued, meanwhile, between McCarthy and the three Democrats who resigned from his subcommittee July 10 in a revolt against what they called one-man rule. The G.O.P. majority had voted to give McCarthy sole power to hire and fire staff members.

McCarthy last week wrote each of the Democrats saying "the door is open for your return." In separate letters made public Saturday night the Democrats—Senators McClellan of Arkansas, Symington of Missouri and Henry Jackson of Washington—wrote him they had been nothing to indicate any change of attitude on his part that would justify them in rejoining the subcommittee.

'Phony Issue.'

McCarthy, on an NBC television program "Meet the Press" yesterday, said the Democrats had raised a "phony issue" and actually feared their political futures would be jeopardized if they had a hand in what he termed exposure by his group of graft and corruption in the Truman Administration.

"The better job the committee does the more abuse we will have to take," McCarthy said one had told him.

McCarthy commented that McClellan was up for re-election next year and Symington was being mentioned for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1956.

After the broadcast, Symington issued a statement branding as false McCarthy's implication that he quit the subcommittee because of a lack of interest in uncovering Communism and corruption in government.

"That statement is false," Symington declared, "and Senator McCarthy knows it. Most of Senator McCarthy's recent investigations and plans for investigation had to do with matters concerning the Eisenhower Administration. If my concept of politics followed those of Senator McCarthy for partisan, political exploitation there would be good reason for my remaining on the committee.

"But I resigned from his committee because I do not believe he should have such sole authority—and because I do not believe certain recent activities of his committee have been in accordance with the tradition of the United States Senate."

McClellan and Jackson issued statements similar to Symington's.

Both said McCarthy knew full well that they left the subcommittee in protest to the dictatorial powers given him to hire and fire subcommittee staff members and not because they were reluctant to expose corruption and Communism.

"There is no rule of the Senate placing such power in any committee chairman," McClellan said. On the contrary the rules of the Senate empower the committee and not the chairman to hire and discharge."

Jackson said the entire controversy would have been eliminated if McCarthy "had taken prompt and decisive action against the reckless charges made by J. B. Matthews (the subcommittee chief of staff in a magazine article) against the Protestant clergy."

Calling for McCarthy to clarify his stand on Matthews's "fantastic charges" against the clergy, Jackson added:

"As for graft and corruption, it is interesting to note that the chairman has failed to initiate investigations in this direction. Instead the committee is spending most of its time investigating the new Administration."

McCarthy commented on the television show that committee chairmen had always had the right to hire and fire their staff members, even under Democratic administrations.

McCarthy said the Democratic walkout was not caused by the furor over Matthews, who resigned as the subcommittee's chief of staff after President Eisenhower, congressional and religious leaders criticized the article Matthews wrote charging the Protestant clergy has the largest group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States.

On other questions McCarthy had this to say:

1. There is no conflict between him and Eisenhower. "We promised the people the same thing—to clean up the mess in Washington."

2. McCarthy isn't certain what the State Department's present policy is toward having books by Communist authors in the Government's overseas libraries because so many conflicting directives have been issued.

3. He positively won't agree to allow attorneys for witnesses before his committee to cross-examine other witnesses—"It would be a complete bedlam."

4. The criticism of Roy Cohn, chief investigator for McCarthy's investigations subcommittee, "Is the most flagrant, most shameful example of anti-Semitism I ever saw."

WEST BERLIN MAYOR BLASTS BUSINESS MEN

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

BERLIN, July 20 — Mayor Ernst Reuter bitterly assailed business men and financiers in West Germany yesterday for showing a "hard heart" to Berlin's economic plight. He charged them with expecting the United States to aid the city while they themselves refused to help.

In a radio address, Reuter asserted that the anti-Communist uprisings in East Berlin and East Germany a month ago caused a large-scale move by the West German business community to cancel orders with West Berlin manufacturers, or to refrain from placing new ones, to avoid risking financial losses. He said orders were being transferred instead to West German factories in safer locations.

The importance of such a development would lie in the fact that West Berlin's industries depend heavily on West German orders to stay in business. Wholesale cancellations would cause a further rise in unemployment here, which is currently at about 223,000. It could lead to demoralization and to a weakening of West Berlin's vitality as an anti-Communist stronghold behind the Iron Curtain.

Mayor Reuter, a Social Democrat, asserted that "innumerable" West German firms are currently asserting that West Berlin is "not secure."

"How long will we call for help from the world when the Germans themselves do not help, when we ourselves are not ready to do what can easily be done?" he asked.

The last large American aid allotment to West Berlin was on June 18, the day after the Communist revolts, when President Eisenhower announced a grant of $50,000,000. Of this sum, about one-third was earmarked for the city's industrial investment program and for other uses aimed at reducing unemployment and helping the city pay its own way in the future. A large part of the remainder was allotted to stockpiling food, raw materials, fuel and other essentials.

PERON AT AIRPORT TO SEE BROTHER OF PRESIDENT OFF

BUENOS AIRES, July 20 (AP) —President Juan D. Peron came to the airfield here today to bid farewell to Milton Eisenhower, brother of the United States President, now making a fact-finding tour of this continent.

It was a gesture of friendship rarely accorded visitors here. The last time Peron did so was four lears ago, to see off United States Ambassador James Bruce.

In the 48 hours Eisenhower spent in Buenos Aires, he conferred with Peron five times, had luncheon and attended boxing matches and a soccer game with him. Their last conference was an unscheduled session in Peron's office just before Eisenhower took off for Asuncion, Paraguay.

There was no explanation of the last-minute confab, but in view of the unusually cordial treatment extended to Eisenhower by Peron, it seemed likely some improvement in United States-Argentine relations was in the wind.

FIRST AUTO PLANT REPORTED STARTED IN RED CHINA

HONG KONG, July 20 (AP)— The Communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao reported today that construction has started on the first automobile manufacturing plant in Red China.

The plant is being built at Mukden in Manchuria to Russian design with Russian equipment and will be "a most modern and mechanized works," the newspaper said in a dispatch from Mukden.

It said the foundation stone—a giant piece of white jade inscribed with the name of Red boss Mao Tze-Tung — was laid Wednesday at a formal ceremony.

2306 DEAD, MISSING IN JAPANESE FLOOD

TOKYO, July 20 (AP)—Thousands of Japanese were rescued today from debris-littered floodwaters as ground, sea and air teams worked to cut the human toll in the nation's second great flood disaster in three weeks.

The sudden flood that started with cloudburst rains last Friday swallowed whole villages at Wakayama on central Honshu island's Pacific coast about 200 miles southwest of Tokyo.

National police headquarters here re-estimated the toll at 273 dead, 433 injured and 2033 missing. Earlier, police said more than 6000 were dead or missing, but a spokesman reported later those totals listed many duplications caused by chaotic communications.

More than 2000 persons stranded on rooftops or trapped in flooded homes were plucked to safety by rescue teams searching the swirling waters.

United States Air Force planes criss-crossed the flood scene, dropping tons of food to stranded persons, while Japanese ships and ground forces scoured the area for survivors.

The rains stopped Sunday after two days of cloudbursts sent three mountain streams thundering down narrow valleys. Flash floods hit villages—some before sleeping residents could flee.

New rains fell in the Tokyo area and the rivers there rose steadily.

British Replacements Arrive.

SINGAPORE, July 20 (AP)— A thousand British troops arrived here today from Britain aboard the troopship Empire Halladale. Most of the men are replacements for regiments fighting the Communist guerrillas in Malaya.

FRENCH STRIKE BLOW BY SEA AT VIETMINH BASE

HANOI, Indochina, July 20 (UP)—France today struck a new blow at the supply system of the Communist Vietminh rebels.

Four hundred seaborne French commandos carried out a lightning assault against a strong Red base 430 miles south of Hanoi. It was a follow-up to a daring parachute raid which smashed another Red supply base at Lang Son, less than 10 miles from the Red China frontier.

52 Reds Killed.

Sharp fighting developed and the French reported at least 52 of the Vietminh defenders were killed. Another 11 rebels were taken prisoners.

French casualties in the attack were listed as seven wounded.

Vietminh regulars were reported today attacking the French parachute rearguards who were pulling back from Lang Son.

French fighter-bombers were ordered northward today to give air cover to the paratroopers withdrawing after the raid in which they destroyed 5000 tons of Communist supplies, enough to equip two Red divisions.

French officers said among the equipment the Communists lost were 1000 machineguns from the Skoda plant in Czechoslovakia, six trucks made in the Soviet Union, and Chinese-made engines and rubber tires.

Strategy Change Likely.

The raid may compel the Vietminh to delay an expected autumn offensive by weeks, French officials said. It could result in a complete change of Communist strategy.

The Vietminh may have to disperse supply dumps or even withdraw them behind the Chinese frontiers, the French officers said. In addition, the Reds may also have to pull back veteran troops from the front lines to guard rear areas against the threat of new parachute attacks.

Meantime, the French High Command announced that the paratroopers had reached Tien Yen after linking up with an armored column sent to their relief. The armored farce pushed 50 miles deep into enemy-held territory with virtually no opposition to meet the paratroopers at Na Ba.

Princess Margaret May Yet Get OK to Marry Divorced Air Hero

LONDON, July 20 (AP)— Princess Margaret may yet win an official OK to marry the handsome air hero, Peter Townsend, despite his divorce, a source close to Buckingham Palace said today.

The informant, who cannot be identified further, said the pretty princess has been told of government efforts to overcome constitutional objection to such a marriage.

"Princess Margaret obviously is now in a happier frame of mind," he added. "Every evening since her arrival home from an African tour last Friday, she has spent at least an hour writing letters—and she is not ordinarily over-fond of letter writing."

Sent to Brussels.

Royal Air Force Group Capt. Townsend, 38-year-old former equerry to the royal household, was transferred to Brussels as air attache and left for the Belgian capital just 48 hours before Margaret's return. Some British newspapers charged he had been "exiled." Princess Margaret and Townsend had been close friends for many months although there never has been any official confirmation of a romance.

Government sources have reported that British Commonwealth prime ministers recently discussed the possibility of shifting the succession of the regency from Margaret to the Duke of Edinburgh. This would mean that the duke—husband of Queen Elizabeth II—would act as regent in the event the Queen should die or become incapacitated before their son, Prince Charles, reaches the age of 18. Princess Margaret, 22, is at present first in line for the regency.

If the regency were shifted from her it might remove one obstacle blocking marriage to Townsend, who in his divorce suit charged his wife with adultery. As regent, Princess Margaret would take the sovereign's place as titular head of the Church of England, which frowns on divorce. She could scarcely uphold this position if she were married to a divorced person.

Newspapers Protest.

Townsend's assignment to Brussels, announced just after Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth left for Rhodesia, brought outraged howls from a number of British newspapers. One, the tabloid Daily Mirror, polled its readers, who voted 67,907 to 2235 in favor of allowing the princess to marry Townsend—if she "so desires."

Sources close to the palace, meantime, argued that Townsend would have been sent much farther afield than Brussels if real "banishment" had been intended. They pointed out it would have been quite simple to have assigned him, for example, to Australia to help arrange the forthcoming royal tour and then, perhaps, to have found him a permanent colonial post there.

EISENHOWER IN JOB 6 MONTHS; PARTIES DISPUTE RESULTS

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP) —President Eisenhower wound up his first six months in office today with his reorganization of the Government well underway, a Korean truce apparently at hand, and the budget trimmed but not balanced.

It was just half a year ago the former general took the inaugural oath and launched the nation on its first Republican administration in 20 years.

Acting Republican leader in the Senate, William F. Knowland of California, said there has been "great progress" and the party would have a "real record of accomplishment" to show in the 1954 Congressional elections.

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, Indiana, told reporters the eighty-third Congress in co-operation with the President, had done "a magnificent job in meeting the necessities of the times."

The Democrats were not quite so enthusiastic. In the view of House Democratic whip John W. McCormack, the first session of Congress has been a "failure" in keeping Republican promises or producing the President's program.

ISRAEL RESUMES DIPLOMATIC TIES WITH SOVIET UNION

JERUSALEM, July 20 (UP)— Diplomatic relations between Israel and the Soviet Union, broken off last February, were resumed today.

An official announcement of the resumption of normal diplomatic relations was issued here tonight.

Russia broke off relations with Israel Feb. 12 after the bombing of the Soviet legation at Tel Aviv. Three officials of the legation were reported injured in the blast.

The incident followed charges that a group of Jewish physicians plotted to murder high Soviet officials and top-level Communist party members.

U.S. POPULATION 159,473,000

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) — The Census Bureau said today the nation's population was about 159,473,000 on June 1.

This estimate indicated an increase of 2,703,000, or 1.7 per cent, in the year since June 1, 1952, and of 8,341.000, or 5.5 per cent since the date of the last census, April 1, 1950. The estimates all included United States armed forces overseas.

DEMOCRATS URGE PRESIDENT TO LEAD AID FIGHT

McCormack Offers Party Support Against 1.1 Billion Cut by House Unit.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP) —House Democratic leaders challenged President Eisenhower today to lead a "fight" against a proposed $1,100,000,000 cut in his foreign aid program.

Democratic Whip John W. McCormack of Massachussetts, promised the help of Democrats to restore at least $700,000,000 of the total slash recommended by the House Appripriations Committee.

He emphasized that the President himself must lead the drive when the issue comes up for action on the House floor. Without this leadership, McCormack indicated, the chances for restoring the money were slim.

Meanwhile, the Senate Appropriations Committee planned to wind up its hearings on the President's aid request today. It is believed it will not go along entirely with the House committee's proposed $1,100,000,000 reduction.

President Eisenhower originally asked for an aid program of nearly six billion dollars. Under congressional pressure he has since trimmed his request to $5,138,922,277.

Although he made strong personal appeals against further cuts last week, the House Committee whacked $705,244,277 from the President's request for new funds for the fiscal year which began July 1. It approved $4,433,678,000 in new money, but lopped off $400,000,000 from previously appropriated, but unspent, funds. That made a total cut in the program of $1,100,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, protested today that some South American programs receiving help under United States foreign aid are socialistic. For instance, he said, this country has put $200,000 into an agriculture co-operative in Peru which operates a sheep ranch, a farm equipment pool, a rice mill and other such facilities.

"If I ever saw a case of socialism, there it is," Ellender declared.

Russell E. Gardner Jr. Warns St. Louis Is at 'Crossroads,' Notes Issue Won't Increase Tax Rate.

St. Louis must pass the $1,500,000 bond issue proposed for construction of a park to link Memorial and Aloe plazas, or else resign itself to the role of a decaying city, Russell E. Gardner Jr., president of the Urban Redevelopment Corp. of St. Louis, warned yesterday.

Taking part in a symposium on urban redevelopment broadcast by Radio Station KWK, he declared:

"St. Louis is at the crossroads now. It has to move forward or go backward. I understand the proposed bond issue will not raise the tax rate. If the city doesn't want to pass a $1,500,000 bond issue for such a worthy project, it is in a bad way."

Special Election Sept. 29.

The projected park would be the city's contribution to redevelopment of the Plaza area with apartments for 1350 middle-income families. The bond issue proposal, which requires approval by two thirds of those voting, failed to carry by a narrow margin last March, and will be resubmitted in a special election Sept. 29.

Pointing out that 68 subscribers to the capital fund of the Urban Redevelopment Corp. had raised more than $2,000,000 in amounts ranging from $250 to $300,000, Gardner said the subscribers do not expect to make any profit, this being purely a civic undertaking aimed at improving housing conditions and rehabilitating the downtown area.

Only 42 families living in the area to be cleared for the park would have to be relocated, it was reported by Leo F. Havey, chairman of the city's Land Clearance Commission. He warned that a number of business firms requiring room for expansion may move out of the city if the Plaza redevelopment is held up and thereby blocks plans for other projects, including clearance of slum areas for industrial redevelopment.

Hope for Expressway.

Preston Estep, treasurer of the Urban Redevelopment Corp., said the sponsors hope a supplementary expressway along Pine and Chestnut streets can be built simultaneously with the apartments in the plaza area. It might be possible to obtain federal and state funds for the traffic artery, he added.

William Murray, associate city counselor and legal adviser to the redevelopment group, outlined the federal aid available under the Housing Act of 1949. He emphasized that, while the city is required to defray one-third of the cost of acquiring a slum area and clearing it for sale to a redeveloper at reduced price, this municipal contribution does not have to be made in cash, a park, school or other improvement being acceptable.

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, who is executive vice president of the Urban Redevelopment Corp., was moderator of the symposium.

Danger Elsewhere Noted.

St. Louis is threatened by blight not only in the downtown area but in other parts of the city, and rehabilitation in residential sections must be conducted on a block basis, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul was told at its quarterly meeting yesterday.

The Rt. Rev. John O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities and a pioneer in the national movement for housing improvement, emphasized that a great deal can be accomplished through self-help on the part of householders interested in improving their own neighborhood.

Plans should not be grandiose, he said. "Don't make it too expensive, too big and too frightening. Form an improvement organization on a block basis. Each fellow decides what he can do for himself, and when one sees what his neighbor accomplishes, the idea spreads."

515 REQUEST RENT COMPLAINT FORMS FROM COMMITTEE

A total of 515 requests for forms on which complaints of excessive rent increases can be reported have been received to date, it was announced today by Clarence C. Lang, secretary of the St. Louis Fair Rent Committee.

Lang said 116 requests were received from tenants today and that a list of 160 more was given to the committee by William A. Webb, AFL representative. These are in addition to 50 requests made last Thursday and 189 on Friday, he said.

About 40 completed forms were received in today's mail for the committee to process and distribute to complaint investigators. Lang said first inquiries by inspectors will be made tomorrow, with some reports expected to be made by the end of the week.

TEAMSTERS LET SCHOOL BUILDERS HAUL IN BUSSES

Striking truck drivers, who have almost every construction project in the area shut down, are getting credit for an assist from Valley Park residents who are trying to get a new school building up before the fall term starts.

With the striking Teamsters' Union's approval, the townspeople are hauling concrete blocks, cement, sand and gravel from materials firms in school busses, a type of concession which has not been extended to others.

Construction of the one-story building started two weeks ago, with Valley Park residents performing all the labor without charge. The structure will cost $10,000 under this arrangement, compared with an estimate of $40,000 obtained from a contractor.

MAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT TRYING TO ASSIST DEPUTY

Arthur Leggon, 3018 North Newstead avenue, was accidentally shot and seriously wounded yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Levi Graham of St. Louis county as Leggon tried to prevent George M. Bailey, 4632 Maffitt avenue, from advancing on the deputy with a knife, the sheriff's office reported.

The shooting occurred about 2 a.m. in the parking lot at Bolton's Grove on Dorsett road in Maryland Heights. Graham, a Negro, said several Negroes were fighting and he warned them to stop. He said Bailey began advancing on him with a knife and said, "you'll have to kill me this morning."

The deputy said he drew his revolver and warned Bailey several times, but the man continued to advance. Leggon attempted to halt Bailey and was shot in the abdomen as the deputy fired at Bailey, Graham reported.

LACLEDE GAS STARTS MAILING REFUNDS

Sending of Checks Totaling $2,432,961 Expected to Take 30 Days.

A 30-day job of mailing refund checks totaling $2,432,961 was started by Laclede Gas Co. today. The checks are going to customers who purchased gas from the company from Jan. 21, 1946, to Oct. 31, 1948.

Average amount of the checks is about $5.86. They range from as little as 25 cents to considerably more, depending on the amount of gas used.

The reason for the refund is that the company itself received a refund from Mississippi River Fuel Corp., the pipeline firm that supplies Laclede, by order of the Federal Power Commission.

When the pipeline company was ordered to reduce its rates, litigation began. Meanwhile the gas company was setting aside that part of its receipts covered by the rate difference in question. When the litigation ended and the lower rates were ordered with retroactive effect, the refund to Laclede's customers was in order.

On June 3 the Public Service Commission, at Jefferson City, ordered Laclede to proceed with the refund. The commission denied the company's claim on an expense item of $96,531 which it had paid in gross receipts taxes to the City of St. Louis and various county municipalities.

At Jefferson City today, in a hearing before the Public Service Commission, the gas company proposed to increase the depreciation rates for retirement of gas plant property no longer used. The new rates would add about $300,000 a year to the present retirement reserve charge of slightly more than $550,000 a year. The company also asked the commission to determine procedure for writing off a balance of about $2,000,000 of the value of a coke oven plant that went out of use when Laclede converted to straight natural gas.

GIRL BULLFIGHTER IS GORED BUT SHE FINISHES FIGHT

TIJUANA, Mexico, July 20 (AP)—Bullfighter Patricia McCormick was tossed and gored in one leg in the Tijuana ring yesterday.

She insisted on continuing the fight and dispatched the 750-pound bull with four sword thrusts. The crowd of 10,000 gave her an ovation.

Miss McCormick was taken to a hospital for treatment of the eight-inch gash in one leg.

She was caught by the bull's horns as she paused a moment too long after a sweeping veronica and was tossed to the ground. Again she engaged the bull and this time a gust of wind swept the cape across her body. The bull attacked and hooked her with his horn in the muscle of the calf, ripping upward to the knee.

Her trainer said she would be out of action for 15 days.

Miss McCormick, 23 years old, started bullfighting two years ago. This was her first test, officials said, against big bulls in a major ring.

Miss McCormick, now of Big Spring, Tex., was born in St. Louis, a daughter of E. B. McCormick, an oil engineer. The family left here in 1943.

TWO COUPLES PARKED IN PARK ARE HELD UP

Two men and women companions were held up Saturday night in Forest Park, they reported to police yesterday. Both robberies took place shortly before midnight, and descriptions given by the two men indicated they were held up by the same pair.

Charles Armstrong, 306 Euclid avenue, Webster Groves, said he was in his parked automobile on Wells drive near Tamm avenue when two men approached. Armstrong said he hid his wallet by shoving it between two cushions of the automobile seat. The robbers, one of whom was armed, took Armstrong's wrist watch.

Frederick Morrison, 6173 Westminster place, told police he and his companion were on Art Hill when the robbers approached. They took $40, a cigarette lighter and a wrist watch from him, he said.

FIRMS REQUEST HEARING ON BUS ROUTE CHANGES

Downtown Association Opposes Shifts in Lines Scheduled for Next Monday.

A request for a hearing before the Board of Public Service on the proposed rerouting of busses and streetcars through the downtown area was made today by the Downtown Improvement Association, which is objecting to the changes.

The request was made in a letter sent to Frank J. McDevitt, Board of Public Service president, by James E. Crowe, former city counselor and attorney for the improvement association, composed of business firms and real estate owners.

"As you probably know, we consider the substituted plan a grave deviation from the original Chamber of Commerce traffic and transit plan, which was approved by approximately 115 civic organizations and was tacitly approved by the Board of Aldermen by passage of the traffic ordinance," Crowe wrote.

He said the board's approval is required before operation of busses is begun on any street. The revised routes are scheduled to become effective next Monday when Olive, Locust and Pine streets will be converted into one-way streets in part.

MOST WHOLESALE COFFEE PRICES HERE UP 3 CENTS

Most major coffee roasters in St. Louis, following a national trend, have increased wholesale prices of coffee 3 cents a pound, it was learned today, but there are indications it will be at least a month before the rise will be felt by consumers. Top price for roasters with the 3-cent increase is expected to be about 90 cents a pound.

Roasters who have increased their prices have allowed their customers to buy a 30-day supply of coffee at the old price "within a given limit."

"This should mean that retail prices should not go up for about 30 days," one roaster explained. "However, we have no control over what jobbers will charge retailers or what retailers will charge their customers." Retail prices range now from about 80 cents to about 95 cents a pound.

MAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

The man was described as being about 65 years old and 5 feet 8 inches tall. He was wearing a dark grey pin-striped suit which had a St. Louis store label. In a pocket were a brown bone-handle knife and a black leather coin purse. The body is at the Fink undertaking establishment, Festus.

EDWARD T. HALL SUES TO BREAK TRUST HE SET UP

Former Ralston-Purina Executive Alleges $250,000 Agreement Is Defective.

Edward T. Hall of New York City, former St. Louisan and retired vice president of Ralston Purina Co., sued in circuit court today to have declared void a $250,000 irrevocable trust, which he set up in 1931 to provide a lifetime income for himself, with proceeds going to his children and other relatives after his death.

Named as defendants were the trustees, Charles E. Minton, former St. Louis attorney, now of Albuquerque, N.M., and St. Louis Union Trust Co.; two sons, Edward T. Hall Jr., Washington, D.C., and Richard W. Hall, Hempstead, L.I., N.Y.; two daughters, Mrs. Tyge Roth, Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. Levin Lyttleton Waters, Guilford, Conn.; 11 grandchildren, five other relatives and five charitable and educational institutions alsor named in the trust.

Alleging technical defects in the trust as grounds for voiding, Hall, now 69 years old, asked that the trustees be directed to deliver the trust assets to him, together with interest.

Alernate Counts.

In one of three alternate cvounts, Hall's petition asked that, if the court refused to void the trust, the trustees then be direced to pay him $50,000 from the trust principal for payment of debts he had incurred, $3000 to pay expenses of a vacation and $15,000 as supplementary income at the rate of $500 monthly retroactive to Jan. 1, 1951.

These payments would be in addition to trust income already being paid him. He received $6000 from the trust last year and $5689 in 1951, the petition said.

Another alternate count asked that he be paid enough from the principal to provide him a monthly income of $1740.

Hall alleged the trustees had "failed to exercise discretionary powers" in handling the trust, leaving final decision on various questions to his children, making them in effect the actual trustees.

Trust for Ex-Wife.

His petition referred to a $100,000 trust Hall set up in 1927 for the benefit of his former wife, Jessie, after she left their Webster Groves home and ran away with a young German sculptor, Heinz Warneke.

Hall obtained a divorce, with custody of the children, then aged 5 to 12, and Mrs. Hall married Warneke. These occurrences, together with establishment of the $100,000 trust were not aired until 1937 when a United States Board of Tax Appeals decision was filed. That decision set out that Hall created the trust on his wife's plea that she and her new husband were without means.

In the petition filed today Hall disclosed he had terminated this trust in 1941, but only after agreeing to his former wife's demand that the $250,000 trust be not encroached on without consent of the children. A fourth alternate count asked that this agreement be voided.

Hall, who himself remarried in 1949, retired from Ralston Purina in 1929, at the age of 45, announcing that "the world has been good to me" and that he intended to devote himself to writing and the study of art and philosophy.

DICE PLAYERS HIDE FROM DEPUTIES AT CHURCH BENEFIT

About 60 Wellston citizens, playing dice games at a church benefit Saturday night, spent a dark and uncomfortable quarter-hour hiding from two sheriff's deputies sent to investigate complaints that gambling was going on there.

The dice games were in the parish school gymnasium of Notre Dame de Lourdes Catholic Church, Kienlen and Evanston avenues, Wellston. Outside in the schoolyard, several hundred more residents milled around other carnival games of chance for which prizes such as lamps, were awarded.

When the deputies passed by in their automobile, searching for a parking space in the crowded streets, a lookout at the gate gave the signal. Lights in the gymnasium were turned off and the doors closed. A poker-hand betting booth in the schoolyard was hastily closed up.

While the dice players peered uneasily through the darkened gymnasium windows, the two deputies strolled through the carnival area. Finding no gambling in progress, they left, and the dice enthusiasts, perspiring freely, opened the doors and gladly made their exits into the cooler air outside.

CHILD, 3, DROWNS IN NEIGHBOR'S POOL

Body Found by Searchers After Boy Fails to Return Home.

Jeffrey Smith, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Smith, 8100 Balson avenue, University City, drowned Saturday night in a private swimming pool near his home.

The boy, wearing shorts, shoes and a pair of swimming goggles, was found lying face down in five feet of water in a pool at the rear of the home of Eli Spielberg, 8130 Balson.

The parents told University City police Jeffrey left home about 7 p.m. to play with friends. When he had not returned two hours later, a search was begun.

The body was found at 11:10 p.m. by Nathan Shapiro, 930 Blackberry lane, University City, who, with other neighbors, assisted police in the search. Officers said the child apparently had climbed over a two-foot picket fence which lines the pool.

Artificial respiration and an inhalator were used in an attempt to revive the child. Physicians at St. Louis County Hospital said he had been dead about three hours when found.

POLICEMEN FIRE 6 SHOTS IN CHASE AFTER STOLEN CAR

Two policemen fired six shots at an automobile in a 70-mile-an-hour chase through city streets early yesterday. Four shots hit the car and one just missed the driver, William E. Miller, of the 2300 block of South Eleventh street, who was booked on suspicion of automobile theft.

Since 1943, when he was 13 years old, Miller has served four reformatory and workhouse terms for automobile theft, police said. Special Officers Frank Bill and Virgil Kleine, of the Lynch street Station, recognized Miller driving in Lafayette avenue and, recalling his record, decided to check the car. Miller sped away from them and was run down, finally on foot in an alley, after the car hit the guard rail of a parking lot at California and Shenandoah avenues.

The officers said Miller was intoxicated. The automobile had been stolen from Ray Foerster, 1817A Allen avenue.

Text of Tucker's Statement To Public on Truckers' Strike

I HAVE not received a direct reply from the Teamsters Union to my request that the union, Local 682, and the Ready Mix Material Dealers Association submit their dispute over a new contract to arbitration. The Ready Mix Dealers have agreed. The union in a number of statements in the daily newspapers has rejected my proposal for arbitration.

I want to bring this matter once more before the public. In the last two days, countless people have asked me how they, the people of St. Louis, can act to help end this destructive, needless strike. I have told them that their opinion, mass public opinion, is the only force left that is stronger than either of the parties to the strike.

I have told them that they should make sure that both sides know how the public stands. They should, individually or as representatives of groups in our city, communicate their feelings on this situation to both sides.

And, if they do, perhaps we will be able to give some satisfying answer to letters like this one from a plasterer and union member. He wrote me yesterday a letter similar to many I have received from building tradesmen out of work because of a labor dispute that is not of their making. He said:

"Your talk was wonderful. Thank God, we have a man who will help us. I am a plasterer out of work since the strike. My savings are gone. I am about to lose my automobile. I have lived in St. Louis all my life, plastered for 35 years, am too old now to go and get another job. I must depend on the building line."

I wish the Teamsters Union, which is now refusing to arbitrate their dispute with the Ready Mix dealers, would tell me how to answer a letter like that.

Entering Tenth Week.

This strike is now about to enter its tenth week. It is the last, the only reason why our construction industry is tied up. Two other strikes that involved construction workers were settled this weekend. But that settlement will have no practical effect on our vital construction industry until there is once again a supply of ready mixed concrete. The building of homes, hospitals and factories is still halted. Our best building season is fast going by without any building.

The Teamsters, judging by their statements to the newspapers, have refused to submit their dispute to arbitration—thus ending their strike — only because of a single, rather technical disagreement. This devotion to a quibble has been typical of the attitude of both sides during the endless hours that they have negotiated in my office.

My proposed procedure for arbitration provides that "the arbitrators are to have full power to determine the facts required to reach a decision." My proposal calls on both sides "to promise to supply whatever facts they (the arbitrators) require."

In other words, in agreeing to my proposal for arbitration, both parties agree that the arbitrators can, if they deem it necessary to arrive at a fair decision, look at books, records, whatever else they may want. The Ready Mix Dealers have already said they agree with this interpretation.

Authority Implied.

My proposal does not say that the arbitrators must look at the companies' books, or, for that matter, at the union's books. It does say that they may look at any books, whether company or union. Neither side can object if the arbitrators so decide.

Any arbitrators to be successful in so difficult and controversial a case must have full, complete authority to handle the arbitration as they want, to look where they want, to ask what questions they want. With that auhority, of course, goes responsibility.

I have no right to tell whomever the arbitrators may be how they should conduct their arbitration. That would be presumptuous on my part. I have gone as far as I can in providing that they may look at the books and records of either side if they think that will help them arrive at a fair decision.

The Teamsters object that this does not give them "adequate safeguards." As one of the parties to the arbitration, they would have me dictate in advance of the arbitration exactly what evidence the arbitrators should consider.

I say that such a decision is up to the arbitrators—not to me. The Teamsters would have every chance under my proposal to convince the arbitrators of the soundness of their demand that an accountant examine the companies' books and records.

Keeping Thousands Idle.

As far as I can determine, this is the only matter that keeps the Teamsters Union from agreeing to end this strike. It is the only matter that is keeping idle thousands of workmen who are not involved in this strike. It is the only matter that is preventing our construction industry from starting up again.

In short, the union is saying that its leaders must determine in advance what facts the arbitrators should obtain from the companies' books. I say the arbitrators — not the union — not the ready mix dealers—shall determine what facts they need.

The union wants to tell the arbitrators how to arbitrate. I want to leave that up to the arbitrators. My plan does not merely give the employes "adequate" safeguards. It guarantees them full and complete safeguards.

I am once more, and publicly, calling on Local 682 of the Teamsters Union to reconsider its position. I know it is hard for anyone, be it individual or organization, to change its mind once its mind is publicly made up.

But it is even harder, I think, for our building tradesmen to keep on living on unemployment compensation. It is even harder, I think, for our contractors and sub-contractors to be threatened with bankruptcy. It is even harder, I think for all of us in this community to have to do without one of the most vital industries we have, the construction industry.

This is why I said—and I now repeat—that my arbitration proposal is one which both sides can accept with honor, without sacrifice of principle, without loss of prestige and without injuring their respective bargaining positions. The only weapon either side surrenders is the weapon of force, the threat to destroy the other side by prolonged economic warfare.

Danger to Community.

And what will it profit either side to gain such a victory if, in the course of winning, it undermines the economy of our entire community. The very clear possibility that this may happen if the strike goes on is why I intervened in the first place.

I want to emphasize another point. My proposal guarantees that the neutral chairman of the three-member board of arbitration will be a fair-minded, impartial man. First, the union and the Ready Mix dealers get a chance to agree on his identity. And, incidentally, one of the potential arbitrators already suggested by the Ready Mix dealers is a man who has several times been selected by the Teamsters Union to arbitrate other disputes of theirs.

But, if the two parties cannot agree, the question of the identity of the third arbitrator will be decided by the most impartial panel I can think of—the three federal judges who live in St. Louis.

Futile Negotiations.

Finally I want to comment briefly on published reports that the Teamsters Union is now offering to re-open negotiations with the Ready Mix dealers "in public."

I have sat and watched both sides negotiate for two weeks in my office. Both sides negotiated off and on for weeks before they came to my office. All this negotiating failed to end the strike. It succeeded only in negotiating both sides deeper and deeper into deadlock.

I cannot understand, therefore, how the Teamsters Union can think that further negotiations will lead to a settlement.

The public, as well as I, certainly realizes that both sides to this dispute would use public or televised negotiations as a means of emphasizing the reasons that have kept them apart, rather than as a means of soberly considering the reasons that can and should bring them together.

Negotiations in public—before television cameras, as the union suggests—would furnish us all with a good show. It would supply an excellent debating society. But this long, deep-rooted dispute cannot be settled by arm-waving and oratory. Nor can it be settled by pitting trained debaters of one side against trained debaters of the other.

It would furnish us all with a good show, but it would not put our thousands of jobless building workers back to work. It would not end this long strike. It might be a good drama, but it would be completely futile otherwise.

I again ask the public to join with me in urging the union to accept arbitration. Let's end this strike.

PHILANTHROPIC GIFTS IN '53 OFF 14 PCT. FROM '52 PERIOD

Philanthropic gifts and bequests in St. Louis during the first six months of 1953 totaled about 14 per cent less than those in the same period of 1952, it was reported today by John Price Jones Co., Inc., a New York fund-raising consultant firm.

Based on a study of publicly announced donations, the firm's figures showed that $9,604,779 was given to educational, religious and other groups here in the 1953 period, as against $11,145,069 last year. However, the report added that the figures for the 1953 period were not complete as yet.

Of the 1953 sum, gifts totaled $8,365,856 and bequests $1,238,923. In 1952, $7,724,270 was donated in gifts and $3,420,799 in bequests. The decline was smaller for 10 large urban areas in the country, including St. Louis, taken as a whole, with $247,979,097 given in 1953 and $269,259,030 in 1952.

SENATORS TALK OF NEW FIGHT FOR AIR FUNDS

They Concede Move Is Futile but It May Prevent Additional Cuts Voted by House.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —Some Senators talked today of waging a fight on the Senate floor for some of t... five billions cut from new Air Force funds by the Eisenhower Administration.

"We know we can't win it but if we make a good showing we may prevent the additional reductions voted by the House," said one senator who refused to be quoted by name.

The $34,511,302,000 defense money bill, carrying funds for the Air Force, Army and Navy, is scheduled for Senate action Wednesday.

Acting Republican Leader Knowland of California told reporters he expects Senate passage in one dav and in about the form the bill came from the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Restoration Defeated.

That group defeated attempts to restore any part of the five billions cut by the Administration from Air Force recommendations of President Truman, but it restored nearly $200,000,000 that the House slashed from the Eisenhower requests.

By a brisk floor battle for more funds than the Senate committee allowed, some Senators believe they can win acceptance of a $200,000,000 increase when Senate-House differences are adjusted in a conference committee.

A stiff Senate floor fight also was promised over a rider which does not change any dollar totals.

Senator Maybank (Dem.), South Carolina, with solid backing of Democratsa on the appropriatians group, obtained approval of an amendment that would bar use of defense funds for contracts awarded "for the purpose of correcting or preventing economic dislocations."

For several years, some defense contracts have gone to areas certified by the Labor Department as being unemployment distress areas.

Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, floor manager for the defense bill, and Senator Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said they would ask the Senate to kill the Maybank rider.

Most of the labor distress areas, which have received defense contracts by negotiation rather than low bids, are in New England and northern industrial areas.

Debate on TV.

Ferguson and Senator Symington (Dem.), Missouri, on an NBC television program, "American Forum of the Air," yesterday, disagreed completely over whether the $5,000,000 cut in Air Force funds imperils national security. Symington, Secretary of the Air Force in the Truman Administration, said the reduction would cripple United States air power.

Ferguson said the Air Force had sufficient money to take care of all of its needs for the year — 11 billion dollars not counting funds for air fields plus a carry-over of 28 billion. He said the Air Force had kept billions of dollars unexpended and unobligated because it could not produce the planes and there was no sense in adding to that total that couldn't be used.

Symington retorted that the big reason the Air Force had so much money unused was because of "decisions by the Department of Defense without the approval of any military people."

When Ferguson contended that the cut would not mean the loss of any fighting planes, Symington replied it would mean the Air Force would have to operate without 200 B-47 medium range bombers needed to train airmen before they could operate fast jet planes.

Ferguson insisted the 200 planes were not needed this year, "in the opinion of the Air Force." "They may need them in the future but they don't need them this year," he said.

Eisenhower's Stand.

Ferguson said the Air Force budget cut had President Eisenhower's approval. Symington quoted Secretary of Defense Wilson as testifying that the slash was made by the Department of Defense without Eisenhower being consulted.

Ferguson said Wilson and Assistant Secretary of Defense Kyes wanted to prevent errors made by Air Force men in the past who did not understand production. Symington replied that former Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett "has forgotten more about building airplanes than Mr. Wilson or Mr. Kyes will ever know."

Ferguson said the Air Force did not seem to know how many wings it needed or even how many planes would be in a wing.

Asserting that the Air Force knew all along how many wings it wanted, Symington replied: Everybody knows what a wing is—a fighter wing has 75 planes, a cargo wing has 45, a medium bomber wing 45 and a heavy bomber wing has 30.

RIGHTS GROUP ASSAILS MOVE TO CURB PRESIDENT'S POWERS

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP) —The American Civil Liberties Union said yesterday a proposed constitutional amendment to curb the treaty-making powers of the President would "completely cripple" the nation's conduct of foreign affairs.

It said the proposal, sponsored by Senator Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, is "revolutionary" and based on "fears . . . aroused by human rights treaties, the area of primary concern to the American Civil Liberties Union."

The organization made its attack on the Bricker amendment in a statement sent to all members of the Senate. The proposal, which has been signed by more than 60 Senators, has been approved by the Judiciary Committee.

3 U.N. AND RED TEAMS WORK ON TRUCE DETAILS

munist staff officers meeting today carried rolled up maps—presumably needed in fixing the new demarcation line for a 2½-mile buffer zone which will separate the opposing armies 72 hours after a truce. As redrawn, it will reflect gains of the Communists in their Kumsong bulge offensive last week and territory retaken by the South Koreans. This team met in two morning sessions totaling almost an hour. The group was headed for the United States by Marine Col. James C. E. Murray.

Another staff group, headed by Air Force Col. Douglas M. Cairns, met with the Reds for 27 minutes, then turned its work over to interpreters, usually the final step.

Liaison officers, who have maintained the Allied-Communist contact during the prolonged negotiations, conferred 49 minutes and recessed without setting another meeting date, also suggesting their work was finished.

A U. N. spokesman said the first trip of United States military armistice commission members to Panmunjom represented "planning against the day that an armistice is signed so there will be a minimum of delay in getting the commission into operation."

A partial record of the secret armistice negotiations made public Sunday by the Communists shows that the R.O.K. army would have to fight all alone if it violated the truce.

The Red delegation, breaking temporarily the news blackout on the talks, cited 10 Allied pledges made to them as assurance that the armistice agreement will be kept.

List of 'Assurances.'

Quotations listed by the Reds in the form of a statement by North Korean Gen. Nam Il were confirmed by Lt. Col. Milton Herr, U.N. Command spokesman, as coming from the official record. Here, in brief, are the "assurances" listed by the Communists:

1. Receipt by the U.N. Command of "necessary assurances" from the South Korean Government "that it will not obstruct in any manner the implementation of terms of the draft armistice agreement."

2. That R.O.K. forces will withdraw "from the buffer zone after the armistice signing."

3. That the U.N. Command will not support "any aggressive action of units of the Republic of Korea army in violation of an armistice."

4. That the U.N. Command will observe the truce if the ROKs begin aggressive action and the Communists take action to resist.

5. That the U.N. command will not give any support to South Korea, including equipment and supplies, if the ROKs took aggressive action and the Reds fought back.

6. That there "is no time limit to the armistice." (The Communists had noted in the secret sessions that President Rhee was quoted as saying he would observe a truce for only 90 days after a political conference meets to discuss Korean settlement.)

7. That the U.N. command will protect all personnel of North Korean, Chinese and neutral nation representatives who enter South Korea to supervise armistice terms.

8. That the U.N. Command will "to the limits of its ability" see that armistice terms are observed. (On this point, the Reds quoted a letter from Gen. Clark, U.N. commander, June 29.)

9. That the U.N. Command "bears unrelievable responsibility" to recover the North Korean war prisoners released by the South Korean Government; the Reds noted that Clark said June 29 that his command "is continuing" efforts to recapture the prisoners but that the Allied truce delegation declined to report further on the matter.

10. That the Allies would turn over to the five-nation repatriation commission the remaining anti-Communist war prisoners.

For "People of the World."

The Communists declared they were quoting from the official record so "that the people of the world may know the assurances."

(Earnest Hoberecht, United Press correspondent, called the Reds' disclosure of material from the negotiations a violation of secrecy. He said Herr, when asked if the U. N. planned to do anything about it, replied: "Nothing that I know of."

Foreign Minister Pyun's comments in Seoul represented the first official reaction by the South Korean Government to the latest Panmunjom developments.

"We did not like the armistice talks from the beginning," Pyun said. "We feel as bad now as we did before."

Pyun is one of Rhee's closest advisers on truce matters and has been the most vocal opponent of the truce within the government.

Commenting on the U.N. pledge to the Reds not to support any aggressive action by South Korea after a truce, Pyun said the Communists intend to provoke South Korea into aggressive action.

Then, Pyun added in an interview, the Communists plan to "shift the blame on us as aggressors when we have to take defensive action."

On another point—that the U.N. assured the Reds there was no time limit on a truce—Pyun said it showed the Communists want to prolong the political conference that will follow a truce.

Want to 'Wreck' ROK.

The purpose of this, Pyun said, was to "wreck the Republic of Korea by subversive activity and deprive us of any means to find a remedy."

Pyun contended that to extend the political conference was "dangerous regardless of the success or failure of the conference."

Concerning a third point—that the Communists reserved the right to bring up the question of recovery of escaped North Korean prisoners at the political conference—Pyun said it showed the Communists wanted to get back all anti-Communist prisoners against the wishes of the captives.

Rhee had no immediate public comment on the latest developments but he gave close study to the Communist statement.

Asked whether South Korea will abide by a truce in light of the Red statement, Pyun declared:

"We cannot promise it. It all depends on how things will develop."

Another top ROK official, who asked not to be named, termed the Red statement "unconditional surrender" by the United Nations. It means, he said, they "have lost the war."

Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korea's truce delegate, said he will not return to the armistice talks at Panmunjom unless terms of the cease-fire agreement are changed. He has boycotted the talks since May 25.

(In Washington, Republican congressional leaders said President Eisenhower brought them up to date on the Korean situation at their meeting today. Speaker Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, said the outlook for a truce is "still hopeful.") ans in their slow-moving drive in the 20-mile Kumsong bulge sector that was flattened out by the Red attack last week.

33 Skirmishes in Heat.

The Eighth Army reported 33 skirmishes—mostly small patrol clashes— along the sweltering front during the night. Temperatures soared to almost 100 degrees Monday after a high of 97 Sunday—the hottest day of the year.

Air Force and Navy planes had a big day Sunday. Sabre jets bagged nine Communist MIGs — including their 1000th destruction of the war—and the Navy struck one of its heaviest blows of the war, the services reported.

American Sabre pilots who flew to MIG alley deep in North Korea also damaged three of the Russian-made fighter planes and probably destroyed another, the Air Force said.

The Air Force said the total Red plane bag by Sunday night stood at 1008 compared with Allied combat losses of 108 planes, 56 of them Sabres. The figures were for air-to-air combat.

For the third time in the 37-month war, the Navy reported it sent four carriers on massive aerial blows in support of Allied ground troops.

The Navy said planes with the potential of five Air Force wings swept off from the carriers Lake Champlain, Princeton, Boxer and Philippine Sea in the Sea of Japan, hitting Red gun positions and troops with bombs, napalm and rockets.

DONNELLY SAYS 'LAWLESSNESS' IN COUNTY MUST GO

work has been done by deputies because most are untrained and the staff includes no detective division, vice squad or homicide squad. Lack of a pay increase or promotion system also was cited as a deterrent to good police work.

Some deputies who have engaged in criminal investigations have been removed from those duties to direct traffic or perform office work, they said. Mosley has defended his actions in this respect by saying he is short of manpower and his men must "double in brass."

Contrasts City, County.

In recommending a unified county police system to the County Council, State Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.) contrasted county law enforcement with that in St. Louis.

"Compared to the City of St. Louis we are far behind the times," he said. "We need a good detective bureau. We need a good vice squad. We need a good gambling squad; a good liquor control department. We need a good homicide squad."

He added that the Kefauver Crime Investigating Committee had pointed out that politics and law enforcement definitely do not go together. He said the two are "like pickles and milk," and should be kept at opposite ends of the picture.

TUCKER APPEALS AGAIN TO PUBLIC IN TRUCK STRIKE

dence the arbitrators should consider.

"I say that such a decision is up to the arbitrators—not to me. The Teamsters would have every chance under my proposal to convince the arbitrators of the soundness of their demand that an accountant examine the companies' books and records.

"As far as I can determine, this is the only matter that keeps the Teamsters Union from agreeing to arbitration, and from agreeing to end this strike. It is the only matter that is keeping idle 27,000 workmen who are not involved in this strike. It is the only matter that is preventing our construction industry from starting up again.

"In short, the union is saying that its leaders must determine in advance what facts the arbitrators should obtain from the books. I say the arbitrators—not the union—not the ready mix dealers—shall determine what facts they need.

"The union wants to tell the arbitrators how to arbitrate. I wan to leave that up to the arbitrators. My plan does not merely give the employes 'adequate' safeguards, it guarantees them full, complete safeguards."

Derides TV Debate.

Commenting on a Teamsters' suggestion that negotiations be reopened and televised, the Mayor said," that would furnish us with a good show, but it would not end this strike."

No steps have been taken toward reopening negotiations, which broke down last Friday.

Joseph McCann, international union representative, will present the union position over Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV at 6 p.m. today.

AFL Ironworkers and the Associated General Contractors will vote today on acceptance of a proposed settlement of the ironworkers and general contractors dispute. The 700 ironworkers have been on strike since May 25 in support of a demand for an increase of 25 cents above their former $2.90 an hour wage scale. Details of the settlement have been withheld pending the acceptance vote.

EAST GERMANS DEFY REDS, CROSS LINE FOR FOOD

Niesky trial accompanied by latest Soviet and German Communist threats that all "provocateurs" will be sternly punished. The trial was the first big achievement of Red Hilde Benjamin, who became East German Minister of Justice succeeding the purged Max Fechner.

Another top official was missing today from the higher bracket of East German Communism. The Reds purged a party secretary and also censured a cabinet minister, perhaps as a prelude to firing him.

The Socialist Unity (Communist) party's Politburo fired Adalbert Hengst, a party secretary, and "sharply censured" Bernd Weinberger, Minister for Construction of Transport Vehicles and Machines, according to the official party newspaper, Neues Deutschland.

Hengst and Weinberger were sent to help put down the June riots in Rostock, Baltic port where the Communists had not previously admitted any trouble. Instead of quelling the rioters, Hengst was accused by the Politburo of "surrendering to and concretely supporting the provocateurs." Weinberger was charged with "surrendering to the hostile riot inciters." No details were given.

PRESIDENT FOR REPLACING RFC BY SMALL BUSINESS UNIT

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower today threw his support behind a bill to liquidate the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and set up a new Small Business Administration (SBA).

In a letter to Senator Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, the President said "in general its provisions are in keeping with" the Administration program.

Capehart, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee which wrote the proposed legislation, read the President's letter just after Senator Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, launched an attack on the move to liquidate the RFC.

Langer said that today farmers hold a larger debt than during the depression of the thirties. He said failure to continue lending functions of the RFC would "hurt every little town in the United States."

The new bill would limit individual loans to small businesses to $200,000 each, to be made from a revolving fund of 275,000,000.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP)—President Eisenhower today nominated Ellis O. Briggs, a career diplomat, to be ambassador to Korea.

Briggs has been holding the position under a recess appointment since last August.

Eisenhower also nominated Avra M. Warren of Maryland, a veteran Foreign Service officer, to be ambassador to Turkey. He will succeed George C. McGhee, resigned.

Warren has served as minister to Finland, ambassador to the Dominican Republic, and ambassador to Pakistan.

MAN JAILED FOR ATTEMPT TO FREE SON IN RED PRISON

BERLIN, July 20 (AP)—An East German business man has been sentenced to six years' imprisonment for trying to liberate his 19-year-old son from a Communist political prison in Magdeburg in the June 17 revolt, it was officially announced yesterday.

Erich Blancke, Liberal Democratic party member and chairman of the Magdeburg Handcrafts Co-Operative, was convicted of "inciting Fascist provocations and seriously endangering peace."

The proseeution charged he joined workers in storming the Magdeburg-Sudenburg penitentiary where his son had been serving a sentence since 1951 as an "agent" of the Anti-Communist League of Free Jurists.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DALTON DISMISSES RAYMOND HARRIS

Raymond I. Harris, who was appointed assistant Attorney General June 1 on the staff of Attorney General John M. Dalton, has been dismissed, it was learned today.

A spokesman for the Attorney General's office at Jefferson City explained Harris and others were dismissed July 1 as an economy measure after the Legislature approved a smaller budget for the office than anticipated.

Harris, a lawyer with offices at 705 Olive street, was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for prosecuting attorney of St. Louis county in 1950. He lives at 3418 Pine Grove, Pine Lawn.

RAINS BRING TEXAS FLASH FLOODS BUT DROUTH CONTINUES

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 20 (AP)—Hit-and-miss heavy rains have caused flash floods in Texas in the last week, but a federal soil expert said the state's worst drouth was unbroken.

A similar situation was reported in Oklahoma—good rains, but not enough.

Louis P. Merrill of Fort Worth, United States Soil Conservation Service Regional Director, said today locally torrential downpours have been "immensely helpful." However, he said it will take more general rains over a longer period to end the drouth—in its fourth year in parts of Texas.

Some of the heaviest downpours yesterday drenched parts of West Texas, but the thunderstorms were spotty.

Yesterday's big rains in West Texas included 4.8 inches at Wellington, 5.6 at Pampa, 5 inches at Jericho and 3.74 at Lefors. In contrast, Amarillo in the center of the Panhandle, received only .04 inch.

Oklahoma ranchers reported two weeks of rain, including as much as five inches in some sections Saturday, will revive wilted grass and fill dry stock ponds, but much more rain is needed to restore subsoil moisture.

MINISTER DOESN'T LIKE LONDON FOGS, GETS IOWA CHURCH

FARRAGUT, Ia., June 20 (AP)—A minister of the Episcopal Church in England, who says he doesn't like London's fogs, will take over a Methodist pastorate here next Sunday.

The Rev. Norman I. Powell, pastor of St. Simon's Vicarage, Rockley road, West Kensington, London, is leaving the Church of England to become pastor of the Farragut Methodist Church and the Madison rural church here.

The move to transfer the Rev. Mr. Powell from the Episcopal Church in England to the Methodist Church here started when the Rev. Horace Ireland, pastor of the Griswold (Ia.) Methodist Church, visited England and returned to the West Kensington Church where he once was choir boy.

Mr. Powell told Mr. Ireland he wanted to get out of the London fogs and the English weather and had always wanted to go to America. Mr. Ireland told Methodist Bishop F. Gerald Ensley of Mr. Powell's wish and the transfer was arranged.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SAYS M'CARTHY ISN'T IMPORTANT

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia, July 20 (UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today the methods of Senator Joseph McCarthy in conducting his investigations are so much like those employed by Hitler and Stalin that McCarthy's importance to the American scene has been exaggerated in the minds of Europeans.

She reported that nearly everyone shem et in Yugoslavia asked about McCarthy and that most of them asked whether McCarthyism was endangering freedom in the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she told them shed id not approve of McCarthy, but that shed id not think him important.

MRS. MARTIN RUST ELECTED HEAD OF LEGION AUXILIARY

Mrs. Martin L. Rust of St. Louis was elected president of the women's auxiliary of the Missouri Department, American Legion, yesterday at the state group's annual convention at Joplin. James B. Kerrigan of Kansas City was named state commander.

Cpl. Elmer W. Kuhlmann of the St. Louis Police Department, a member of Legion Post No. 187, was elected department vice commander for the eastern division. Mrs. J. W. Thompson of St. Louis was elected chaplain of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Rust lives at 4123 Penn street and was first vice president of the state auxiliary last year.

LEGION HEAD GOING ON FACT-FINDING TRIP

Lewis K. Gough to Visit Europe—Mission Suggested by Eisenhower.

Lewis K. Gough of Pasadena, Calif., national commander of the American Legion, is going to Europe Aug. 2 on a fact-finding trip suggested by President Eisenhower. Gough made the announcement to reporters today at Hotel Jefferson.

Gough said he would do in Europe what he did in the Far East last year—check on the effectiveness of United States overseas programs, especially psychological warfare. On returning late in August he plans to make his first report at a press conference in St. Louis.

The Legion commander is going to Frankfurt, Wiesbaden, Heidelberg, Bonn and Berlin in Germany, and to Rome, Naples, Paris, Fontainebleu and London. At all those places he has appointments with top American and local officials.

In addition to psychological warfare, Gough expressed keen interest in the Mutual Security and NATO programs.

He inspected Kiel Auditorium and other facilities in St. Louis for the Legion's national convention Aug. 31-Sept. 3, and pronounced them "superb," saying they were adequate for the needs of what he expects to be "the greatest national convention we've ever had."

Convention speakers, he announced, will include Vice President Richard Nixon, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, and Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson. Gough invited Anderson "as a personal privilege," since Gough was a navy officer in World War II.

$54,000,000 SUPPLEMENTAL FUND SOUGHT BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 30 (UP)—President Eisenhower sent to the Senate today supplemental appropriation requests totaling $54,000,000.

The largest item was for $45,000,000 for the Commerce Department to pay operating subsidies to ship owners for the period from 1947 through 1953.

Another request was for $1,500,000 for the Corps of Army Engineers to carry out an agreement with Canada for improving the flow of water at the Cascades on the Goat Island flank of Niagara Falls.

STASSEN DENIES PORTION OF CHINA TRADE REPORT

Disputes McCarthy Group's Charge Allies Are Shipping Strategic Goods to Reds.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —America's allies have stopped selling strategic goods to Red China, Harold E. Stassen says, but are continuing to trade in other items because their economic interests are different from ours.

This was the answer of the foreign aid director yesterday when asked, on a CBS television program (Man of the Week), about a Senate report criticizing western trade with the Chinese Communists.

Terming the China trade issue a "very complex question," Stassen said the United States view is that all such commerce should be barred. But if this country insists on its allies breaking off all trade, he said, some of them would be in a position to ask:

"Where do we trade? How do we stay alive economically?"

The Senate report, issued Saturday night by the investigations subcommittee headed by Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, said that even after three years of the Korean war "trade is not only flourishing but is increasing between many of our allies and China." Non-Communist commerce with Red China has exceeded two billion dollars since the start of the war, it added.

The report rebuked United States officials for not taking a firmer stand against the traffic, and said many items "which our Government considers to be highly strategic" are still being sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Stassen disagreed on this point.

The commerce involves "rice, feathers, and so on," he said. "We have stopped the trade in strategic materials."

"I think we should focus attention on ending the war in Korea," he added. "In that process you have to recognize that other countries have views different from ours."

British Reaffirm Intention to Continue Red Trade.

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—The Foreign Office made it plain today that Britain will go on doing business with Red China in non-strategic goods despite American congressional criticism.

Britain's position was restated at a daily news conference when a spokesman was asked to comment on the McCarthy subcommittee report.

Britain, the spokesman said, has yet to receive a copy of the report. When it arrives it will be studied in detail.

Meantime, he added, the British attitude toward trade with Red China remains as defined by the parliamentary under secretary for foreign affairs, Anthony Nutting, on June 17.

This was that Britain stands by the United Nations resolution of May 18, 1951, which embargoed the supply of strategic goods to China and will continue to do so while the resolution remains in force. As for non-strategic goods, Britain's policy is to develop trade with China and other nations in the Communist orbit.

Figures released by the Board of Trade today showed the volume of British business with Red China in the first five months of 1953 almost trebled the amount of business done in the same period last year.

$650 STOLEN FROM TAVERN

About $650 was stolen yesterday from Dog House Tavern, 4046 Olive street, Martin Hughes, owner, who lives at the same address, reported to police. Hughes said $500 was taken from a safe and the rest from a cash register and a coin machine.

Hughes said he closed the tavern at midnight Saturday and about 5 a.m. discovered a side door had been forced open.

Flashes of Life

Daring Pickpocket.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dominic Paine dropped into the neighborhood police station and joined other spectators watching the busy activities.

Some time later he stepped up to the desk sergeant and registered a complaint. Another member of the audience had picked his pocket. Paine's wallet and $25 were missing.

Forgery in 3 Colors.

BOSTON (AP) — Police are holding a man they said admitted dyeing his hair three different colors to fool some store owners that many times with bogus checks.

Police Capt. George O'Donnell said James Cunningham had stored three bottles of hair dye —red, brown and black—in a subway station locker as part of his check-passing kit.

Cunningham is charged with passing more than 100 worthless checks, with many store owners, O'Donnell said, getting stuck as many as three times.

A Coincidental Wedding.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)— Ann Harper, 17 years old, stood at the bedside of John D. Songer, 19, while the Rev. Thomas Haynes united them in marriage yesterday in Charleston General Hospital.

Ann and John already had obtained a marriage license when he suffered a broken neck in an automobile accident July 11. Coincidence put him in the same hospital where Ann worked as a nurse's aid. And, by coincidence, the minister was there too, as a patient.

Gen. Nam Il's Text: The Allies 'Connive'

TOKYO, July 20 (AP)— Peiping radio today broadcast the following statement by North Korean Gen. Nam Il, senior delegate of the Communist truce team and said it was delivered at Panmunjom Sunday:

IN THE latter half of June 1953, the South Korean government and army of your side, under the control of the United Nations Command, coerced more than 27,000 of the captured personnel of our side into leaving the prisoner-of-war camps and violated the prisoner-of-war agreement, thereby subjecting the signing of the armistice agreement to delay and obstruction, and making the implementation of the terms of the armistice agreement void of assurances. We consider that the United Nations command cannot shed the responsibility for conniving at this disruptive action of the South Korean Government and army for the unfavorable developments which may result from this action with regard to an armistice in Korea.

The disruptive action of the South Korean government and army has given rise to the greatest vigilance of the Korean and Chinese people and of the peace-loving people throughout the world. In order to obtain explicit assurances of the implementation of the terms of the armistice agreeement so that a genuine armistice can be realized in Korea, the korean and Chinese side considers it necessary to have put a series of questions to the United Nations Command side and asked for clarifications.

Questions and U.N. Replies.

In order that the people of the world may know the assurances of your side, we have now grouped together according to the records the answers of your side to the questions which we have raised as follows:

1. With regard to the question of whether or not an armistice in Korea includes the South Korean government and its forces, Gen. Harrison answered on July 11, 1953: "In offering to execute the instruments of the armistice, the United Nations Command has expressed its willingness to bind itself to the terms of the draft armistice agreement." Gen. Harrison said on July 16: "On July 12 I stated 'You are assured that the United Nations Command which includes the Republic of Korea Forces, is prepared to carry out the terms of the armistice.' . . . I again assure you we have received from the Republic of Korea government necessary assurances that it will not obstruct in any manner the implementation of the terms of the draft armistice agreement."

2. With regard to the question of whether the South Korean forces will completely cease fire within 12 hours after the armistice agreement is signed and withdraw two kilometers from the military demarcation line along the entire front within 72 hours after the agreement becomes effective to establish the demilitarized zone, so as to realize a genuine cease-fire and armistice in Korea, Gen. Harrison made the same answer on July 12 and July 15 respectively: "The Republic of Korea forces will cease fire and withdraw."

Action In Case of Violation.

3. With regard to the question of how the United Nations Command side will assure that the South Korean forces will abide by all the related terms of the armistice agreement, Gen. Harrison answered on July 11: "In the event the provisions of the armistice agreement are violated by one side or the other, it is provided in the agreement that the facts will be brought before a military armistice commission. . . . Finally, if the efforts of the armistice commission to insure observance of the armistice terms do not prove effective, and if the security of either side is threatened by failure of the other side to observe the provisions of the armistice, the injured side can, for good and sufficient reasons, abrogate the terms of the armistice and take such military action as it deems essential under the circumstances. The United Nations Command will not give support during any aggressive action of units of the Republic of Korea army in violation of the armistice."

4. With regard to the question of whether the United Nations Command will maintain the state of armistice, if the South Korean forces undertake aggressive action in violation of the armistice agreement after the armistice, and the Korean and Chinese side takes necessary action to resist their aggression in order to safeguard the armistice, Gen. Harrison said on July 13: "The answer is yes."

5. With regard to the question of whether by saying that no support would be given, the United Nations Command means that it will not give any support to South Korea, including support in equipment and supplies, if the South Korean forces undertake aggressive action in violation of the armistice agreement after the armistice and we take necessary action to resist their aggression in order to safeguard the armistice, Gen. Harrison said on July 13: "The answer is yes."

6. With regard to the statement made by the senior delegate of the United Nations Command that "during the post-hostility period," the South Korean Government would work in close collaboration with the United Nations Command to implement the provisions of the draft armistice agreement, the Korean and Chinese side has pointed out that the phrase of qualification "the post-hostility period" is obviously inconsistent with the armistice agreement since there is no time limit on the effectiveness of the armistice agreement, and that this phrase of qualification of the United Nations Command side suggests implicit agreement with Syngman Rhee's indication that he would not obstruct the armistice only for 90 days. Later, on July 13, Gen. Harrison replied: "There is no time limit to the armistice." On July 16, Gen. Harrison stated: "Your side has requested assurance that the Republic of Korea Government and forces will abide by all provisions of the armistice agreement for the entire period when the armistice will be effective and not for a temporary period until a certain time limit. . . . The United Nations Command has clearly and unequivocally stated to you that it is prepared to enter into and abide by all the provisions of that armistice agreement; including Article 62."

7. With regard to the question of whether the United Nations Command will insure the safety of the personnel of the neutral nations and of the Korean and Chinese side, who will be dispatched to areas in South Korea to function in accordance with the armistice agreement and insure facilities for their work, Gen. Harrison replied on July 12: "Any personnel who are authorized to enter the republic of Korea in conformity with the armistice agreement will be protected." On July 13 Gen. Harrison further replied: "The answer is yes. Personnel of the neutral nations supervisory commission, the neutral nations repatriation commission, and of your side, dispatched to the area of our side in accordance with the armistice agreement, will be protected and will be given facilities for their work."

8. With regard to the question of how to insure the safety and operational facilities of the personnel of the neutral nations and the personnel of the Korean and Chinese side, who will go to the areas in South Korea to exercise their functions in accordance with the agreement, Gen. Clark, in his letter of reply dated June 29, 1953, to Marshal Kim Il Sung and Gen. Peng Teh Huai, stated:

"Where necessary, the United Nations Command will, to the limits of its ability, establish military safeguards to insure that the armistice terms are observed." On July 10, Gen. Harrison also stated: "The United Nations Command will furnish police protection to the neutral nations repatriation commission, the neutral nations supervisory commission and the joint Red Cross teams."

Prisoner-of-War Issue.

9. With regard to the question of the forcible retention of more than 27,000 of our captured personnel by the South Korean Government and Army in violation of the prisoner-of-war agreement, our side considers that the United Nations Command bears the unrelievable responsibility for recovering all these personnel. In the above mentioned letter of reply of June 29, Gen. Clark said: "The United Nations Command is continuing its efforts to recover the prisoners of war who have escaped." But Gen. Harrison refused to give further account of this matter.

10. With regard to the question of whether the United Nations Command side is prepared to insure that no further action will be taken to forcibly retain the remaining captured personnel of the Korean and Chinese side, Gen. Harrison answered on July 12: "The remaining prisoners of war will not be released until they are turned over to the neutral nations repatriation commission." On July 15, Gen. Harrison stated: "The remaining captured personnel of your side who refuse to be repatriated direct would be delivered to the neutral nations repatriation commission in accordance with the terms of reference for neutral nations repatriation commission."

The foregoing, except question number 9, are the answers given by the United Nations Command since the resumption of the armistice negotiations concerning the assurances of the implementation of the Korean armistice. We consider that clarifications of these questions are entirely necessary.

Denies 'Effort' by U.N.

However, with regard to the question of recovering the more than 27,000 prisoners of war forcibly retained by the South Korean Government and Army, the United Nations Command has not actually made any effort, nor has it given our side a further account. As to the question of the remaining prisoners of war not to be directly repatriated, despite the repeated definite assurances given by the United Nations Command that these personnel will be delivered to the neutral nations repatriation commission in accordance with the terms of reference for neutral nations repatriation commission, yet the joint communique issued by Mr. (Walter S.) Robertson, representative of the President of the United States, and the South Korean Government openly contends:

"At the end of a specified period, all prisoners desiring to avoid returning to Communist jurisdiction shall be set free in South Korea, or, in the case of non-Communist Chinese, to proceed to the destination chosen by them." Although this joint communique has no binding effect whatsoever in the Korean armistice agreement, yet this proposition of the United States Government and the South Korean Government obviously contradicts paragraph 11 of the terms of reference for neutral nations repatriation commission and is aimed at making preparations in advance for South Korea to further violate the prisoner-of-war agreement after the armistice and forcibly retain our captured personnel. In view of the situation mentioned above, our side cannot consider your side's assurances with regard to the question of prisoners of war as satisfactory, and reserves our right to ask your side to insure the thorough implementation of the prisoner-of-war agreement.

In view of the assurances given by the United Nations Command regarding the question of the implementation of the Korean armistice agreement, and in spite of the fact that that portion of your side's assurances with respect to the prisoner-of-war question is not satisfactory to our side, our side, is nevertheless, prepared to discuss with your side immediately the various preparations prior to the signing of the armistice agreement. The Korean and Chinese side declares: Your side bears at all times the responsibility for recovering all the forcibly retained prisoners of war and giving account to our side. If after the armistice your side is still unable to recover this group of prisoners of war and hand them over to the neutral nations repatriation commission, our side will reserve the right to submit this question for discussion to the political conference provided for in paragraph 60 of the armistice agreement. With regard to the question of handing over all the remaining prisoners of war not for direct repatriation to the neutral nations repatriation commission at locations in Korea to be designated by the detaining side in accordance with the provisions of article 2, paragraph 4 of the terms of reference for neutral nations repatriation commission, our side considers that, in view of the fact that the South Korean government has declared its refusal to admit the Indian forces into its area, this question must be settled before the signing of the armistice, so that all neutral nations concerned as well as the Indian forces may be timely informed and make preparations in advance, and that this question should not be left to be settled by the military armistice commission after the armistice.

It must be pointed out that up to recently the South Korean government and forces have still been openly stating that South Korea is opposed to an armistice and has freedom of action and that the United Nations Command is still adopting the policy of connivance towards the South Korean government and forces. The Korean and Chinese side must hereby declare:

The assurances of the United Nations Command concerning the observation of the terms of the armistice agreement by the South Korean Government and forces will only be accepted at their face value. If such a policy of connivance of the United Nations Command towards the South Korean government and forces continues, it is possible that the implementation of the terms of the Korean armistice agreement will continue to be obstructed, before or after the armistice. This is what must be seriously watched by the governments and people of the nations throughout the world, particularly by the governments and people of the nations concerned on both sides in the Korean conflict. We consider that in case such circumstances arise at any time, the United Nations Command side must, in conformity with the findings of the inspections of the military armistice commission and the neutral nations commissions and with the just demand of the peace-loving people throughout the world, strictly fulfill the solemn assurances already furnished by itself. The Korean and Chinese side will thereupon, in accordance with the armistice agreement and the assurances given by the United Nations Command, have the right to take action against aggression in self defense to safeguard the implementation of the armistice.

The Korean and Chinese side pledges itself to implement all the terms of the armistice agreement, once the Korean armistice agreement is signed and becomes effective. Furthermore, we believe that the peace-loving people throughout the world will certainly give firm support to the Korean armistice so as to facilitate a peaceful settlement of the Korean question and defeat any scheme of the belligerent elements.

Commercial Division B is one of five divisions in Mercantile's Industrial Classification

Back in 1938, a relative of two elderly German refugees brought them in to see us. They had left Germany with little more than their years of experience in their business. They were manufacturers of leather and cloth coats. Now they had hopes of becoming Americans and setting up a business in Saint Louis. After thoroughly reviewing their background, our Division B specialists saw a good chance for their success. Mercantile advanced them their first loan of $1,000. After a few years their reputation became established. The business grew and prospered. Eleven years later, in 1949, this business was liquidated at a handsome figure.

The two old gentlemen retired to California. We lost an account—but not a friend. When they applied for their loan they had little collateral and could speak no English. But at Mercantile they dealt with a man whose knowledge of their business meant more thorough understanding. A man who could properly evaluate their experience and their potential.

The Commercial Loan Department at Mercantile is so organized that each one of five divisions works with a selected group of industries. Since our loan officers concentrate on their assigned fields, they are more familiar with what constitutes sound operation in these industries.

One of Mercantile's specialists knows your business. Why not call him the next time you need a banker's advice. Mercantile Trust Co. is the only bank in Saint Louis . . . and one of the few banks in America . . . which provides this unusually specialized financial service.

5 KILLED, 7 HURT IN AUTO CRASHES IN ST. LOUIS AREA

Boy, 13, Among Those Fatally Injured in Three Traffic Accidents Over Weekend.

Five persons were killed and eight injured in four traffic accidents in the St. Louis area yesterday and Saturday night.

The dead:

Shade Wilson III, 13 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shade Wilson, 6717 Delor street.

Mrs. Estelle Stanton, 57, 5955 Theodosia avenue.

Lloyd E. Mitchell, 32, an assemblyman at the Chevrolet plant here, 3963 West Pine boulevard.

Arthur William Oettle Jr., Hardin, Ill.

Eugene E. Whelan, 17, Waterloo, Ill.

Collision Near Hillsboro.

The Wilson youth and Mrs. Stanton were killed when a northbound vehicle driven by Wilson's brother, Robert, 17, and a machine driven by Louis Stanton, Mrs. Stanton's husband, collided head-on in Missouri Highway 21 near Hillsboro, Jefferson county.

Robert Wilson, who suffered a fractured jaw and deep cuts of the chin, told St. Louis police he dozed momentarily and veered to the wrong side of the road, they said. The three occupants of the Wilson car were returning from Boy Scout camp at Irondale, Mo.

Stanton, a crane operator, suffered fractured ribs and cuts on the left hand. Also injured was Jack Dahlheimer, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dahlheimer, 4575 McCausland avenue, a passenger in the Wilson car. His right leg was broken.

Overturns Near High Ridge.

The state highway patrol said Mitchell was killed early last night on State Highway 30, about two miles west of High Ridge in Jefferson county, when he apparently lost control of his westbound automobile in passing a line of cars.

Mitchell was alone in the automobile, which left the road and turned over several times.

Arthur William Oettle Jr. of Hardin, Ill., was killed last night when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into an abutment of the Illinois river bridge, on the Jersey county approach at Hardin.

Oettle, 21, and his brother, Vernon Eugene Oettle, 18, had made a carburetor adjustment and were testing the vehicle when the accident happened, police said. The brother suffered serious injuries and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton.

In the fourth accident, Whelan was killed late Saturday when the automobile in which he was riding went out of control and turned over four miles east of Valmeyer, Ill.

Minor injuries were suffered by four other Waterloo youths, Steve Burke, 16, Cletus Notter, 16, Harold Kohlmeier, 15, and Sidney S. Norton, 17. Valmeyer is in Monroe county, about 30 miles south of East St. Louis.

BIG VICTORY CLAIMED IN NATIONALIST RAID

Commandos Who Hit Tungshan Said to Have Killed 1000 Reds.

TAIPEH, Formosa, July 20 (AP)—The Chinese Nationalists reported today that their commandos killed more than 1000 Communists and captured several hundred in Thursday's raid on Tungshan island.

The Nationalist Defense Ministry branded as "complete lies and foolish propaganda" the Peiping radio's claims that more than 3000 Nationalist guerrillas were killed in the raid. The Red radio asserted that more than 10,000 "remnant Chiang Kai-shek bandit troops" took part in the attack on Tungshan.

Nationalist losses have not been disclosed.

The Nationalist Defense Minister said the commandos withdrew from the island late Friday after wrecking Communist military installations. The raid was described as the biggest since the Nationalists quit the mainland in 1949.

Tungshan is off the South China coast, between the Red ports of Amoy and Swatow. It has a population of about 80,000. The defense ministry said about 3000 Communist soldiers had been stationed there.

The defense ministry said that the commandos captured the island's largest city, Tungshan, an hour after the landing, and that the civilian population turned out to "welcome and feed" the raiders. Those accounts bolstered confidence in Taipeh that Nationalist forces would be supported by the people in any attempted return to the mainland.

The summer tournament, first national competition to be held by the group here, will begin Aug. 1 at the hotel.

SAFE IN CLEVELAND STADIUM BLOWN OPEN, $40,000 STOLEN

CLEVELAND, July 20 (AP)—Four masked men surprised a guard, blew open a safe in a concessionaire's office at Cleveland Stadium last night and got away with about $40,000.

The money was concession receipts from Cleveland Indians' baseball games on Friday night, Saturday and yesterday afternoon's doubleheader, said Alvin J. Friedlander, stadium manager for the Berlo Vending Co. of Philadelphia.

Police believe the robbers stayed in the stadium after yesterday's games. Two of them rushed guard Stanley Heverly, 62 years old, with drawn pistols.

While one guarded Heverly, the others went to the Berlo office on the second floor and blew open the safe. Then they tied Heverly to a chair and drove away in his car.

FIVE ARE HELD IN THEFT OF SAFE AND AUTOMOBILE

St. Louis police today held five young men in the theft of a safe found yesterday near a stolen automobile on a private road south of Creve Coeur Mill road in St. Louis county.

Deputy sheriffs who found the abandoned machine, stolen from the 4900 block of North Broadway, noted the safe lying nearby. A check, made out to the B. Herder Book Co. store at 1007 Olive street, was found in the grass, leading to discovery that the safe had been taken from the store.

A 19-year-old St. Louis youth, found hiding in weeds not far from the automobile, implicated four others, who were being questioned today. The safe, which was badly battered, apparently had not been opened.

LEAFLET CHARGE 'NONSENSE'

BONN, July 20 (AP) — A United States high commission spokesman yesterday characterized as "nonsense" Russia's charge that American planes have been dropping leaflets on two Soviet military air fields in East Germany.

The Soviet accusation was made by Russian High Commissioner Vladimir Semyenov in a note to United States High Commissioner James B. Conant. The American spokesman said he did not know when Conant will reply. The United States Air Force also denied the accusation.

DUKE OF EDINBURGH THROWN IN POLO GAME BUT RETURNS

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

LONDON, July 20—The Duke of Edinburgh was thrown heavily to the ground yesterday in a polo match at Midhurst, Sussex, but he was only momentarily dazed and after calming his pony, he galloped back into the game to help his Cowdray Park side beat Beechwood, 6 to 1, to win the Junior County Cup.

Thousands of spectators gasped when the Duke, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, collided with another player and was catapulted to the turf. There were audible sighs of relief when he scrambled to his feet and picked up his helmet.

CARDS RALLY AGAINST BUCS AFTER A BAD BEGINNING

Suspended Game Is Won by LaPalme, 6-4; Miller Fails Again

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PITTSBURGH, July 20—The Cardinals spotted Pittsburgh a four-run first inning and then surged back to take the lead this afternoon after losing 6-4, a game that was interrupted yesterday by a Pennsylvania curfew.

In the final four innings of yesterday's suspended contest the Pirates maintained their two-run edge and prevented the Redbirds from gaining on the other National League contenders who split Sunday doubleheaders.

In today's regularly-scheduled contest the Cardinals gave Stu Miller a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but the Pirates bounded right back with four runs in their half, a big frame featured by Toby Atwell's three-run double.

After Miller went out for a second-inning pinch-hitter, Cliff Chambers blanked the Pirates for four innings while the Cardinals peckt d away at Righthander Bob Friend.

Bilko Belts Homer.

Steve Bilko, reinstated to the regular lineup after a three-game rest, came out of his batting slump with his eleventh homer in the fourth and the Redbirds then surged ahead with three runs in the sixth. A two-run triple by Peanuts Lowrey, the master pinch-hitter, capped the rally.

Rip Repulski, who had 13 hits in 20 times at bat, pounded out his third hit, a double, and Bilko's third safety of the game drove in his roommate as the Cardinals scored twice more off reliever Johnny Hetki in the seventh.

Al Brazle, who also pitched in the suspended game, took over on the mound after Chambers went out for Lowrey in the sixth.

The Cards played from the third inning on without Red Schoendienst, who was rested after complaining of a slight recurrence of the abdominal ailment that sidelined him recently.

When the suspended game was resumed in the sixth inning today after having been halted last evening by the 7 o'clock Pennsylvania Sunday curfew, Lefthander Paul LaPalme held the Cardinals to only two more hits and was rewarded with the victory.

Previously off Starter Elroy Face, Repulski had but a three-run homer, his eighth, and Ray Jablonski his thirteenth. However, the Cardinals finished with only seven hits to 12 for the Pirates, who handed Vinegar Bend Mizell his fifth defeat largely on the strength of his own slow fielding and two-run triples by Paul Smith and Danny O'Connell.

Cuba Next for Canada in Zone Davis Cup Series

MONTREAL, July 20 (AP) — Canada, as expected, is in the second round of the North American Zone Davis Cup competition, and tackles Cuba next month.

The Canadians scored a 3-2 decision over Mexico with Lorne Main gaining the deciding point yesterday when he defeated Mario Llamas, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. That gave Canada the required third match in the best-of-five set.

Main, Canada's top player, was the individual star with two of the three singles victories. He also won one match Friday. The Mexicans won the doubles, and Francisco (Pancho) Contreras defeated Henri Rochon, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 in the final singles test, which had no bearing on the outcome.

Belgium Wins European Zone Davis Cup Honors.

COPENHAGEN, July 20 (AP) —Belgium won the European zone Davis Cup tennis competition today when Jackie Brichant beat Denmark's Torben Ulrich 7-5, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3. The victory gave Belgium a 3-1 lead in the series with one singles to go between Kurt Nielsen of Denmark and Belgium's Philippe Washer.

Mele Stopped at 22 Games in Hit Streak; Season's League High

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP) — Outfielder Sam Mele of the Chicago White Sox ran his consecutive hitting streak to 22 games in the opener of the Yanks-Sox doubleheader yesterday for the highest of the year in the American League.

However, after hitting out a single, triple and homer in the first game, Mele went hitless in the nightcap. The previous high was 21 games by Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians.

OPTIMISTIC STANKY SAYS BIRDS AREN'T OUT OF FLAG RACE

PITTSBURGH, July 20—Even before his Cardinals yesterday broke a six-game losing streak that matched the longest suffered in his brief managerial career, Eddie Stanky bravely forecast that the roughed-up Redbirds would contend for the National League pennant.

"We've bounced back before and we'll bounce back again," Stanky insisted. "The Cardinals have a great tradition and I haven't been in the habit of quitting myself."

The little man, rolling with the probable knockout punch delivered at Brooklyn, spoke. his piece before the Cardinals ended their six-game string of defeats at the friendly Forbes Field oasis, 8 to 2.

Earlier this season a five-game Redbird losing streak ended at Pittsburgh, speeding them on to a victory skein of similar length. This time a 14-hit attack against talented Murry Dickson enabled Harvey Haddix to breeze to his eleventh victory against only three defeats in the doubleheader opener twice halted by rain.

While the Pirates' nine hits off the Kitten were singles, the Cardinals blasted Dickson for a double, three triples and two homers. From the time Stan Musial hammered his eleventh homer with one on in the fifth inning, giving the Redbirds a 3-2 lead, Haddix's task was made easier.

Browns Clubbed, 13-4, By Nats After Winning Behind Brecheen, 5-4

By Dent McSkimming

There was a time, back in May, when the Browns had a right to complain when they lost a game. It was usually by one run; maybe a bad break in luck thwarted their efforts. But now they can do a really convincing job of losing.

After beating the Washington Senators, 5-4, in the first game of the Sunday doubleheader at Busch Stadium, the Brownies went down hard, 13-4, in the later game. In the process of winning, the Senators scored 11 runs in the combined third and fourth innings on just seven hits. There were five walks, a hit batsman and one error in the two-inning nightmare.

With help like that, Washington was able to break a losing streak that had reached eight games.

There will be no game here today but the Philadelphia Athletics, who are within reach in sixth place, open a series at the stadium Tuesday night.

Paige Stops Rally in Eighth.

Brecheen, saved in the earlier innings by two thrilling double plays, reached the eighth inning with a 5-1 lead. When Pinch-hitter "Kite" Thomas and Clyde Vollmer hit home runs, the latter with a man on base, to bring the score to 5-4, Manager Marty Marion gave Brecheen a leave of absence and reached for Paige. Old Satch got the side out and pitched a hitless ninth to insure victory.

It was Brecheen's third victory of the season and his best pitching effort since mid-April.

In building up that cushion of runs for The Cat, the Browns made excellent use of their seven hits off Southpaw Al Sima.

Washington took a one-run lead over Brecheen in the first inning on three singles but a Dick Kokos single and Sievers's fifth homer of the season changed that to a 2-1 Brownie lead.

In the third, Kokos, playing in place of Vic Wertz although he was patrolling left field, drew a walk and scored on singles by Sievers and Don Lenhardt. In the fifth, Les Moss's home run made it 4-1, and in the fifth the Browns scored a run on one single.

Rules Deprive Dyck of Hit.

Here Jim Dyck was deprived of a hit when his teammate Sievers failed to tag third as he headed for home. Kokos opened the inning with his second single and reached second when Sima threw late to that bag after fielding Sievers's sacrifice bunt. Lenhardt's walk filled the bases.

Dyck hit a clean single to left field, scoring Kokos, and Sievers also crossed the plate. But when the alert third baseman Eddie Yost called for the ball and stepped on third base, Umpire Froese ruled Sievers out for failing to touch the bag. It was construed as a force out, since first and second bases were occupied, and, under the unfair scoring rules, Dyck was deprived of his hit. In effect, he had forced Sievers at third although his hit was legitimate. Moss and Young went out, so there was no further scoring.

As recounted earlier, Brecheen came out in the eighth with a 5-to-4 victory.

Lou Kretlow had a 2-1 lead, thanks to Sievers's two-run homer in the first inning of the second game, but he lost his stuff in the third. The 11 runs the Senators picked up on seven hits in the third and fourth innings took all the fight out of the Brownies. Sievers drove in another run in the third inning and Dyck homered in the ninth but there was little else to cheer about.

Redlegs Break Club Record for Homers

BROOKLYN, July 20 (UP)—With the season only a little more than half over, the Cincinnati Redlegs have set a new club record for homers.

When big Ted Kluszewski crashed two home runs in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader against the Dodgers, it was the 111th and 112th of the year for the Redlegs. The old club mark of 110 was set in 1938.

However, the Cincinnati musclemen have a long way to go to equal the major-league season record of 221, set by the Giants in 1947.

Cox Stopped; Ran Hit String to 16 Games

BROOKLYN, July 20 (UP)—Skinny Billy Cox of the Dodgers, famed as a "glove man" rather than slugger, has equaled the longest batting streak of the National League season.

Cox wracked two hits in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader against the Redlegs to extend his hitting streak to 16 games, a sum matched this season in the National League only by Duke Snider of the Dodgers and Ted Kluszewski of the Redlegs. However, Cox's streak ended when he went "0-for-3" in the nightcap.

Holtman Upsets Seeded Star in Western Junior

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., July 20—A St. Louisan, Alphonse Holtman, produced the first round's only upset here Monday morning when he defeated Emory Summers of Ceres, Calif., in the Western Junior Tennis singles.

Holtman, unseeded, downed his California rival by scores of 8-5 and 6-4 in a drawn-out match under a humid sun. Summers, who reached the 1952 quarter-finals, was seeded No. 5 this year.

Leigh Strasser of St. Louis was another first-round victor when he downed Raymond Goudret of Evansville, Ind., 6-2, 6-4.

But two other St. Louis Juniors were first-round victims. Calvin Moore was ousted by Pat Arnold of Middletown, O., 6-4, 6-1, and Calvin Bascom bowed to David Haughton of Ft. Pierce, Fla., 8-6, 2-6, 6-3.

Holtman next will face the winner between Tom Shuman, Dayton, O., and Jack Tarr, Lyndon, Ky., while Strasser's upcoming foe is David Harum of Coral Gables, Fla., the tournament's No. 7 seed.

Patience Pays Off.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 20 (AP)—Pete Jordan, a 42-year-old balding Pittsburgh executive who likes to play golf on weekends, won his first major tournament in 22 years today.

Hank Sauer Hurt Again

PHILADELPHIA, July 20 (INS) —Chicago Cubs' outfielder Hank Sauer was out of action again today with a fractured bone in his left hand, his third hand fracture of the 1953 season.

The fractured metacarpal, a bone behind his little finger, was revealed by X-rays taken at Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia yesterday following the team's arrival for a doubleheader. Sauer suffered the injury while fielding Giant Pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm's eighth inning double in New York Saturday.

Sauer will be out about three weeks.

Six Pounds Handicap Didn't Mean a Thing.

THAT six-pound handicap Native Dancer had to concede to his entire Arlington Classic field didn't seem to mean a thing. . . . In winning, the gray Polynesian colt, with bad ankles, raced to a nine-length victory through the Arlington track mud and was nine lengths—108 feet, in handicapping figures — in front of his nearest contenders at the finish. . . . Six pounds, pfui! . . . A mere feather.

* * *

However, "weight can stop a freight train" is the handicapper's answer to the problem of equalizing a race between horses of varying abilities. . . . And we'll be apt to have another test of what weight means to thoroughbred race horses. . . . It will develop in a prospective October race, when Native Dancer and the great four-year-old handicap horse, Tom Fool, may come together in the Sysonby stakes.

* * *

In that event the rivals will meet at weight-for-age which, as between three- and four-year-olds, would mean another six-pound difference—120 and 126 for the Dancer and Tom Fool respectively—each the champion in his respective division. . . . This will be the race of the year and the winner will be termed the "Horse of the Year," if the event takes place.

* * *

We hope the race is run, because late three-year-olds are supposed to be better than four-year-olds, on the weight-for-age scale. . . . And while the six pounds Native Dancer had to concede Saturday seemed to mean little, the same weight difference—in his favor—in October should mean plenty. . . . Maybe enough to make Native Dancer the standout thoroughbred of the year.

* * *

Native Dancer Is Not Yet Citation's Equal.

DOUBTING THOMASES now concede that Native Dancer is beyond question the great horse his trainer Bill Winfrey always contended he would prove to be. . . . That nine-length victory in the one-mile Classic was the key race which unlocked all the previous mystery concerning him. . . : He unquestionably is not only the three-year-old champion and probably the "horse of the year," but the third greatest thoroughbred this country has produced within the memory of living men.

The claim now is being made that he is the equal of Citation, and perhaps of Man O'War. . . But we'd say he'll have to do something more in order to rate with Citation and Big Red. . . . "Ol' Cy" still holds the world record for a mile, 1:33 3-5. . . . He also holds the world record for money won in a single season, $708,430. . . . And likewise, of course, he was one of eight horses to win the Triple Crown—which Native Dancer missed by a nose, when he lost the Derby.

* * *

To tie Cy's single year winning record the Dancer still must win $281,355 more this season. . . . To tie Citation's lifetime winning record, the gray ghost must pick up $327,190 more. . . . If he gets keen competition he may beat Cy's mile record—but that's very dubious. . . . To equal Citation's record through his three-year-old form—27 wins and two defeats—the Dancer must win 12 more consecutive and suffer no defeats, during the remainder of his 1953 campaign.

* * *

IN order to break Citation's records — speed and total earnings — The Dancer will have to be campaigned after this year, in the opinion of turf authorities. . . . And there's a question mark about his ability to do that. . . . "It's his ankles," as we once before mentioned. . . . He was "fired" because of osselets during the winter, but only lightly. . . . They have given him no bother this year, but whether he can stand two years' or even one more year's hard campaigning remains to be seen.

* * *

Citation had to lay off for 14 months because of a firing operation but came back good enough to win the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup in his fourth and final campaign—a $100,000 event that sent him into the "millionaire" stratosphere—the only horse ever to reach that earning total. . . It would be rather weird if Native Dancer should duplicate his feat, under a similar handicap.

* * *

Conceivably it can be done, because of the many $100,000 stakes events to which he will become eligible next year, including the $200,000 Maturity Stakes.

* * *

However, The Dancer is said still to have large knots on his front ankles. . . . Horsemen therefore are skeptical of his ability to carry on through hard campaigns in the future. . . . And it may be that owner Alfred Vanderbilt will retire him to the breeding farm to save him from a breakdown.

Protest on Playing of 8-Year-Old

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 20—Marilyn Herpel, St. Louis, former state champion from Indian Meadows, who was one under women's par with 40-38—78 to take the lead in the qualifying round of the state tournament here today. Another former champion, Mrs. Maxine Johnson of Kansas City, shot 40-39—79.

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 20.—Miss Jean Dobbin of Norwood Hills Country Club, St. Louis, was the early leader in the qualifying round of the Women's State Golf tournament here today with a 79. Scores generally were running high.

The 23-year-old Miss Dobbin, who will "go on the tournament circuit" with this as her first of the season, had two birdies in her round and two bogies. She was putting for birdies on about seven holes on the round, but though putting well, she didn't get a number of them.

But her score was likely to be one of the best in qualifying. Other top-notchers from St. Louis were not quite so good. Mrs. Peggy Hartenbach Ludlow from that city ha d43-39—82 while Mrs. Roy Diefenbach scored 41-42—83.

The defending champion, Marian Gault, who was required to qualify, obviously was well within the qualifying range with 41-40—81.

Judy shot the first nine holes of qualifying in 55 strokes, three-putting a number of greens, and when she made the turn, her group was held up while a decision was made on an objection to continuing play by a member of the child's group.

Mrs. Richard S. Duncan of St. Joseph, president of the Women's State Association, said "it seems the objection was made by another woman from St. Louis. I don't know her name. But the ruling is that all three must continue play in the same group or be disqualified."

The others in Judy's group were Mrs. Donald Reid, St. Louis, and Mrs. Harold Skelly, Kansas City.

Mrs. Reid said she was annoyed by the continual instructions given Judy by her father, Paul Torluemke, and that she wished to continue play separately from the child player.

Jacqueline Herpel, new St. Louis Junior Girls Champion, probably missed qualifying for championship play when she shot 46-45—91. She had an 8 on the par 3 No. 11 where an out-of-bounds shot started her troubles.

Service-Bound Baumann Wins 10th Game, 3-1

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 20 (AP)—Frank Baumann of St. Louis made a success of his farewell appearance before entering the armed forces by pitching Louisville to a 3-1 victory over Toledo yesterday in the first game of an American Association doubleheader.

Scattering 10 hits, including three doubles, Lefty Baumann walked only one and struck out eight in gaining his tenth victory against one defeat. He singled once in three times at bat.

Victorious Yanks Whoop It Up

—United Press Telephoto.

The New York Yankees, definitely back in their familiar winning pattern, were hilarious in their clubhouse after knocking off the challenging White Sox, 6-2 and 3-0, at Chicago. From left, YOGI BERRA, who caught both games and got three hits; VIC RASCHI, with raised fingers signifying that he held the Sox to two hits in the second contest, and HANK BAUER, who hit a home run in the nightcap.

Kellys Beaten By Craigs, 5-4, In 12 Innings

The Hoffmeisters and Plackes clinched Muny baseball pennants yesterday, but the defending city champion Kelly Shamrocks will have to wait at least another week before following suit.

A walk with the bases filled in the twelfth enabled the Craig Club to stop the Kellys' nine-game winning streak, 5-4. Tom Hilke led off with a single. Then Frank Moore, who had relieved Ron Schuttenberg in the ninth, walked Don Schmidt, Jerry Anderson and Bill Hirlinger in order.

George Shaffrey went all the way for the Craigs, allowing eight hits. Manager Art Rinderknecht's Craigs had 11 hits, two apiece by Ron Luer, Schmidt and Anderson.

Kutis, only club with a chance to tie Kellys for the North Side pennant, beat Union Printers, 11-0, with Wilfred Lackey yielding only one hit, a pinch single by Jim Cochran in the eighth.

Hoffmeisters clinched the Heine Meine title with a 7-6 victory over Carondelet Advertisers. Plackes nailed the U. City flag with a 6-4 triumph over Vess.

Ex-M.U. Gridder Hired by DePauw.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., July 20 (UP)—John J. Morton, former Missouri U. and Purdue football star, joined DePauw University's athletic staff today as assistant to football Coach Mike Snavely.

Morton will be line coach in football and head baseball and assistant basketball coach.

Yanks Cool Off White Sox By Winning Two Before Record 54,215 at Chicago

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi, a couple of seasoned veterans who count World Series pay as regular income, have straightened out the New York Yankees.

For the first time in weeks there is no frantic patter of pursuit. Chicago, whipped twice yesterday, is six games back. Cleveland's disastrous collapse has dumped the Indians into fourth place, 11 games behind. Boston, working on a six-game winning streak, is third but still a distant 10½ games to the rear.

There is no change in the National League pattern after three split doubleheaders, with Brooklyn still holding a three-game lead over Milwaukee. Philadelphia remains third, six games behind the Dodgers. The New York Giants, who took over fourth place Saturday, hold a one percentage point edge on St. Louis. Both are seven and a half games behind.

Big news of the day in the National was that somebody finally scored a run on Allan Worthington, the Giants' rookie hotshot. Milwaukee snapped the righthander's scoreless string at 19⅔ innings and beat him 2-1 in the second game of a doubleheader, called after five innings because of darkness. New York had won the first game 7-5 on Hank Thompson's two-run homer in the ninth.

One-Hitter for McDermott.

The story in the American League was the twin job the Yanks did on the White Sox 6-2 and 3-0 before 54,215, a Comiskey Park record crowd.

Lopat copped the first to boost his season record to 10-1 on an eight-hitter. Mickey Mantle's second double keyed a four-run rally in the ninth. Raschi held the Sox to two hits, and Hank Bauer's second-inning homer off Billy Pierce gave Vic all the lead he needed.

The Sox had won 29 of their last 35 games and eight straight before the clutch double bill.

The upstart Boston Red Sox rolled over Cleveland 2-0 and 7-5 to oust the Indians from third place. Maury McDermott gave the Tribe only one hit in eight innings of the first game—Al Smith's single—and homered himself. When he threw two balls to the first hitter in the ninth, Ellis Kinder took over and finished the job in 1-2-3 order.

Ralph Branca, whose famous Brooklyn home run ball will be remembered a long time, won his first American League game for Detroit 13-3 over Philadelphia. The Tigers and A's settled for an 8-8 tie in the second, called after 11 innings because of darkness.

Errors Help Dodgers Split.

Brooklyn came from behind with five runs in the eighth and then staved off a Cincinnati rally for a 7-5 victory and an even break with the troublesome Redlegs. Cincy won the first game 4-1 with Ted Kluszewski's twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth homers. The Dodgers were helped by two costly throwing errors by Roy McMillan and Dobby Adams in the second game's eighth inning.

Thompson's ninth-inning homer backed up Ruben Gomez for a Giant decision over Milwaukee in the wild first game. The bobtailed second game, in which the veteran Max Surkont won his tenth for Milwaukee with a fine two-hitter, goes into the record as an official game.

Philadelphia came up with three in the ninth to top the Chicago Cubs 6-5 after losing the opener 5-3 on home runs by Dee Fondy and Hal Jeffcoat.

Home Run for Arft.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20 (UP) — A three-run homer by Hank Arft, former Brownie, helped Portland beat San Francisco, 8-5, yesterday in a Pacific Coast League game. The Seals won the second game, 1-0.

Bob Marquis, acquired from the Cincinnati Reds, also hit a three-run homer for Portland.

French Horse and Its Ringer Seized in Bet Fraud Attempt

READING, England, July 20 (AP)—Scotland Yard's fraud squad seized two almost identical race horses yesterday in a move to solve a betting mystery which almost cost Britain's bookies 250,000 pounds ($700,000).

One of the horses, the Yard men said, was a fleet French horse which won at Bath Friday —after a whole series of shenanigans—in the name of Francasal.

The win was quite a surprise, the Yard said, because Francasal's previous record indicated that racing was the thing he liked least to do.

The Yard declined to name the other horse, but said it looked like the twin of Francasal.

Also surprising, the Yard men said, was the fact that one half hour before the race someone cut the telephone cable which linked the Bath course with bookies' offices all over Britain.

No sooner was the line cut than bookies from one end of the country to the other were flooded with bets on Francasal then going at 10 to 1.

With the cable cut, the bookies couldn't telephone the track to lay off their bets with the on-course operators, or let the odds-boys know what was happening.

As far as the track knew there was no action on Francasal so the odds stayed at 10 to 1. The bookies claim that if they could have got through on the phone Francasal would have gone off an even money favorite.

The bookies' union—the National Turf Protection Society—called the Francasal win "disturbing" and advised members not to pay off.

Bookmaking is a legal profession in Britain.

The society estimated that £25,000 were bet on Francasal which would have cost the bookies £250,000.

Francasal came from France nine days ago for the Bath races with another two-year-old, Santa Amaro. Both were entered as owned by "M. Williams."

A. Harrison Ford, spokesman for the Turf Protection Society, said last night some of the big bets on Francasal were placed by a London bookmaking office "the registered proprietor of which is Maurice Williams."

East St. Louis Beats Salem, 3-0, in Legion Division Final

Ed Bauza, Al Martz Co-Stars

The East St. Louis American Legion team continued to steamroller its way forward yesterday in a bid for the Illinois title by blanking Salem, 3 to 0, in the Fifth Division final at Nashville.

Ed Bauza hurled the shutout for the East Siders, who have allowed their opponents only one run in four tournament games. Gary Groce pitched a no-hitter Saturday.

Catcher Allan Martz again was the biggest gun for Coach Max Harned's team, getting a single, a double, and a triple in three times at bat. He drove in two of his club's runs. Rich Pawlow also had three hits, including a double.

Bauza, who permitted six hits, pitched out of a jam in the sixth inning when, with two men on and none out, he struck out the side.

East St. Louis will play in the downstate tournament at Canton Saturday and Sunday, and the winner of this meet will play the Chicago area champion for the state crown, and the right to compete in a regional tournament.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

The scorecard that enabled him to win the $2400 first prize in the St. Paul Open golf tournament is studied by SHELLEY MAYFIELD and his wife SALLY. He shot a seven-under-par 65 in Sunday's final, to win the first tournament of his professional career.

Seixas Seeks Fifth Pennsylvania Title After Clay Court Victory

HAVERFORD, Pa., July 20 (UP)—Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas, whose star is at its brightest, follows up his victory in the National Clay Court Tennis tournament today with a try for his fifth men's title in the Pennsylvania State Grass Court championships.

Arriving from River Forest, Ill., where he won the National clay court title yesterday for the first time by trouncing Ham Richardson, Baton Rouge, La., Seixas was scheduled to meet Stewart McCracken, Philadelphia, in a first-round match at the Merion Cricket Club in suburban Haverford this afternoon.

Seixas, now at the top of his game, is top-seeded in the tournament. Tony Trabert, Cincinnati, another key man in the Davis Cup picture, is seeded second.

Should Seixas — making his first appearance in his home city since winning at Wimbledon — win the Pennsylvania title he will retire the trophy, which has to be taken three successive years for permanent possession. He won in 1946, 1947, 1951 and 1952.

The week-long play includes two tournaments — the fifty-fourth annual Pennsylvania State men's tournament and the fifty-third annual Pennsylvania and Eastern States women's championship. They are played concurrently.

The women's tournament will see a new champion crowned, since Wimbledon winner Maureen Connolly, who retired the Pennsylvania and Eastern States trophy last year, will not defend.

In the clay court tournament at River Forest, Seixas proved too much for Richardson and won easily in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Five Horses Destroyed in Fire at Track

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Five thoroughbred horses perished, thirty were rescued and four firemen were overcome by smoke in a spectacular fire which destroyed parts of two barns at the Hawthorne race track yesterday.

Charles Miller, track superintendent, estimated damage at more than $60,000. He said he could not estimate the value of five horses which burned to death.

Ketch Catches Top Honors in Pacific Race

HONOLULU, July 20 (AP)—The tiny ketch Staghound, owned by Ira P. Fulmor of Pasadena, Calif., today was the winner of the 2225-mile California-Hawaii yacht race on a corrected time of 10 days, 23 hours, 42 minutes, 49 seconds.

The Staghound, whose radio was silent the final six days at sea, crossed the finish line last night, 15 days, 11 hours, one minute, 25 seconds out of San Pedro, Calif.

The 39-foot Staghound was the eighteenth yatch in the field of 32 to reach Honolulu. She took over first place in the handicap standings from W. L. Stewart's 67-foot yawl Chubasco, third boat in.

Race officials said that of the 14 boats still at sea, none is expected to reach here before late today.

The Chubasco has clinched first place in the Class A boat division and the Staghound has won the Class C. The 61-foot ketch Chiriqui, owned by Tucker McClure of Los Angeles, was the unofficial winner of Class B.

4 ST. LOUIS AREA MEN WOUNDED IN KOREA

Sgt. Novak.

Pvt. Girolami

East Side Soldier Missing in Action, Defense Department Reports.

Four St. Louis area service men have been wounded in Korea and an East Side soldier has been reported missing in action, the Defense Department announced today.

Sgt. Richard M. Novak, whose brother, Frank Novak, lives at 734 South Newstead avenue, was wounded in the right leg July 3 by artillery fire, relatives have been notified. Sgt. Novak, 38 years old, enlisted in the Army before World War II. His wife and son live in Milwaukee.

Pvt. Robert R. Girolami, son of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Girolami, 4150 Arsenal street, was wounded in the left arm and leg July 9 when a hand grenade exploded near him, his parents were notified.

Girolami, 20 years old, is in a hospital in Japan. A former student at Roosevelt High School, he was an employe of Missouri Pacific Railroad before being drafted last November. He was sent to Korea in May.

Marine Lt. Richard H. Vaught, whose wife, Mrs. Jennie Vaught, lives at 3401 Union boulevard, suffered wounds of the face and hands July 8, when he was struck by shrapnel. The 25-year-old officer, who enlisted in the Marines in 1945, served three years in China and was sent to Korea last January.

His mother, Mrs. Lillian Vaught and his 2-year-old daughter, Lillian Marie, also live at the Union boulevard address. Lt. Vaught was serving with the First Marine Division.

Army Pvt. Hillman W. Johnson, son of Mrs. Annie Bell Johnson, 1705 Lawrence avenue, East St. Louis, also was listed as wounded.

Pvt. Fred G. Voss Jr. of Red Bud, Ill., was reported missing. A graduate of St. John's Lutheran School, Red Bud, he worked on his parents' farm before induction. Pvt. Voss, 19, wrote his family, in a letter dated July 4, that he was in the front lines.

SUSPICIOUS STORY ABOUT HANDCUFFS TURNS OUT TRUE

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 20 (UP)—A 23-year-old veteran recently returned from Korea was to be released in city court today after his hard-to-believe story of a pair of handcuffs was found to be true.

David Hogrewe, who was discharged only Saturday, said he was about to enter a restaurant early Sunday with friends when a man wearing Army lieutenant's bars ran up and slapped the cuffs on him.

"You're under arrest for jaywalking," the "lieutenant" said, and then ran.

Hogrewe decided to eat before doing anything about the cuffs. Two policemen entered the restaurant and were told the odd story by the ex-jet pilot.

While they looked for the "lieutenant," Hogrewe went to police headquarters to get the matter straightened out. There his story was viewed with suspicion and he was locked up. Not until last night, when police arrested Raymond P. Novak, 21 years old, from a description of his automobile given by Hogrewe's friends, was the former soldier's story believed.

Novak was sent to a hospital for observation after it was discovered his automobile was full of spare Army uniforms and he said he handcuffed Hogrewe because he once saw a jaywalker hit by a car and "didn't want it to happen again."

Cool Gelatin Dishes for Hot-Weather Menus

By Dorothy Brainerd

Post-Dispatch Food Editor

WHEN the weather is hot and tempers begin to fray a little around the edges, try serving one of these pretty molded dishes and watch dispositions improve with each cool, flavorful mouthful.

The smooth texture of these chilled gelatin-base dishes, from soups to desserts, makes them "naturals" for hot-weather menus. The pink tomato ham buffet salad, for instance, is as fresh as a May morning; the fruit flavored snows as refreshing as a sudden summer shower.

Aside from such aesthetic appeal (and never underestimate its importance), gelatin dishes have several practical points in their favor. They add good protein nourishment; they save money by stretching vegetables, fruits, meats and seafoods; and they may be prepared well in advance.

Tips on Preparation.

However, they do require some care in preparation if they are to be as attractive as those pictured on this page. Remember that solid ingredients added to the gelatin mixture should be neat and attractive in shape and should complement each other in flavor and texture. The gelatin, too, must blend in both color and flavor with the foods added to it.

Patience is important in making a fancy molded salad; it may be imperfect if you try to hurry the job. First of all, a thin layer of gelatin should be congealed over the entire surface of the mold. Hold the mold in a pan of ice water and tip it from sides to coat the entire surface in a uniform layer. This not only prevents any solid ingredients from coming in contact with the mold, but also adds to the sparkling beauty of the dish when it is unmolded.

If the salad is made in layers the mold must be congealed between each layer and the gelatin that is added should be cool, so that it will not melt the layer and disturb the pattern.

After the salad has congealed, cover with wax paper to prevent it from drying out on the surface. Such a salad will remain in excellent condition overnight, but it loses some of its attractiveness if held longer.

How to Unmold.

All of the care which went into the preparation can be wasted if the salad is not handled with care when unmolded. You will need a thin, sharp-bladed knife, a pan of hot water large enough for the mold to be dipped into it, and a flat plate of the right size to hold the mold and any additional garnish without crowding.

Run the knife around the edge of the mold to a depth of about one-half inch, close to the edge of the container, to loosen the bottom edge. Then dip the mold quickly in hot water to within one-half inch of the top. Shake the mold gently to determine if the salad is loosened; if not, dip it quickly again. It is much wiser to dip quickly two or three times and stop at just the right stage than to leave the mold in the hot water too long the first time and melt the gelatin.

Center the plate over the top of the mold and invert both mold and plate at the same time.

Chicken Cranberry Party Salad.

Chicken layer:
Two envelopes unflavored gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water
Two cans (2½ cups) condensed cream of chicken soup
One-fourth cup mayonnaise
One tablespoon minced parsley

Soften gelatin in water. Heat one-fourth can soup; add gelatin and dissolve. Stir dissolved gelatin into remaining soup; cool. Fold in mayonnaise and parsley. Pour salad into a mold which has been rinsed with cold water; chill until firm.

Cranberry layer:
One one-pound can jellied cranberry sauce
One envelope unflavored gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Soften gelatin in cold water; set in a pan of boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Mix gelatin and cranberry sauce; pour on top of firm chicken layer; continue to chill until cranberry layer is firm. Unmold; serve on greens. Six servings.

Vegetable Ring Salad.

One envelope unflavored gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water
One can (1¼ cups) condensed consomme
Two hard-cooked eggs, sliced or chopped
One cup shredded cabbage
One-fourth cup sliced stuffed olives
Three tablespoons sweet pickle relish
Two tablespoons lemon juice

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat one-fourth can consomme; add gelatin and dissolve. Stir gelatin into remaining consomme; chill until slightly thick. Add remaining ingredients. Rinse a one-quart mold with cold water; pour in salad. Chill until firm; unmold, serve on salad greens. Six servings.

Tomato Ham Buffet Salad.

Two envelopes unflavored gelatin
One and one-fourth cups water
One can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
One three-ounce package cream cheese (or one-half cup cottage cheese)
Two tablespoons lemon juice
One tablespoon grated onion
One-half cup mayonnaise
Two teaspoons prepared mustard
Two cups ground cooked ham

Soften gelatin in one-fourth cup water; set aside. Heat one-fourth can soup; add gelatin and dissolve. Stir dissolved gelatin into remaining soup and one cup water. Add cheese and mix until smooth. Chill until slightly thick; add lemon juice, onion, mayonnaise, mustard and ham. Rinse an eight-inch mold with cold water; pour in mixture and chill until firm. Unmold and

Colorful Molded Salads in Attractive Forms

Gelatin 'Cookery' Yields Soup, Main Dishes, Desserts

Quick jellied madrilene cut into cubes and served with a sour cream garnish is a sure way to whet jaded appetites on humid summer days. Take your choice of the three gelatin loaves for a family luncheon or supper—or serve all three for a party buffet. The one on the left has a creamy cottage cheese layer atop tomato aspic, garnished with ripe olive and pimiento rounds. Diced ham and potato salad layers are combined in the center loaf; the one on the right is made of chopped hard cooked eggs mixed with mayonnaise, diced vegetables and stuffed olives garnished with sliced stuffed olives. The sparkling star-shaped salads, upper left, retain the crisp texture of garden vegetables. Just follow the basic salad recipe on the gelatin envelope and add your favorite vegetables. Attractive design and airiness distinguish the handsome gelatin desserts. The chiffon cream pie, decorated with strawberry halves and blueberries, literally melts on the tip of the tongue. Fruit flavored snows, upper center, are as refreshing as they look. Even the square cake type dessert, chocolate bavarian chiffon, is made with gelatin. The checkerboard top is achieved with chocolate cooky crumbs.

These dessert snows are as light as nature's own snow on a winter branch. Fresh, too, are their tangy fruit flavors including grape, cranberry, orange or lime.

Fruit Flavored Snows.

One-half cup cold water.
One-half cup sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One cup orange or grape juice or bottled cranberry juice cocktail.
One teaspoon grated lemon rind.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Two unbeaten egg whites.

Soften gelatin in cold water in top of double boiler; place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar and salt; stir until sugar is dissolved. Stir in desired fruit juice, lemon rind and lemon juice. To chill quickly, half fill lower part of double boiler with ice cubes and water. Sprinkle with two tablespoons salt. Set upper part of double boiler with gelatin mixture over ice water. Chill until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white, stirring frequently.

Add egg whites; beat until mixture holds its shape. Turn into a six-cup bowl or spoon in dessert glasses; chill until firm. Six to eight servings.

For lime or lemon snow, increase water to one and one-fourth cups, sugar to three-fourths cup and lemon juice to one-fourth cup. Omit other fruit juices.

Chiffon Cream Pie.

One-half cup sugar, divided.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One and one-fourth cups milk.
Two eggs, separated.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.

One cup sliced strawberries.
One-third cup fresh blueberries.

Mix gelatin, one-fourth cup of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Stir in milk. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Beat egg yolks slightly; add small amount hot mixture slowly, stirring rapidly. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats the spoon, about three minutes. Remove from heat; add vanilla.

Chill until mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Beat egg whites until stiff; gradually beat in remaining one-fourth cup sugar. Fold into gelatin mixture and whipped cream.

Turn into baked pie shell; chill until firm. Garnish top of pie with sliced fresh strawberries and blueberries or other fresh fruit in season. Yield: One nine-inch pie.

Chocolate Refrigerator Dessert.

One-fourth cup cold water.
One package semisweet chocolate morsels.
One-half cup sugar, divided.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup milk.
Three eggs, separated.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two-thirds cup icy cold evaporated milk.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One cup chocolate cooky crumbs.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine, melted.

Line bottom of an eight-inch square pan with waxed paper. Soften gelatin in cold water. In top of double boiler, put semisweet chocolate morsels, one-fourth cup of the sugar, salt and milk. Cook over hot water, stirring until blended; beat with rotary beater until smooth.

Beat egg yolks slightly; add small amount hot mixture slowly, stirring rapidly. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat, add gelatin and vanilla; stir until gelatin is dissolved.

Chill until mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Beat egg whites until stiff; gradually add remaining one-fourth cup of the sugar and beat until very stiff.

Whip evaporated milk with lemon juice: Fold in chocolate mixture and beaten egg whites. Turn into prepared pan; chill until firm.

When ready to serve, combine cooky crumbs and butter; toss lightly. To unmold, loosen dessert from sides of pan with tip of paring knife; invert on plate. Remove waxed paper; mark gelatin into nine squares. Top alternate squares and sides of dessert with crumbs.

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—J. B. Priestley, British novelist and playwright, announced today he will marry Mrs. Macquetta Hawkes, 42 years old, a broadcaster on Thursday.

Mrs. Hawkes's husband, a professor at Oxford University, won a divorce from her last month. He charged she was involved with Priestley.

200 INOCULATED WHEN POLIO STRIKES 2 MISSOURI CAMPS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 20 (AP)—About 200 persons, mostly children, were inoculated with gamma globulin yesterday in two Missouri summer camps after a case of polio developed in each camp.

Eighty-three persons were inoculated at the Little Flower camp in Jackson county, where a junior counselor, Mary Ward, 16 years old, of Independence, became ill Saturday.

At Camp Wahkondan, a private camp for boys about 13 miles east of Eldon, 100 campers and about 25 staff members were inoculated. One of the campers, Clifton Cohn, 15, of Kansas City, was stricken with polio Thursday. The camp is owned by Benny Kessler, St. Louis.

Un-American Activities Unit To Hear Matthews on Clergy

Former McCarthy Aid to Be Queried on Charges of Communism Among Protestants.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee voted today to grant a hearing to J. B. Matthews, who resigned from Senator McCarthy's investigating subcommittee under fire because of an article he wrote asserting "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen." Matthews asked to be heard.

Chairman Velde (Rep.), Illinois, told reporters no decision was made as to when Matthews will be called. Probably it will be in October.

Velde said that Matthews will be told his testimony will be limited to the presentation of facts relating to his assertion about Protestant clergymen.

Matthews, who had been hired by McCarthy as executive director of the subcommittee staff, petitioned Velde asking to appear before the House committee so that he could document his statement. Democrats on McCarthy's committee had refused to hear him, asserting such hearing would serve only as a sounding board for attacks on the clergy.

Vote Reported as 6 to 3.

Velde declined to report any details regarding the vote on his committee, but a committee member said the decision was on a 6-3 vote. There are five Republicans and four Democrats on the committee.

Representatives Doyle (Dem.), California, and Frazier (Dem.), Tennessee, were among the members who opposed giving Matthews a chance to be heard.

"He made the charges in a magazine article and that's where he should prove them," Doyle told reporters. "I'm against his using our committee as a forum to air his charges further and get more publicity to increase the sales of a magazine."

Representative Moulder (Dem.), Missouri, the only Democrat who voted in favor of the hearing, told a reporter he did so "because such shotgun charges as Matthews made should be subjected to cross-examination."

Velde's previous suggestions that the group might some time look inito the records of individual clergymen drew some sharp criticism, particularly from the Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxman of Washington, D.C.

The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, chairman of the National Council of Churches' Committee on Maintenance of American Freedom, said yesterday that revisions the committee has announced in its procedure are "a wholly inadequate answer to the need for reform of certain un-American methods and procedures followed . . . in the past."

He wrote Velde that the committee's methods "bear too much resemblance to the technique of J. B. Matthews to satisfy the minds and consciences of a responsible group of clergymen and laymen charged with the duty of studying ways or maintaining our cherished freedoms."

Oxman Defends Church.

Bishop Oxman, appearing on an NBC radio program yesterday, said that "No Protestant nation in the world has been infiltrates by Communism," and he added:

"The Church has done more to combat Communism than all the congressional committees put together."

He appeared with two other Methodist churchmen, Bishop F. Gerald Ensley of Des Moines and Bishop William C. Martin of Dallas.

Bishop Ensley, without naming names, said "political adventurers of our times are playing on the fear in human minds" and that the Church must fight back with an aggressive evangelism which will "make men so afraid of God that they won't be afraid of anything else."

Bishop Martin declared: "Some persons must have a platform on which to stand and when they find an area popular to attack, they ride in on it. Many attacks have been made under auspices when we have had no opportunity to reply."

The Rev. Dr. Emory Stevens Bucke of Boston, in a sermon at Foundry Methodist Church here, said police state methods have become too respectable in this country, and he continued:

"The Church cannot remain silent while former Communists, former ministers, former leftwingers, former fellow travelers, headline hunters and questionable politicians are given immunity while they spew forth half truths and downright falsehoods.

"This does not mean that we object to investigations of the Church or its ministers. We hope that the former minister and former leftwinger, Mr. Matthews, will be given a full opportunity to show how he arrived at his amazing statement . . . ."

Velde's committee has arranged to hear tomorrow from Bishop Oxnam at a televised session. Velde said the hearing was arranged "to afford him the opportunity to come in, as he requested, to explain materials that are in the committee's files on his activities."

Lehman Assails McCarthy Anti-Semitism Charge.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP)—Senator Herbert H. Lehman, a Jew, told the Senate today Senator Joseph R. McCarthy made a "false and ridiculous charge . . . pure demagoguery" in accusing a colleague of anti-Semitism.

McCarthy said in a television broadcast last night that criticism by Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, of his two investigators—Roy M. Cohn and G. David Schine—was "the most flagrant, the most shameful example of anti-Semitism."

Lehman, New York Democrat, came to Monroney's defense and lashed at McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican.

"I, a Jew, sensitive to any religious bias, have been strongly critical of the behavior of these young men and have pointed out that they have been doing our country and the cause of anti-Communism great harm both here and abroad," Lehman told the Senate.

CANADAIR TO GET BILL FOR JACKIE COCHRANE'S FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Canadair, Ltd., of Montreal, will be billed for the use Jacqueline Cochran made of facilities at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., in her recent record-shattering speed runs, an Air Force spokesman said today.

Financier Floyd B. Odlum, husband of Miss Cochran, is head of Atlas Corp. which has a large interest in Canadair.

Aviation Week magazine published a letter this week from Daniel B. Scully, home town not given, asking how the Air Force justified the "large sum of money they are spending on Jacqueline Cochran so that she can fly 700 miles an hour."

Scully identified himself as a former fighter pilot who said he could think of nothing he would rather do than fly a jet—if the Air Force would let him.

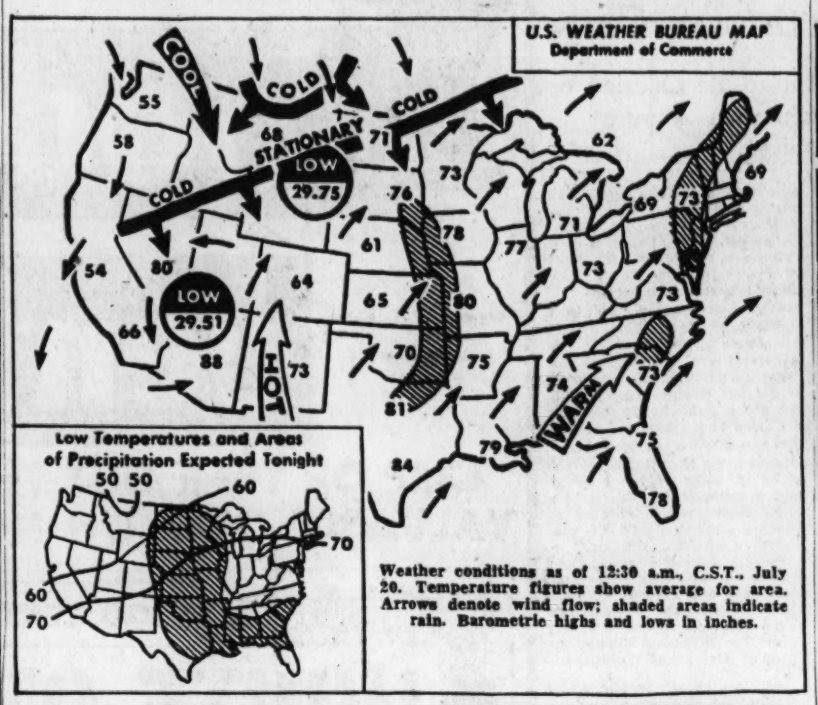
Little Relief in Prospect for City



Weather conditions as of 12:30 a.m., C.S.T., July 20. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain. Barometric highs and lows in inches.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

St. Louisans can expect little relief from hot and humid weather within the next few days, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said. Partly cloudy skies here tonight and tomorrow with likelihood of thundershowers were predicted by the St. Louis Weather Bureau.

A low tomorrow morning of about 75 and an afternoon high in the upper 90s were forecast. Wahlgren said weather probably will be cooler Wednesday night or Thursday if the cold front goes by the St. Louis area.

Last night was the warmest since two weeks ago. The mercury dropped from 83 degrees at 1 a.m. today to 77 at 6 a.m., when the minimum for the day was recorded. Sprinkles of rain fell yesterday in widely scattered areas of the city.

A total of 2.48 inches fell during the 24-hour period ended at 7:30 a.m. today at McAlester, Okla.; 1.09 inches in six hours at Emporia, Kan.; .99 at Fort Smith, Ark., and .98 at Oklahoma City. Widely scattered thundershowers are forecast for tonight for the south Atlantic states and the central part of the nation, as shown by map at left.

Temperatures yesterday in Missouri were in the 90s. They ranged this morning over the state from 67 at Farmington to 77 in downtown St. Louis and over the nation from 40 at Leadville, Colo., to 86 at Yuma, Ariz. Maximums yesterday were from 59 at Tatoosh Island, Wash., to 112 at Thermal and El Centro, Calif.

A low pressure area in the northwest is expected to move tomorrow to eastern North Dakota with a cold front extending through South Dakota into Nevada. A warm front should run from southeastern South Dakota to northern Michigan.

CONDUCT OF POLICE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Confectionery Owner and Several Parents in Magnolia District Complain.

Complaints about Magnolia District police and their handling of alleged rowdyism in front of the Mary Ann Sweet Shop, 2301 South Grand boulevard, will be investigated "in all aspects," Acting Chief of Police Joseph Casey said today.

The investigation was ordered by I. A. Long, police board president, after he received letters from the confectionery co-proprietor, Charles A. Shoenfeld, and also from mothers of several youths arrested in front of the place last Tuesday night.

Five of seven young men arrested were held in Central District holdover all night, two being released on bond.

All seven were discharged on loitering charges after a hearing in Police Judge Robert G. Dowd's court next day, on Police Sgt. Joseph Wehrle's testimony that he hadn't actually seen them loitering, but picked them up on sight based on general complaints about rowdyism in front of the confectionery.

Shoenfeld, in his letter to Long, complained that police had been unco-operative in helping keep order, arresting youths who were legitimately on the premises while failing to arrest the real rowdies. He attributed the lack of co-operation to his own unwillingness to give beat policemen free refreshments.

At the police court hearing several of the boys said they had been at the nearby South Side Y.M.C.A. and stopped in front of the confectionery to chat with friends.

Wehrle walked from across the street and telephoned from a police box at the corner, holding the boys there until a police patrol arrived, the youths asserted.

Parents of the youths held overnight reported they were not notified of the arrests until 3 a.m. and then, on going to Central District, were told the boys were being held for police court and could not be released.

Capt. Otto Selle of Magnolia District said he had instructed officers to keep a close watch on the intersection—Grand and Shenandoah avenue — after receiving many complaints of rowdyism. He denied his men had sought free refreshments at the place.

3 YOUNG KIDNAPERS STUMBLE ONTO POSSE AND SURRENDER

NEVADA CITY, Calif., July 20 (AP)—Two youthful robbers and their redhaired girl friend, dirty, tattered and bruised after a night of struggling through the Sierra woods with the deputy sheriff they kidnaped Saturday, stumbled onto an armed posse yesterday and surrendered meekly, their hostage unharmed.

Booked here for investigation of kidnaping, they turned out to be three 18-year-olds who started a law-breaking spree Tuesday when they boarded a bus in San Francisco "just to take a ride."

That "ride," officers said, included kidnaping, armed robbery, car theft and an escape from two deputies. The three gave their names as June Charlotte Wood, San Francisco; John Pearman, Vallejo, and Albert Gervais, Oakland.

AMERICA'S LARGEST SELLING SUGARS

Our pledge has led to

a $2,432,000 Refund to Our Customers

Laclede Gas Company is starting today to mail to its customers checks totaling $2,432,000. The payments are each customer's share in a refund resulting from a reduction in the cost of natural gas several years ago. Final details of the method of making the refund were approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission on June 3, 1953.

At our request, virtually all of our customers—general, space heating, commercial, firm industrial, etc.—will share in the refund in proportion to the amount of gas they used during the above-mentioned period according to a formula approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission. The only exception will be eight large firms that bought gas from us on an off-peak basis; their participation in the refund was disallowed by the Commission.

The price we charge our customers for natural gas is based principally on the price we must pay for that gas to the pipeline company that supplies us.

Back in 1944, when there were indications the Federal Power Commission might order a reduction in the pipeline cost of natural gas, Laclede publicly pledged that it would pass along to its customers the savings it would realize from a rate reduction from the pipeline company.

Laclede at that time voluntarily applied to the Missouri Public Service Commission for authority to pass along any price reduction to its customers. The Commission approved the request.

On January 21, 1946, a decrease in the rates charged Laclede by the pipeline company was ordered by the Federal Power Commission The pipeline company appealed the order to the courts. The pipeline litigation was ended with agreement on a reduced rate schedule, and Laclede's rates to you were decreased accordingly on November 1, 1948.

However, during the period of the pipeline litigation, Laclede set aside in a special fund the money representing the difference between the old and the new rates.

It is the money set aside by Laclede during that period that is being returned to our customers, now that final details of the method of distribution have been approved.

LIFE OF CHURCHILL

Young Churchill Successful In Mixing Military, Writing Career; Emerges as a Hero

Receives National Acclaim for Exploits in Boer War—Aware of His Limited Education, He Fills Gap by Reading—Takes Seat in House of Commons at 26.

Following is a second of a series of excerpts from "Winston Churchill—the Era and the Man," a new biography, presented by special arrangement with Harper & Brothers, New York.

By VIRGINIA COWLES

(Copyright, 1953.)

IN JANUARY 1895, Lord Randolph Churchill died. Winston was just 20. The young man's future was now a large question mark, for Lord Randolph had left his two sons no money.

Two months after Lord Randolph's death, Winston was gazetted to the Fourth Queen's Own Hussars.

Lt. Churchill looked at the world of 1895 with dismay. The only place any fighting was going on was in Cuba and one could scarcely call a minor rebellion a war.

However, he was soon to have a few months' leave and a rebellion was better than nothing. He persuaded Reginald Barnes, a fellow subaltern, to undertake the journey with him. Winston saw the editor of the (London) "Graphic" and succeeded in securing a commission for a series of dispatches at five pounds apiece. The two young Hussars set out for Cuba.

The Spanish authorities welcomed the two subalterns with surprising cordiality. On the morning of Winston's twenty-first birthday a few bullets whistled over his head while he was camped near the roadside eating a chicken sandwich. This was his baptism of fire. The next evening another volley rang out while he and a group of officers were dressing after a swim, and later that night several more bullets lodged themselves in the thatch of the hut in which he was sleeping.

Column Attacks.

On the third day the Spanish column attacked. Churchill and Barnes were mounted, advanced with the general and his staff, and sat with dignity while bullets whistled around them. The next day the Englishmen left for England.

Churchill and Barnes felt that they had had their money's worth. Besides all the fun, they had learned to appreciate Havana cigars, rum cocktails, and the merits of the Spanish siesta.

* * *

They reached England to learn that the Fourth Hussars were soon to sail for India. The regiment was stationed at Bangalore.

Winston enjoyed his new existence to the full. Nevertheless he found himself beginning to think of more serious things, and for the first time he became painfully aware of the fact that he was badly educated. He wrote to his mother and asked her to send him some books.

He read Plato's "Republic," Aristotle on politics, Schopenhauer on pessimism, Malthus on population, Darwin's "Origin of Species."

But the books that interested him most, first for their wonderful English and second for their thrilling subject matter, were Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and Macaulay's "History of England." He read and re-read these two authors, revelling in their wonderful, rolling phrases and memorizing long passages by heart. He tried to pattern his own writing on their style and subconsciously even began to phrase his thoughts in their polished language.

(Churchill went out of his way to see action in India, leaving his regiment to go to the "front" of local engagements as a war correspondent, and in the process began to build a reputation, writing books as well as newspaper dispatches. He got himself sent to Egypt as a war correspondent, with Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener.

(He even wrote a novel, "Savrola" in this period, though he later said he had "consistently urged my friends to abstain from reading it." He resigned from the Army.)

Working-Class Area.

In June 1899, he was invited to fight a by-election as Conservative candidate for Oldham, a great Lancashire working-class constituency. Winston was beaten at the poll. He returned to London to find himself the subject of general abuse, for even the newspapers were running articles saying that in the future the Conservatives must not send raw young candidates to fight working-class areas.

* * *

The wheel of fortune holds many surprises. Six months after his defeat at Oldham, Churchill's name was ringing throughout England. He was a national hero.

The scene of his triumph was the South African war. In those days Winston was not so much concerned with the rights and wrongs of an issue as with getting himself to the front. The (London) "Morning Post" asked him to travel to South Africa as their special correspondent.

On the voyage Winston made friends with a young man, J. B. Atkins, who was correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian." They decided to try to get through to Ladysmith, where they believed the heaviest fighting would take place. However, when they reached the town of Estcourt they found that Ladysmith had been cut off.

Then the general in command decided to aid the cavalry by sending an armored train. Capt. Haldane was put in charge of the operation and asked Winston if he would like to accompany him. The latter enthusiastically said yes.

Boer Guns Open Fire.

The train traveled along the line 14 miles to Chieveley. Then two Boer guns opened fire. A few minutes later there was a crash and an explosion as the driver ran into a shell. Capt. Haldane asked Winston to see what damage had been done.

Winston decided that it might be possible to free the engine. With bullets rattling against the steel plates and shrapnel bursting overhead he called for volunteers, and was heard to say: "Keep cool, men."

At last the engine was free. Capt. Haldane decided that the engine should carry all the wounded, who were now numerous, and that the rest of the men should march home on foot. Winston climbed into the engine cab. Shells were still bursting overhead and the driver could not seem to keep the pace slow enough. Gradually the infantry were being left behind.

Winston forced the engine driver to stop. He jumped out and ran back to find Capt. Haldane. Suddenly he saw two figures in plain clothes on the line and realized they were Boers.

Now he was confronted by a horseman galloping furiously toward him with a rifle in his hand. The rider pulled up and took aim. Winston reached for his pistol but it was not there. He had taken it off when he was trying to free the engine. The Boer looked along the sights of his gun. There was nothing for Winston to do but surrender.

* * *

His fellow journalists received glowing accounts of his action, which they sent home and which made front page news—the "Daily Telegraph" printed Reuter's dispatch which said: "Mr. Winston Churchill's bravery and coolness is described as magnificent."

Winston was a prisoner but he was also well on the way to being a national figure.

Winston relates the story of his escape in "My Early Life." He strolled out and secreted himself in the lavatory. He had not been there long before the sentry turned his back. He drew himself up and jumped over the wall.

He learned that newspapers all over Europe had been speculating on his fortunes and that the Boers had advertised his escape widely, offering 25 pounds for his capture dead or alive.

Thrilling Life.

For the next few months Winston served in the South African Light Horse which he nicknamed the Cockyollybirds because of the plumes which they wore in their slouch hats. It was a thrilling life, riding half the day and talking over a camp fire at night. He took part in the fighting at Spion Kop and in the relief of Ladysmith.

By the summer the British had captured Johannesburg and Pretoria. It looked as though the war would soon come to a close. The Conservative Government decided to take advantage of the public exuberance. In September the "khaki election" was held and Winston hurried back to Oldham to try his luck.

Oldham gave Winston a spectacular welcome. He fought his election campaign in a blaze of national publicity. Polling day came and when the count was finally announced Winston had won by 230 votes.

Just 26 years old he returned to London eagerly and joyously to take his seat in the House of Commons.

TOMORROW: Winston Churchill in two world wars.

Friends Say He Wants to Bring Big 4 Together in Conference.

By K. C. THALER

LONDON, July 20 (UP).

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL has a burning ambition to crown his long and illustrious career with one more feat.

Associates said Churchill wants to "settle the world." He wants to get the Russians to sit down at the same table with Americans, British and French and change the course of history in one dazzling stroke.

His final goal is negotiation of the hot and cold wars and putting the world on the path of peace for several generations.

Because of this burning desire, Churchill hopes to return to his desk at No. 10 Downing street within a month. He is rapidly recovering from his illness.

But Churchill's physicians have advised him to take it easy for still another month, even though they have permitted him to have more visitors and do slightly more work.

Doctors' Warning.

The physicians have cautioned Churchill to be patient for one big reason—because of his age. He is 78.

"He continues to do a fair amount of work," a friend said last night. "But he is getting a real rest cure compared to his normal duties at No. 10."

Churchill's associates say he suffered a slight collapse two days after his June 23 dinner engagement with Italian Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi at the Downing street residence.

His speech was blurred temporarily, his friends said, but he recovered quickly. There were no signs of any mental affliction at any time, his associates said.

Disappointment for Premier.

Churchill was deeply disappointed at the postponement of the Bermuda conference because he believed it would lead to top level talks with the Kremlin on settlement of international tensions.

He was also disappointed over results of the recent Washington decisions to have a four-power conference with Russia only on Germany and Austria.

What he had planned was a round-table conference to discuss the world and how to put it right for a long time to come.

ROMANIA, FINLAND SIGN PACT

LONDON, July 20 (UP)—Romania and Finland have signed a new trade pact, the Moscow radio announced yesterday.

The agreement covers trade between the two countries until December 1954, the radio said. Romania will export oil products, chemicals and wood products to Finland in return for machinery, cast iron pipe and other goods.

Balloons Over Iron Curtain

Balloons Could Carry American Food to East Germany — Previous Friendship Messages Cited.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1953.)

WASHINGTON.

TWO years ago this summer, Harold Stassen, the present Mutual Security Administrator, C. D. Jackson, now Ike's psychological warfare expert, and I were on the German border sending propaganda balloons into Czechoslovakia.

Large weather balloons, about four feet in diameter, stuffed with 3000 leaflets each, were filled with hydrogen in a wheat field three miles from the border and floated up and into Czechoslovakia. The winds — which in the upper altitudes always blow from west to east — we had timed in advance to drop the balloons into the chief cities of Prague and Pilsen between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m., when people were going to work.

By picking our nights and working most of the night with German civilian crews inflating the balloons, we were able to launch about 2000 balloons a night; and over a two-week period we put about 11,000,000 leaflets into Czechoslovakia.

The leaflets carried merely a message of friendship. They told the Czechoslovak people that the people of the western world had not forgotten them and expressed the hope that eventually they might be free.

However, the Czechoslovak experiment seemed to hit pay dirt. The American embassy reported that the freedom-friendship leaflets were tacked up on telegraph poles, put in the baggage racks of passenger trains, mimeographed, even surreptitiously placed on Communist bulletin boards.

It seems to me the time has come to go one step further and send food packages into East Germany by balloon. Many parts of East Germany are, of course, some distance from Berlin. Furthermore, the effect would be electrifying.

Food balloons are not too difficult to launch. The four-foot balloons we sent over Czechoslovakia carried three and a half pounds. A 10-12 foot balloon can carry 10 pounds.

These packages sent over the border into East Germany by balloon at the rate of 1000 a night, each balloon containing a message, not from the United States Government, but from the American people, would have a tremendous effect on people behind the Iron Curtain.

Briton Hints Solution Is Near on Suez

Says Britain Will Recognize Egypt's Sovereignty Over Area.

By L. S. CHAKALES

CAIRO, July 20 (AP)

BRITAIN'S top negotiator indicated last night that the long British-Egyptian dispute over control of the Suez canal zone may be approaching a solution.

Lt. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, arriving here from London and Washington, declared Britain would recognize full and unqualified Egyptian sovereignty over the area where Britain's giant Middle East defense base is situated.

He told reporters at the airport, however, that it would be unfair to expect an immediate solution and declined to say whether he brought any specific new proposals with him.

Robertson attended the diplomatic meetings in Washington last week at which the future of Suez was one of the questions discussed.

A clear British declaration that it recognizes Egyptian sovereignty over the base area is identified here as American-inspired. This Egyptian demand was one of the reasons earlier British-Egyptian talks broke down.

Robertson said settlement of the dispute would benefit both Britain and Egypt.

He made his statement shortly after Middle East experts here foreshadowed a reopening of negotiations because of a recent British-Libyan base agreement.

The Libyan agreement called for British payment of a subsidy for the privilege of maintaining air bases and forces in Libya. This would give the British a place to send 80,000 troops now stationed in the Suez canal zone. The agreement still must be approved by the Libyan Government.

Official's Bold Decisions Served U.S. in East German Uprisings

By STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1953.)

THIS is the story of how one man served the interests of the United States, and how he was rewarded. The man is Gordon Ewing, State Department foreign service officer, class three.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon of last June 16, Ewing was attending a routine administrative meeting at the headquarters of RIAS, American radio station in Berlin, of which he is political program director. The meeting was interrupted by the news that the workers in the Soviet sector of Berlin were staging a march on the Communist government buildings. From this moment on, for 36 hours, Ewing had to make, in his own responsibility, a whole series of hair-raising decisions.

The RIAS station is the official arm of the United States Government. Overt officially inspired American provocation to rebellion by the Germans against the Soviet occupying power might give the Russians precisely the pretext they need to move on Berlin or to make the worst possible trouble for the American Government in some other way.

Bold Decision.

At 4:30, a workers' delegation from the Soviet sector appeared at the RIAS station and requested permission to broadcast an appeal for a general strike, to begin the next morning.

This was Ewing's first big decision. His superiors in Bonn and Washington did not know the situation, and there was no time to consult them anyway. A weakling might have ignored the workers' request, a fool might have given the Soviets a valid pretext for counteraction. Ewing did neither. He simply included, on the regular hourly broadcast, a deadpan straight news account of the visit of the strike leaders, and of their plans for a strike.

Then Dr. Eberhard Schultz, star radio commentator for RIAS, a former Communist with a passionate hatred for Communism, submitted to Ewing the text of a brilliant commentary on events in East Berlin, ending on the note, "We hope we shall have more such victories to report." Again, a more timid man would have killed the Schultz commentary. Ewing told Schultz to go ahead.

Meanwhile, all over East Germany, little groups of angry men were clustered around radios, listening as RIAS described the events of the day and the strike leaders' plans for the next day. On June 17, in city after city, the workers rose, chased the Communist functionaries out of their offices and took over the cities.

Great Cost to Russians.

The incredible could not have happened without the RIAS broadcasts which Ewing approved. By nightfall on June 17 Soviet troops and tanks had crushed the uprising, but at a terrible cost to the Soviet Union for which Lavrenty Beria was to pay dearly.

By the morning of June 18, Ewing was tired, for he had not slept for two full days and the kind of lonely courage he had displayed is peculiarly exhausting. Before leaving his office for a rest, he glanced at the American wire service reports.

Gordon Ewing, he read, was one of the "pro-Communists" whom Senator Joseph R. McCarthy meant to "take by the scruff of the neck." So also, McCarthy hinted darkly, was Ewing's wife.

In a way, Ewing was not entirely surprised. McCarthy obviously meant to use Schultz to prove his charge that RIAS was "run by Communists." As for Ewing's pretty wife, her stepfather had taken her as a child on a trip to Russia—and this was grist for the McCarthy mill.

Ewing still exists in a sort of limbo. McCarthy had not yet made good his threat, and the State Department has not yet offered Ewing up to McCarthy as a sacrifice. But the pattern is familiar. These days, the United States has an odd way of rewarding courage and intelligence in those who serve the interests of the United States.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Now and Forever

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Three times recently letters have appeared here from persons who confidently assumed that no "loyal American" would object to: (a) swearing he was not nor ever had been a Communist; (b) the burning of books, and (c) having his telephone wire tapped.

And now, heaven forbid, we have someone who not only thinks he should have someone to pick his movies, but actually wants someone to do his thinking for him.

Are these the Americans in whom Jefferson, Washington and the others had so much faith? What kind of Americans are these—people from whom it is not even necessary to wrest freedom, but who just can't give it away fast enough?

For the record, let me state that I, a loyal American whose closest contact with Communists is reading about them, not only object vehemently and violently, but resent to the very core, the complacent assupmtion that all loyal American citizens will sit idly by while their freedoms are snatched from under their very noses.

What does freedom mean to such people? The freedom to accept only what is granted them? Don't they know that the Communist party is still legal in the United States? And the reason is that our people still have the right to free choice.

Americans do not want anything rammed down their throats. They want to make their own choices. And it is only when all varieties of things are available that they can make the best choice. Isn't that freedom?

The Germans were bitterly condemned for permitting a government to whittle away their freedoms, and then for allowing a system to be rammed down their throats. Why did it happen? Because nobody objected.

Now and forever, when I read, I will choose what I will read. I will reject what I choose to reject. And I give to no man the right to do it for me.

SUSTAINED OBJECTION.

Going Up

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is impossible to figure a straight percentage on the increases in rents when the controls are lifted. While there are many that need no increase there are a lot that have been so low that owners must make a large increase to bring their return in line.

I do not intend to give some family rent at below my cost just so they can afford luxuries at my expense, which has been the case in many instances in the last 10 years.

GOUGING LANDLORD.

Until the Motives Are Clear

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There is something ironic, if not amusing in the current McCarthy-vs.-Protestant minister difficulty.

A study of history discloses that every man who either helped or hurt humanity, has had a "call." He felt it was his duty to do as he did, and was able to convince other people to follow him.

If totalitarian thought control is not McCarthy's goal, just what is it? If totalitarian Communism, Nazism or Fascism were not the goals of Lenin, Hitler and Mussolini, what were they?

If world Judaism, world Catholicism, world Protestantism, or world Mohammedanism are not the goals of each of these religions, just what are they?

There is certainly a totalitarian drive in man, an urgent sense toward unity. Is it not then imperative that we be extremely slow-footed in following the leadership of any self-appointed man who justifies his actions by the word "duty," until his motives and his goal can be clearly seen? Centralia, Mo.

Tragically Inconsistent?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The recent trade agreement between the Chinese Reds and the British merchants is another display of decadence in the British foreign policy. I have tried my best to rationalize Great Britain's conduct in this matter, but there is just no logical justification, except that they are interested in bolstering their fallen economy regardless of the consequences.

SOREN A. TOROIAN.

Doing as Joe Does?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You were justly up in arms over the attitude of the nation's thimble-size Torquemada's ideas as to what books should appear on the shelves of our overseas libraries.

But your attitude in joining in the clamoring for the firing of J. B. Matthews because of something he, as an author, wrote for an American magazine, is hardly consistent with your alarms over censorship.

The Post-Dispatch or any individual may disagree as violently as they wish with Mr. Matthews's statements, whether they be about 7000 Protestant clergymen, or the same amount of Catholic priests or Jewish rabbis. But to demand the man's job, or his head, is merely doing as McCarthy does.

From where I sit, it appears that Senator McCarthy may now pride himself in knowing that his enemies are following his line. L.T.K.

The Tables Are Turning

A lot of things could be said about Senator McCarthy's performance on "Meet the Press" Sunday. A few will suffice.

First, it shows another switch in the Wisconsin inquisitor's attitude toward the three Democratic members who resigned in a body from his investigating subcommittee. Last week he was virtually on his knees in a nine-page letter, begging them to come back. "The door is open for your return," he had written. "We shall be happy to consider your suggestions and recommendations," and so on and on.

But now that Senators Symington of Missouri, McClellan of Arkansas and Jackson of Washington, have said they will not return, Senator McCarthy puts the blame on them for grounding his subcommittee. He finds them motivated by politics and points out that Senator McClellan is up for re-election next year. He ignores the issue of whether he, McCarthy, should have the sole power to hire and fire, an authority which was never voted to Senator McClellan when he was chairman in the last Congress.

Second, Senator McCarthy acts hurt because the Democrats did not give him ample time to get out of the hole in which he found himself when he "learned" that his choice for committee chief of staff, J. B. Matthews, had written a wholesale attack on the Protestant clergy. He says he did not know about the article and asked for a day or two in which to work out the problem.

Why did he not know about it? Congressman Kit Clardy of Michigan, a Republican member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, knew all about the article. He put the entire text in the Congressional Record for June 27 (pages A4114-4117). Moreover Congressman Clardy introduced it with these words:

> Mr. Speaker, an article entitled "Reds in Our Churches," and written by Dr. J. B. Matthews, appears in the July issue of American Mercury. It is a well-documented discussion of the subject. I commend it to all the members.

Yet Senator McCarthy in his letter of July 15 to Senators Symington, McClellan and Jackson, wrote: "I was totally unaware of the controversial article written by Dr. Matthews. It first came to my attention the first week of this month"!

It takes little imagining to hear the scorn which Senator McCarthy would be heaping on some State Department official who did not know about a magazine article as embarrassing to a member of the diplomatic service. What is a high crime and misdemeanor for someone else is for Senator McCarthy just a human slip that should be smoothed over without headlines.

Those who heard Senator McCarthy on "Meet the Press" heard a very different voice and saw a very different manner from the noise and defiance that went out from the Republican national convention on a national hookup just a year ago. Now he is quiet and contrite and ready for the most part to let bygones be bygones.

Why? Because the tables are turning. The American people are standing up to him. It began when James Wechsler, editor of The New York Post, matched him and more in that star chamber hearing designed to intimidate all the press. It has continued as a distinguished trio—a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and a Protestant minister—in effect denounced McCarthy's use of J. B. Matthews. It aroused at last President Eisenhower, who answered the telegram of the clergymen with a denunciation of this injection of the religious issue.

The Reducing Minister

A peculiar fate is befalling Vyacheslav A. Malyshev, one of the Russian top officials to suffer demotion since the removal of Lavrenti P. Beria. Mr. Malyshev is carrying less weight with the Malenkov-Molotov Government not only figuratively but literally. From the post of Minister of Heavy Machinery he was demoted to the newly-created post of Minister of Medium Machinery. Next, in the inexorable march of Soviet logic, we do not doubt that Mr. Malyshev will be removed from his new post and appointed Minister of Light Machinery—which would be, as we like to say in our quaint capitalist jargon, the beginning of the end.

Man of Words and Worth

When the news came from England last week that Hilaire Belloc was dead, it evoked at once the feeling that another giant had passed from a scene not frequently graced by giants these latter days. Maybe Winston Churchill is the last one surviving. This linking of Belloc and Churchill has been made before, notably by Mr. Douglas Jerrold, who said that, for all their differences, "they resemble each other closely in that impression of massive aloofness which they imply but never express. Grave or gay, pontifical or ribald, these are great men."

Belloc seems too much neglected over here. Perhaps this Frenchman-turned-English is overshadowed by that Irishman-turned-English, G. B. Shaw, and by H. G. Wells and Maurice Baring and G. K. Chesterton, those writers of the earlier decades of the century with whom he consorted and disputed. But he was by no means the least of them.

Belloc called himself a "hack." He did not like having to write for a living. (Your writer's pleasure is almost never in the work but in the result.) Yet the term has no application to the quality of his work. True, he wrote more than a hundred books: novels, histories of kings and battles and works sociological and political, and who knows how many pieces not preserved in bindings. So it is a wonder that one can dip in here, there, or anywhere and always find the writing good.

Maybe he was at his best not when dealing with Marlborough or Richelieu, William the Conqueror or Cromwell, Milton or Catherine the Great, but rather when he was conducting a conversation with a cat, or admiring charts as he sailed his little ship, or praising a great wind or a good wine, or speaking up for the crooked streets of old cities:

> I have no quarrel . . . with great avenues and lines of palaces; but why should they pull down my nest beyond the river—Straw Street and Rat Street and all those winding belts round the little Church of St. Julien the Poor, where they say Dante studied and where Danton in the madness of his grief dug up his dead love from the earth on his returning from the wars? . . . I bear in mind certain streets of the town where I served as a soldier. There was the Street of the Three Little Heaps of Wheat, the Street of the Trumpeting Moor, the Street of the False Heart, and an exceedingly pleasant street called "Who Grumbles at It?" and another short one called "The Street of the Devil in his Haste," and many others.

"Let us love one another and laugh," Belloc urged. "Let us suffer absurdities, for that is only to suffer one another." Often he had the mind of a controversialist, but always he had the heart of a very kindly man. And so, in his own verses:

> O my companion, O my sister Sleep,

Setback for Allied Unity

The House Rules Committee has cleared for floor action the Simpson bill to put more obstacles in the way of reciprocal trade negotiations, and so endeth another lesson for the Eisenhower Administration.

The Simpson bill may not pass, but its approval by the Republican House leadership is a straw in the wind that will surely make a deep impression wherever dollar-short peoples abroad are hoping for expanded trade with the United States.

Originally the Simpson restrictions were a part of his bill to extend the already crippled Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for one year. The Administration, after promising to help stack the Tariff Commission and to negotiate no new trade agreements during that year, persuaded Congressman Simpson to incorporate his proposals in a separate bill. If the intent was to bury them, that aim has now been foiled by the House Republican leadership itself.

Thus the result of the Administration's partisan approach to foreign trade—an approach which put party "unity" above real achievement in reducing trade barriers—is worse than nothing. The Administration comes out with a temporary extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act which it has already reduced to meaningless, plus a clear warning to our Allies that the Republican leadership in Congress is still the high-tariff, narrow-visioned body it always was.

In an extremely able discussion of foreign trade Senator Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota recently told the Senate: "If the President puts priority upon unity on foreign policy in the Republican party, he is going to have to sacrifice unity of the Western nations of the world."

There is every evidence that strong presidential leadership for a liberal trade policy could win if it rallied the supporters of such a policy in both parties. The President has chosen instead to try to compromise with the high-tariff branch of his own party. The result is a stalemate on trade policy which can only shake the confidence of our allies who know that if they cannot expand their trade with us, they will have to trade elsewhere to live.

A Rule Against Irresponsibles

Senator Monroney of Oklahoma offers a sensible proposal in the interest of making congressional investigations more responsible than some of them have been in the past. He suggests that the Senate revise its rules so that it can stop an investigation at any time.

As co-author of the congressional reorganization act of 1945, Mr. Monroney speaks from an exceptional knowledge of the subject. Whether the authority he proposes would be used more than sparsely is doubtful. The Senate has shown an extreme reluctance to exercise the authority which makes it the judge of the fitness of its members, for instance.

There would always be, however, the possibility that the rule would be used. Possessing the authority might make Senators more open to arguments that they should recognize their own responsibility to curb irresponsibles. At the least, every Senator, all the way up to the best, would stand on special notice that he bears personal responsibility for investigative abuses by every other Senator, all the way down to the worst.

Investigating committees are the creatures of the whole chamber. When they are guilty of offenses, the whole chamber is party to the offense. Senator Monroney's proposed change in the rules would make that moral fact a parliamentary reality.

Bulge in the Debt

A sudden bulge has carried the national debt to its highest peacetime peak and within $3,000,000,000 of the $275,000,000,000 limit fixed by Congress. This development presents the White House with the possibility of having to ask Congress to increase the debt limit before adjourning at the end of this month.

Such a request would be politically embarrassing for an Administration which came into office on pledges of economy and budget balancing. No doubt it will be avoided if that is at all possible. And if it cannot be avoided, the request is sure to be surrounded by a great many words about the "inheritance" from the preceding administration.

If the politics of the matter could be forgotten it would be generally agreed that the important thing is not the size of the debt limit fixed by Congress, but the size of the debt. The debt is rising now, and will continue to rise for some time, because Government expenditures are exceeding revenues.

The deficit for the year which ended July 1 was largely the responsibility of the Truman Administration, but the deficit for the current year will be the responsibility of the Eisenhower Administration. And the reason for that deficit is that the Eisenhower Administration has been unable to cut its expenditures to fit the cloth of its receipts. It has extended the excess profits tax, but what it gains there will be more than lost by its decision not to extend present individual income tax rates. On the outgo side, it has cut long-range appropriations for future spending more than immediate spending.

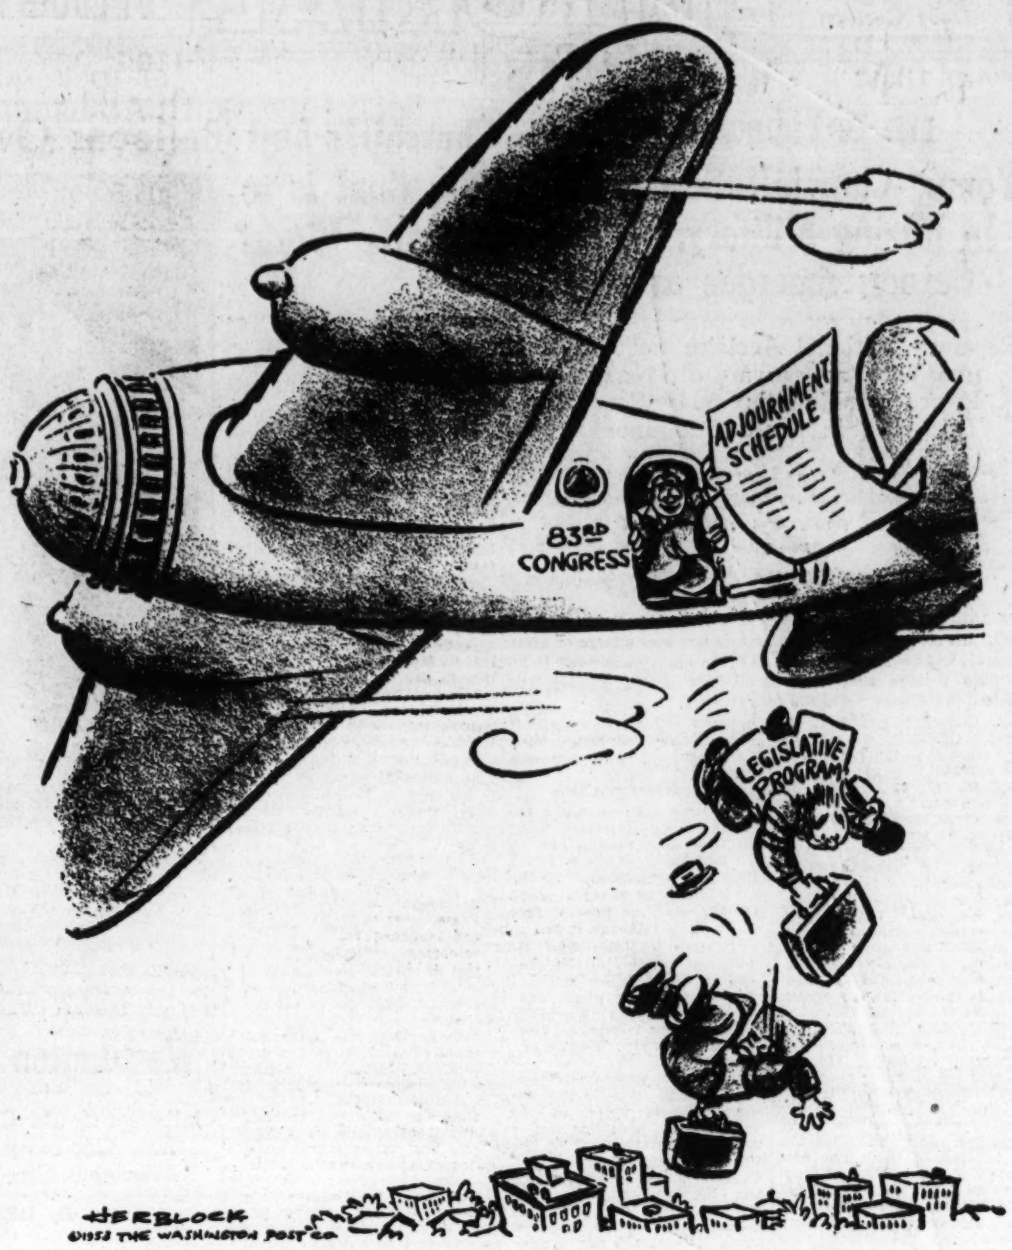
Wrong Way to Change Policy

Legislation by rider, the practice of attaching a policy-making amendment to an appropriations bill, is a bad practice. It is especially so in the provision attached to the defense appropriations bill by Senator Maybank of South Carolina.

The Maybank rider would end the established policy of giving special consideration to areas of unemployment in the awarding of defense contracts. It is being resisted by Senator Ferguson of Michigan and Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts. Mr. Saltonstall claims that it is directly aimed against New England.

Of course defense orders should be filled at the lowest possible cost to the taxpayer and with the utmost efficiency and speed for the benefit of the armed services. Nobody is going to argue with Senator Maybank about that. But if contracts of this kind can produce the incidental benefit of providing work for the workless, so much the better. And firms hard up for business generally can be counted on to be among the low bidders for any contract.

This policy has been in force since 1947, and Senator Saltonstall argues that it has not cost the taxpayers any extra money. If he is wrong, Senator Maybank should demonstrate the fact. And if a change in policy is indicated, it should be adopted on its own merits and not as a rider to a vital money bill.



"SORRY, FOLKS, BUT I CAN MAKE BETTER TIME THIS WAY"
—From The Washington Post.

The Case for County Police

The Mirror of Public Opinion

St. Louis county legislator urges County Council to prepare to establish unified police force; cites examples of other urban counties; says sheriff system is obsolescent, variety of police forces too expensive; proposes new plan be drawn by next year.

Remarks by State Representative A. Clifford Jones to the St. Louis County Council

After State Representative A. Clifford Jones made the following recommendation to the County Council for plans for a unified county police system, the council adopted a resolution by Councilman James A. Singer to establish a 10-member citizens' commission to formulate such plans.

I believe when we consider police and law enforcement we should look ahead 10 or 20 years. Just as you are developing a metropolitan mass transportation plan now, we will have a metropolitan police force for the city and county. How do we come about it? What should we do in St. Louis county to help solve the existing problems?

The solution is brought about in either one of two ways. First, either men of vision and foresight and planning take the initiative or the stench will become so great you will have a rise of indignation on behalf of the public. If you have indignation on behalf of the people, a proposal will be hastily conceived and it will not work out.

A. Clifford Jones

As a matter of foresight we should consider a planned unified police force for the county. A unified police department might be patterned along lines of the St. Louis Police Department, but above all it should be free of political interference.

An Expensive Division

It has been estimated that the population in St. Louis county by 1960 will be 600,000 people. When we get to be that large we will be a large metropolitan area. The sheriff system is satisfactory in rural counties but is outmoded in urban counties such as St. Louis county.

What policing facilities do we have now? The sheriff has over-all jurisdiction. Then there are the constables and 94 municipalities, some of which have police forces and some do not. You have a non-local force and you couldn't use your maximum force at any one time. It is very expensive to maintain all these systems.

Nassau county, New York, was in exactly the same position, with the sheriff's force, the men of the municipalities and the constables. Nassau county took the police powers away from the sheriff and municipalities and constables and started a unified police program to solve the problem.

Compared to the City

Adjoining Nassau county is Westchester county, New York. Westchester has a population of one-half million people. Within the boundaries of Westchester county are four cities, 24 villages and 10 unincorporated towns. It had a sheriff and two park commissions. Its crime rate was far above that of any other American city, until it solved its problem by establishing a unified police force.

The cost of maintaining all of these various police forces is tremendous. That is the same situation you have here. We need a centralized police.

Compared to the city of St. Louis we are far behind the times. We need a good detective bureau. We need a good vice squad. We need a good gambling squad; a good liquor control department. We need a good traffic squad. We need a good homicide squad.

The Kefauver Commission has very definitely pointed out that politics and law enforcement do not go together. They should be kept at the opposite ends of the picture. They are like pickles and milk.

Before you can formulate a unified program it is essential to any plan in St. Louis county to have the absolute co-operation of the county municipalities in establishing a completely non-political police department. Some of the municipalities in St. Louis county have excellent police forces and have men who are very capable. I speak especially of Clayton, University City and Richmond Heights.

You may say, why does a legislator poke his nose into what seems to be a problem of the County Council? This is a problem for the General Assembly in Jefferson City. The County Charter in Article III, Section 22, subsection 20 grants you legislative power pertaining to police in the unincorporated areas only, so that if anything more is to be accomplished it must be through the State Legislature.

Questions to Be Answered

A lot of people will say let's develop a plan and present it at a special session of the Legislature, but it is not that easy. If you set up a Police Commission, a unified Police Commission, what kind of a commission do you want? Do you want to make it a bipartisan board? Do you want to make it appointed by the Governor with the supervisor of the county as an ex-officio member, or do you want to have the board appointed locally?

Now you have another problem. How is this legislation to be set up? Is it to be set up for the unincorporated area with permissive power for the county municipalities to either come in or stay out? Or would you make it mandatory that the municipalities join into a uniform plan by a certain date? And then too you have a city with its own charter, University City. There is a question whether we have the power in the Legislature to override what they do in such a city.

Time to Begin Work

You have the problem of the redefinition of the duties of the sheriff. We can see that the sheriff system is satisfactory for smaller counties but certainly not in St. Louis county. What part of the sheriff's duties should he still retain? Or do you want to maintain the county sheriff's office as an arm of the Circuit Court, stripped of all police powers?

Then you have a problem of what to do with your present police forces of the various municipalities that want to come into this system. We have some excellent police forces. How do we integrate them into the plan?

In law enforcement it is essential that you have a merit system. You couldn't very well operate a sound system without a merit system and you must have a training program.

Now, how do you plan to get the money for such a program? It can be paid out of general revenue, or a tax can be earmarked for that purpose, or a tax could apply only to the areas that come into the plan. Paying for the system out of general revenue would be a greater inducement to the municipalities to come in.

You must think about the problems and come up with some kind of plan. Therefore, I recommend to the council that in order to work out details that you create a 10-man commission to study legislation.

ST. LOUIS HAD TROUBLE TOO.

Bill Vaughan in The Kansas City Star.

East Berlin has more general discontent against authority than any city we can think of since St. Louis at the time the Cardinals traded Dizzy Dean.

A Corner Store Is People

THE CORNER STORE, by Albert Idell. (Doubleday, 287 pgs., $3.50.)

The corner store in Philadelphia, run by the Chester Joneses, was not particularly important as corner stores go, but it had a meaning of its own because the Joneses had a meaning of their own. Gert Cameron, one of the neighborhood girls, summed it up:

"I think running a store is very important if it sets an example for a neighborhood, like the Joneses have done. . . . A store isn't just a place with windows, and things inside for sale. It's a lot more. It's the people who run it for one thing."

Albert Idell

Gert's mother had died a long time ago. When she thought of a mother it was Mrs. Jones, always being nice to her.

When it came to being nice to people Mr. Jones was even better than Mrs. Jones, and the young Joneses, who helped in the store were part and parcel of the young life of the community. So the corner store was really the Joneses, more concerned about giving themselves to their neighbors than about gaining by their neighbors' trade.

A lot of things happened there at the Joneses' store at the corner of Camac and McClellan, for it was the focal center of the community, and around it revolved not only the complacencies but the conflicts, sometimes tragic, of a cross section of American life.

There was conflict even among the Joneses, or differences at least, because the five childdren were divergent in their interests and temperaments; but it never could be said of Papa Jones and Mamma Jones that in fulfilling their neighborhood obligations they failed in their family relationships. Much of the charm of the story derives from the wisdom with which Pop and Mom held the reins on the young Joneses pulling in different directions.

As if the running of the store and the handling of their children was not enough, the elder Joneses had to go and practically adopt Mary Plotko, whose home life was unhappy, and out of that grew the romance without which the story of the store would not be complete.

George, the eldest son, was a long time finding out that he loved Mary Plotko; he was the business man among the children and was preoccupied with ambitions. It took a crisis to show him that there was something more important than running a store of his own.

All in all, it is good to have met the Joneses and to have become one of the regular customers of their corner store. F. A. BEHYMER.

Stella of the Bobby-Sox Set

LOOK TO THE NEW MOON, by Frances Fullerton Neilson. (Abelard Press, 254 pgs., $2.50.)

The ambitions, hopes, heartbreaks of an adolescent, the whole metamorphosis of girl into woman, make favorite reading for the teen-age girl. Frances Fullerton Neilson has added to her long list of books for young people the story of Stella, a girl from a small Georgia farm village, who begins to reach maturity in the course of a visit to relatives at an exclusive Maine coast resort.

Except for the few realistic glimpses of life in a Southern rural community, "Look to the New Moon" is cut neatly to a pattern, but girls will enjoy Stella with her honesty, her shyness in facing the more or less sophisticated crowd to which her cousin belongs and her success in finally achieving the approval and friendship of the Crowd.

Congress Giving Away Public Wealth

WASHINGTON.

IT IS SAID OFTEN THESE DAYS, and accurately, that the new Republican Congress has done very little in its first session. Criticism is varied. One complaint, voiced by all sorts, from individuals to big business, is about failure to cut taxes. Another series of complaints has to do with failure to do anything whatever along the social welfare line—expansion of Social Security, housing, education. That comes from rank and file and organized labor.

Dewey

But it is misleading to stop there. The real truth is that a great deal has been done, or at least started, both by the new Administration and its Congress about which you have been told very little—and purposely so, because it is not to your best interest. This is the real story. It is the plot cooked up by the big-boys-in-the-back-room while the Salvation Army is beating the drum out front, so to speak. And what a hurry these fellows are to get it all done before you catch on!

Part of the story, which happened behind doors closed to you, is the way all sorts of social welfare functions have been reduced in scope, and expansion programs for low-cost public power, including REA, crippled—by just cutting off appropriations for them, an old trick, easily hidden.

Dewey Protests Give-Away.

You caught a fleeting glimpse of another part of the plot a few days ago — fleeting because it took the House only part of an afternoon to slip through the Miller-Dondero bill handing over Niagara Falls power development to five big utility companies for their profit and the consumer's loss. They put that trick over fast—and all while Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was here watching, helplessly.

He wasn't able to stop that in his visit here. But now he and leaders of his Administration have signed a protest against this give-away, and dispatched it here to the Senate Public Works Committee, which has the House bill before it.

Saying that the Miller-Dondero bill will cost consumers in New York $25,000,000 a year, Gov. Dewey and his leaders besought passage, instead, of the Becker-Ives bill authorizing New York State to develop Niagara power through its long-established state power authority.

Victory for Utilities.

Privately Gov. Dewey is quite frank that if the utilities get their hands on Niagara, the Democrats will, simultaneously, get their hands on a juicy political issue in New York. Folks in New York are educated about such "grabs."

Niagara would be a great psychological victory, as well as real victory for the utilities. If they get it, that would reverse the trend of nearly half a century, and justify the hundreds of thousands of dollars they have spent in propaganda to confuse the public about the power issue.

Niagara is strategically important. But the real big prize now being sought by the private utilities is Hell's Canyon out along the Idaho - Oregon boundary, which the previous Administration proposed to develop by a high dam across the Snake river that would utilize the potentials of this river to the fullest, including power so badly needed in Oregon and Washington.

If the Idaho Power Co., a Maine corporation, can get its hands on this and spoil the full utilization of the river by the series of small dams it proposes, then the private utilities are back in the saddle again, and our dream of developing our resources for the people is gone, and the country handed over to the power trust. That's what Hell's Canyon means—and to you and you and you, wherever you live.

McKay Withdraws Plan.

Everything here is being greased for the delivery. Secretary of Interior McKay pulled the plug two months ago by withdrawing Interior Department support for government development.

The very next day the Idaho Power Co. submitted a new application to the Federal Power Commission, though it had submitted others from time to time for seven years, with continuous modifications and requests for postponement.

The FPC, now nicely "packed" for the job, is trying to rush this new application through over the protest of proponents of government development as previously planned.

The latter represent the people of the Northwest who are overwhelmingly for Government development. Because the Interior Department no longer represents the public interest, folks in the Northwest quickly organized the National Hell's Canyon Association.

President Doesn't Know.

So far they haven't got many resources to pit against the high-priced legal and engineering talent marshaled against them. They can't look to Secretary McKay, as they could to his two predecessors, nor can they look to the President. The cards are stacked against them.

Sometimes one wishes that our President knew more about our country, more about its people, more about the struggles to develop our resources in the public interest, as, for example, did the late Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

Norris saw it all so clear and plain when he used to stand up in the Senate and say that the water came from the air that belongs to all of us to make the rivers which belong to all of us which should be developed for the benefit of all of us. It's really that simple.

U.S. EMBASSY OWNER IN BRITAIN DIES

Duke of Westminster One of Richest Men in the World.

LOCH MORE, Scotland, July 20 (AP)—Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second Duke of Westminster, landlord of the American embassy in London and one of the world's richest men, died last night at his estate here. He was 74 years old.

Soldier, sportsman and are connoisseur, he was one of the last of Britain's artistocrats to live in the grand style. Once he took 200 dogs and 20 horses to France fo ra boar hunt. He was a horse racer, fisherman, yachtsman and polo player.

He was married four times and divorced three times. He left no male heir and his title passes to a cousin, Capt. Robert Arthur Grosvenor, 58.

Estimates of the duke's wealth ranged from $56,000,000 to $180,000,000. His real estate holdings in London along—600 acres in fashionable Grosvenor and Belgrave Squares and Pimlico—were valued at £20,000,000 (then $80,000,000) before World War II and land values have increased since then.

He once was the owner of Gainsborough's painting, "The Blue Boy."

In addition to his London holdings, he had vast estates in Scotland, Wales and other parts of England. Only two years ago he bought an island in the Fraser river in British Columbia and launched an industrial development project estimated to cost $176,000,000.

He served as an aide to Field Marshal Lord Roberts in the Boer war. In World War I he was among the first to make successful use of armored cars in desert warfare. He raised the unit himself and took it roaring across North Africa. The duke and his men rescued British prisoners of the Senussi tribe. For this he received the Distinguished Service Order.

The Westminster wealth dates back to 1676, when Thomas Grosvenor, son of a Cheshire Yeoman, came to London and married a scrivener's daughter, Mary Davies. He rdowry consisted of 600 acres of farm land which was to become a fashionable residential area in London.

The duke's holding outside London included 30,000 acres in Flintshire and Cheshire and 85,000 acres in Scotland.

One of the duke's biggest deals was selling a long lease on part of Grosvenor Square to the United States Government. The price never was made public but one estimate was £1,000,000 ($2,800,000).

The American Embassy and other United States Government buildings are located there. During the war the duke rented his town house to American service men for £1 ($2.80) a year for a club.

The Westminster estates have had only three owners in the last 150 years—a fact which accounts for their immense size in heavily taxed Britain. Death duties now due are expected to provide the British treasury with one of its greatest windfalls for years.

Nixon Says He Hopes Boys Of All Lands Can Hold Jamboree

JAMBOREE CITY, Calif., July 20 (AP)—A day of outdoor worship and relaxation at the third national Boy Scout Jamboree was climaxed last night by a massed convocation at which Vice President Richard Nixon expressed hope that boys of every nation will some day gather in a great and peaceful world jamboree.

"Representatives from 16 other countries are sitting with you right now," said Nixon in a talk to some 45,000 scouts and leaders seated on the dark slope of a hill at the hub of this 3000-acre ranch campsite. "Let us work toward the day when Boy Scout leaders from all the nations of the world may be able to gather together with you at just such an annual jamboree.

"The cause of brotherhood and peace on this earth could receive no greater testimonial."

Paying tribute to the Boy Scouts as an organization "dedicated to the cause of peace in this world, and not war," Nixon added:

"You have been taught and have learned yourselves what it is to be free—free to speak your own minds, to live your own lives and to worship God in your own way.

"You have not been instilled with the shameful arrogance of the dictatorial mind, the intense hatred and bigotry of those of your contemporaries behind the Iron Curtain who since boyhood have been taught to hate and to fear and to be contemptuous.

"That is why it is far more important than perhaps you realize that this extraordinary organization of yours has dedicated itself to the spiritual side of your growth as well as the physical and that the establishment of peace is the concern of every one of you."

Nixon arrived by plane from Washington Saturday night. He slept in a tent in the headquarters area and arose at 6:30 a.m. to tour the sprawling jamboree camp.

He emerged from his tent and shaved in the open air—attired in a pair of shorts.

During his tour he took part in the favorite jamboree sport of swapping. He traded his engraved fountain pen to Bill Van Vliet of Pasadena for a rattlesnake skin. Jack Muirgead of Dubois, Pa., swapped an "Indian scalp" for the Vice President's business card with autograph.

Economic Dip or Boom Ahead for U.S.?

WASHINGTON.

THE ARGUMENT over the advantages of sound money versus the hazards of a higher interest rate goes on. Naturally it has political overtones with the Democrats traditionally against high interest rates, the bankers and that old bugaboo, "Wall Street."

In actual fact there has been not the slightest sign of any slackening of the high prosperity of the past four or five years. Most of the indicators are higher than they were a year ago. Nevertheless some doubters begin to see that cloud no bigger than a man's hands on the economic horizon. They say that the increased interest rate is checking the development by private enterprise of projects previously planned. As one instance, they cite the proposed $96,000,000 bridge across the Straits of Mackinac, linking Lake Michigan and Lake Huron.

Keyserling

Federal Reserve Board Acts.

This was to have been built by a commission headed by former Senator Prentiss Brown who is now chairman of the board of the Detroit Edison Co.

After a hassle with the Michigan Legislature, approval was obtained for a toll bridge about four and a half miles long—the longest bridge over deep water in the world.

Last fall, Brown and the other commissioners had been confident they could market the necessary bonds paying 3¾ per cent interest. They undertook to form a syndicate of investors this spring at just the time that Treasury action resulted in raising all interest rates. Efforts to get large investors to underwrite the bonds at 4¼ per cent did not succeed.

Keyserling Is Optimistic.

But the optimists say that while some projects, and even large projects, may have been postponed or even called off, this has little to do with the total picture which is one of phenomenal prosperity. They point out that when the higher interest rate showed signs of pinching a bit, the Federal Reserve Board acted to offset any slackening.

The board weeks ago took the rather drastic step of authorizing Federal Reserve banks to reduce their reserve requirements which increases the money supply.

The line up of the optimists and the doubters is interesting to say the least. On the side of the optimists is Leon Keyserling who as chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers was a whipping boy for conservatives who denounced the economic policy of the previous Administration.

Keyserling, scourged as a New Dealer and a planner, said in a radio talk shortly after President Eisenhower took over, that 1953 would be a year of greater prosperity than '52.

Record Rate of Investment.

He is now convinced that the situation is even more sound than when he made his prophecy. Keyserling interprets the policy of the Eisenhower Administration as conforming to the full employment program which he advocated as head of the Economic Council.

Thus he points out that when the gears were shifted from a hard money policy to a relaxation of the money stringency, through the move of the Federal Reserve board unemployment was at the lowest peacetime level in history.

Federal Reserve's index of production was higher than ever. The rate of investment in plant and equipment by business firms continues at a record level. Individual companies are going in for extraordinary expansion.

Reading the Tea Leaves.

In view of all this, Optimist Keyserling predicts that the average of the indices of prosperity will be greater for the period 1954-56 than for the period of high prosperity 1951-53.

Among the doubters has been Elder Statesman Bernard M. Baruch. He was skeptical of breaking the three per cent rate for Government bonds.

Reading the economic tea leaves has long been a favorite indoor sport, not only with professional prognosticators but with politicians. Prentiss Brown says his commission will try again in September to get together a syndicate to finance the big bridge. It may well be that by that time all doubts will have been brushed aside.

TOBIN DIES, TRUMAN'S SECRETARY OF LABOR

Suffers Heart Attack—Former President 'Shocked' at Loss.

SCITUATE, Mass., July 20 (AP)—Former Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, one-time Democratic Governor of Massachusetts and twice Mayor of Boston, died of a heart attack in the arms of his wife at their summer home here yesterday. He was 52 years old.

He had played 18 holes of golf the day before and had retired shortly before midnight in apparent good health and spirits.

He arose about 7 a.m. and made three telephone calls. One of the calls was to the operator to learn the correct time. It was 7:28.

As it was more than an hour before he was scheduled to attend Sunday mass, Mr. Tobin returned to bed and was reading the newspaper in his pajamas when he suddenly gasped for breath.

His wife ran to his side and put her arms around him to hold him in an upright position.

Refused to Slow Pace.

Medical examiner Herbert N. Blanchard pronounced death due to a heart attack. Members of Mr. Tobin's family said the ex-Secretary of Labor had known for 18 months that he suffered a heart condition but never slowed his pace.

It was reported in Boston, where Mr. Tobin lived, that he planned to run as Democratic candidate for Governor in next year's election.

In Independence, Mo., former President Harry Truman said:

"He was a fine man. He was a great Mayor of Boston, a great Governor of Massachusetts and he made one of the best Secretaries of Labor the country ever had. I'm shocked. The country is losing a very great man and I hate to see this happen. His family has all my sympathy."

Mr. Tobin served in Truman's Cabinet for four years and five months, beginning in August 1948.

His funeral will be held Wednesday morning with a solemn high requiem mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross (Catholic), Boston. He will be buried from his home in Jamaica Plain, a section of Boston.

Truman will attend the funeral, leaving Kansas City at 2 p.m. tomorrow by air liner.

Got Start as Newsboy.

Mr. Tobin's rise from a poor newsboy to Secretary of Labor was by way of minor offices in Boston to become one of the city's youngest mayors and Governor at the age of 43.

Since leaving the cabinet post Mr. Tobin had been a director of Grayson Robinson Co., New York City. The firm operates a chain of women's clothing stores.

Mr. Tobin's first political office was as State Representative in 1927. In 1931, he was elected to the Boston school committee and became its chairman the following year. Re-elected to the committee in 1935, he led a field of 29 candidates.

Mr. Tobin had an open break with James M. Curley when the latter was Governor in 1936. Curley, as leader of the state Democratic party, had approved a list of candidates for delegates to the party's National Convention. The list did not include Mr. Tobin's name. He ran as an independent candidate, broke the Curley slate and went to the convention as a Roosevelt-pledged delegate.

In his first race for mayor of Boston, the next year, Mr. Tobin defeated Curley by nearly 25,000 votes and gave Curley a second defeat in 1941 by a margin of 9000 votes.

In 1944 Mr. Tobin defeated Horace A. Cahill, now a judge, for the governorship. He was defeated for re-election for governor by Republican Robert F. Bradford in 1946.

Surviving are his wife and three children, Helen, 20, Carol 18, and Maurice J. Tobin Jr., 15.

Birmingham's Feed Industry Meets Challenge of Nation's Fastest Growing Farm Market

Work is in progress on this feed mill planned for Cosby-Hodges Milling Co., Birmingham. Rated at 500 tons per 8-hr. shift, it will open in '54.
the South

"Way down South in the land of cotton" is still a stirring song in Dixie—but the fact is that the South's fast growing livestock and poultry industry have helped break the shackles of its one crop economy and added billions to its farm income. This is illustrated by the fact that feed consumption in the South has increased 358% during the recent 10-year period.

Birmingham's feed industry is keeping pace with the amazing development of the South's livestock and poultry industry. This is exemplified by the large, modern, push-button feed mill now being built on a 34-acre tract in Birmingham by the Cosby-Hodges Milling Company.

Announcing this development, President W. Cosby Hodges said:

"In recent years the South's livestock and poultry industry have made gigantic strides. Our State of Alabama is leading the Nation in the rate of cattle expansion. To meet present demands and that of the foreseeable future, we are doubling our present operation with a new feed mill in Birmingham—central city of the South's rural and urban market. Any company, making any product used on the farm and in the home, will find it worth while to investigate the manufacturing and distributing advantages of Birmingham for serving the rural South—the fastest growing big market in America today."

In Birmingham there are promising opportunities now for the manufacture of farm implements and tools, tractors, agricultural chemicals, home appliances and furnishings. Our Committee will analyze the market for your products, factually and confidentially, at your request. Write this Committee or any of the undersigned.

WOMAN MARRIED IN 1940 SUES FOR DIVORCE 10TH TIME

LOS ANGELES, July 20 (AP)—For the tenth time since 1940 Susan B. Harshman, 62 years old, has filed suit for divorce from Harry T. Harshman, also 62, a retired real estate broker.

The Harshmans were married Feb. 29, 1940. She filed her first divorce suit the following October, then dismissed it.

She since has filed — and dropped—divorce actions in 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1950 and 1952.

BUS DRIVERS DISCUSS PAY OFFER; FIRINGS SETTLED

Union employes of St. Louis Public Service Co. today discussed a new wage proposal, following the disposal of all pending disciplinary cases by a union-company grievance committee. The cases resulted from the recent wildcat strike.

The company had fired or suspended 20 men. Two took jobs elsewhere. Of the remaining 18 for whom the committee conducted hearings, three were allowed to return to work and the firing of 15 was confirmed.

The 2800 members of Operators' Local 788 meet in two shifts, morning and evening at Teamsters Hall, 4141 Forest Park avenue, to discuss the wage proposal. The wildcat strike followed rejection of a previous proposal.

700 WORKERS END STRIKE AT LINCOLN ENGINEERING CO.

Seven hundred production employes of Lincoln Engineering Co., manufacturer of lubricating equipment, returned to work today, ending a strike which began June 4 at the company's plants at 5701 Natural Bridge avenue and 4330 Geraldine avenue.

A company spokesman said the employes received increases ranging upward from 7 cents an hour, plus a welfare plan and an improved holiday schedule, bringing the average cost of the new contract to 13 cents an hour per employe.

The average wage under the old contract for about 300 of the employes who are members of the AFL Machinists' Union was $1.80 an hour. For 400 employes who are members of the CIO United Automobile Workers the average hourly rate was $1.61.

Wheat Futures Record Gains While Feed Grains Are Mixed

CHICAGO, July 20 (AP)—Wheat shook off early hesitancy and moved up a couple of cents on the Board of Trade today, leding some support to an otherwise ragged grain market.

Wheat's upturn was accompanied by active dealings. A large elevator house was a good buyer, as were local floor traders. Smaller cash wheat arrivals than a week ago, reports of stem rust in spring wheat and only limited hedging pressure helped the grain advance.

Other cereals weakened early, some selling being pinned on the news from Korea, but much of the ground lost early was recovered in sympathy with the advance in wheat. Corn and soybeans met occasional pressure as more rain fell in parts of the midwest.

U.S. BONDS ARE FIRM

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—The corporate bond market today was a mixture of narrow gains and losses. Minus marks and plus signs just about canceled each other out. There was a slight tendency toward the downside among some of the rails toward the final hour, while the utilities improved after early softness. Price changes rarely exceeded a point. Volume was light.

Long-term Government bonds developed some strength in quiet over-the-counter dealings. The Treasury's new 30-year 3¼s were quoted 2-32 higher by some traders at 100 5-32 bid. The bank-eligible 2½s and the Victory Loan 2½s of 1972 were both up 2-32 at 93 2-32 bid.

Foreign liens were mixed and quiet. Japanese obligations advanced; Chilean and Uruguayan bonds declined a little.

While price changes among the corporates were mostly confined to fractions early in the session, there were a few exceptions.

New York connecting railroad 2⅞s were up 1½ at 85 at one time, and Peoria & Eastern 4s up a point at 90. Among the utilities, United Gas Corp. 2¾s lost four points at 90 on light sales.

New corporate financing continues at a low ebb this week. Biggest event is El Paso Natural Gas Co.'s planned offering of 200,000 shares of $100 per preferred stock, tentatively set for Wednesday.

Indicating the steady pace in recent weeks in the marketing of school, highway, public improvement and other tax-free obligations, the Daily Bond Buyer's weekly compilation of the visible supply of state and municipal offerings for the next 30 days continues near the $156,000,000 mark at $155,912,214. Last week is was $156,882,710.

13 Signs That The Boom Is Ending

WASHINGTON, D. C. —Boom, after 13 years, is in trouble. A severe bust — a depression — however, is not in the cards.

1. PRICES at the wholesale level are turning downward. Latest figures show 4 percent drop for commodities in general.
2. COST OF LIVING for ordinary families is down a shade right now, seems headed for biggest drop in years.
3. OLD HOUSES are moving slowly, bringing 10 percent less on the average.
4. NEW HOUSE STARTS are fewer. Construction is 20 percent below peak.
6. FARM-LAND VALUES already are down 2 percent.
7. PRICES of the "sensitive" commodities, which are traded on spot markets, have plunged 35 percent for wholesalers.
8. USED CARS: supply large; demand diminishing; prices down sharply.
9. STOCK MARKET has lost some of its "bullishness" — is off about 7 percent.
10. U.S. IS EXPORTING LESS goods, by 19 percent.
11. EXPORTS of farm products are down 30 percent.
12. GOVERNMENT SPENDING, according to all indications, is to be cut.
13. MOST IMPORTANT: shortages are ended or ending, surpluses are appearing. Buyers are back in the saddle, sellers competing for orders.

Who Will Lose? Who Will Gain?

Boom's ending will mean many changes. Readers of "U.S. News & World Report" are already asking: How will these changes affect me? And, typically, the editors are already digging out the answers. Here are some:

People with fixed incomes, such as pensions, annuities, bond interest, stand to benefit from the fact that dollars will soon buy more.

Salaried employees also can look for gains. Usually they have steadier incomes and employment than wage workers. So, in a period of stable or declining prices, their position improves.

Wage Workers probably will lose a bit. Slowdown in activity will result in less overtime, more layoffs, fewer raises.

Many business firms will find profits harder to come by. Shift from sellers' to buyers' market is likely to put squeeze on profit margins.

But some industries will be aided if cost of materials is major part of their total costs. Included are food processors, rubber manufacturers, most producers of soft goods.

These 600,000 People Will Be Ready

There is not room here to give the complete analysis. But the above should be enough to illustrate the unique way U. S. News & World Report tackles the meaning of current events in terms of your life, your problems, your plans.

The editors of U. S. News & World Report have shown by their analyses that almost every important development that crashes into the headlines — whether it's political, military, or economic — is preceded by a build-up of the forces involved. Big changes, whether they happen in Iran, Korea, Washington, Moscow, New York, or anywhere else, usually "telegraph their punches."

By keen observation of news-in-the-making, our editors (situated right here in Washington) are often able to tell their 600,000 readers what to do about tomorrow's news today. They give you "news you can use." News of important changes to expect in prices — wages — employment conditions — politics — taxes — world affairs — business prosperity — government controls — and how these changes will affect your business and personal affairs. Readers are helped to answer vital questions like these:

Will my son be drafted shortly? Will there really be peace in Korea? Is my line of business likely to slump? How much tax reduction — if any — should I count on? Is there likely to be another war crisis soon?

Should I build a new house? Or stay where I am? Are any of my investments in danger? How can I build a "nest egg" in times like these? What will the new Russian "peace offensive" mean to me?

PRESIDENT FACES FIGHT ON RAISING U.S. DEBT LIMIT

Democrats Indicate They May Oppose Boosting 275-Billion-Dollar Ceiling.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —The Eisenhower Administration is coming to a financial crossroads, its evident plans to lift the federal debt limit threatened by Democratic opposition.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, said today he might not go along on an expected proposal to raise the present 275-billion-dollar ceiling.

"There will be some opposition to increasing the debt limit, mainly on the ground that the only way to cut spending is to keep the present limit," George said.

He added that he personally remains to be convinced that the action has to be taken now despite the narrow margin by which the present debt comes below the statutory limit.

Chairman Millikin (Rep.), Colorado, of the Senate Finance Committee said he had not polled the group and did not know how it will stand on the issue.

Limit Set After War.

The present national debt is nearly 273 billion dollars. The present legal debt limit was set after World War II at a figure 25 billions under the wartime peak of 300 billions.

Senator Knowland of California, the acting Republican leader, said that if the President asks for an increase in the limit, he thinks Congress would approve it before the Administration's July 31 target date for adjournment.

However, Senator Morse (Ind.), Oregon, has suggested that Congress may be around a long time if there is any effort to pass such a bill. Morse, who holds the Senate's marathon speaking record, said he would be glad to join in a "financial seminar" if the Administration wants it.

Morse contended the country will react against a boost in the debt limit in the face of Republican promises in last year's campaign to balance the budget and cut spending.

Republican congressional leaders reported there was no talk of increasing the limit when they discussed with President Eisenhower today a program of "must" legislation for the rest of the congressional session.

Humphrey's Estimates.

Without mentioning the likelihood of having to seek a raise in the debt limit, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey predicted yesterday that bigger business earnings and higher national income will lift government receipts to a second successive peak in the year which started July 1.

Federal revenue, Humphrey said, should climb to 68½ billion dollars compared with the record $65,200,000,000 in the year which ended June 30. Nevertheless, he added, "continued vigorous co-operative effort . . . will be required to reduce expenditures to the point where we will obtain a balance between receipts and expenditures."

Assurance of a rise in tax collections, Humphrey reported, can be drawn from the rate of corporation profits, now running three billion dollars annually above a year ago, and national income currently at a rate 14½ billions higher.

Heavy Tax Refunds.

Humphrey's statement disclosed that unexpectedly heavy refunds to taxpayers, nearly 5 cents for every dollar collected, helped to create the peacetime record deficit of fiscal 1953, $9,389,000,000.

Repayment to citizens who overpaid their taxes totaled $3,151,000,000, Humphrey reported in the breakdown of Government income in the year just closed.

"Returns on overpayments were $640,000,000 more than originally estimated," Humphrey said. "Individual income tax receipts were about one billion dollars less, and most of the balance was in lower receipts from corporate tax payments."

TWO ADMIT SELLING MEAT ON SUNDAY, FINED $25 EACH

Mrs. Marianna Blake, owner of a grocery at 914 Clarendon avenue, and Mrs. Mary Baker, who operates a store at 708 Hamilton avenue, today pleaded guilty to charges of selling meat on Sundays and were fined $25 each by Provisional Police Judge John Flynn.

They were arrested July 12 on complaint of Local 88 of the AFL Meat Cutters' Union, which is conducting a campaign against Sunday meat sales.

Two other store owners were arrested yesterday and charged with illegal meat soles. They are Louis A. Capizz, whose store is at 4874 Easton avenue, and Ernest Davenport, 1211 North Taylor avenue.

Douglas Says G.O.P.-Dixiecrat Coalition Still Runs Congress

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

A coalition of Dixiecrats and Republicans, which has blocked progressive legislation since 1938, continues to dominate Congress under the Eisenhower Administration, Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.) of Illinois said yesterday.

He addressed a public meeting sponsored by AFL, CIO and independent unions at Ainad Temple, Seventh street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis.

The coalition, which in effect "governs the country," is composed of Southern Democrats and "nine-tenths of the Republicans, especially those from the Midwest," Douglas declared. Alabama's two Senators, Lister Hill and John Sparkman, "are excluded from my definition of Dixiecrat," he added.

'Legalized Rubbery.'

Douglas, who said members of the congressional coalition "are experts in legalized robbery," listed nine areas of legislation in which the bloc has prevented enactment of reform bills.

These, he said, include the field of low-rent public housing, "where the coalition closed in to restrict the number of new units that could be built," and enforcement of the minimum wage law, "which the Dixiecrats and Republicans sought to make a dead letter."

An appropriation of $7,600,000, asked by the wages and hours division of the Department of Labor for enforcement of minimum wage, 40-hour week and child labor regulations, was trimmed by the coalition to $6,000,000, but other Congressmen succeeded in adding $250,000 to this figure, Douglas said.

Cuts Inspections.

"The original appropriation sought would have been enough to enable the division to inspect only 6 per cent of the establishments covered by the Federal Wages and Hours Act," he asserted. "Only a 4 per cent inspection would have been possible if the $6,000,000 figure had been approved."

Inspections in previous years turned up violations of the Wages and Hours Act in 50 to 80 per cent of the establishments inspected, Douglas added.

Turning to social security legislation, the Illinois Senator said the majority party in Congress "is moving to put social security on a needs basis only, removing its insurance function. This would make social security a relief law, but we need to preserve its actuarial side."

About 150 persons attended the meeting, sponsored by unions in the St. Louis area and East St. Louis. Douglas was introduced by William B. Schlensker, president of the St. Louis-East St. Louis Council, AFL, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

STATE DEPT. MAN WOULD BAR POLICY JOBS TO SOCIALISTS

WASHINGTON, July 20 (UP) Scott McLeod, State Department security chief, wants to keep Socialists out of policy-making positions in the department.

McLeod's views were disclosed today in a letter dated July 14 to Norman Thomas, Socialist party candidate for President in several elections. Thomas had asked McLeod to state his policy on hiring Socialists for State Department posts.

McLeod replied that the department, in hiring, did not inquire into political affiliation except to ask whether a person is or was a member of the Communist party or any group advocating overthrow of the Government.

"I would never knowingly employ a Socialist to fill such a (policy-making) position within the department," McLeod added.

He said this has nothing to do with the loyality of Socialists. "I simply feel that it would be impossible for a Socialist to make or influence policy in a manner which would carry out the intentions of President Eisenhower and the Republican Administration," McLeod said.

AIRMAN SENTENCED TO LIFE FOR MURDER IN KOREA

SEOUL, July 20 (UP)—Airman 1-Class Thomas Kinder of Cleveland, Tenn., was sentenced to life imprisonment July 16 for his part in the gun killing of a South Korean civilian last Sept. 27, the Fifth Air Force headquarters announced yesterday.

Kinder was convicted by an eight-man court-martial board on all charges after a three-day trial. He was charged with premeditated murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

Kinder is being held in South Korea as a witness in the scheduled trial of Lt. George Schreiber of Holyrood, Ill. Robert W. Toth of Pittsburgh, also may be tried. The Air Force said it did not yet know whether Toth, an honorably discharged serviceman, could be tried here. His counsel has appealed against his arrest by Air Police in Pittsburgh and deportation to Korea to face court-martial.

7 ARRESTED ON SUSPICION OF LIQUOR SALE TO MINORS

The police liquor squad and agents of the State Department of Liquor Control arrested the owner of the Club L, at 2820 Lafayette avenue, two waitresses and four youthful customers late Saturday.

The owner, Joseph DeFrancesco, who lives at 3142 Lafayette avenue, and the waitresses, Miss Alexina Fleming, 2000 block of South Broadway, and Miss Dorothy Howard, 4000 block of De Tonty street, were booked on suspicion of selling liquor to minors. Two boys and two girls were booked on suspicion of consuming liquor.

In a Sunday afternoon raid on a restaurant at 1823 Carr street the police and state officers arrested Mrs. Mary Moncado, the proprietor, and booked her on suspicion of selling liquor without state or city license. They reported that she sold them a bottle of wine.

BISHOP JOHN BOYLAN DIES, ROCKFORD (ILL.) PRELATE

BONNET SHORES, R.I., July 20 (UP)—Bishop John J. Boylan of the Rockford (Ill.) Catholic diocese died yesterday at his summer home here, where he had been recuperating from an operation earlier this year. He was 64 years old.

Before being named Bishop of Rockford in September 1942, he had been vicar general of the Des Moines (Ia.) Catholic diocese and the first president of Dowling College there. He headed the college nearly 20 years.

Born in Providence, R.I., Bishop Boylan was ordained a priest there in 1915. His first church post was in the Des Moines diocese.

HEAT OVERCOMES 300 JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP)—Heat felled more than 300 Jehovah's Witnesses yesterday as 82,861 members of the sect jammed Yankee Stadium for the opening of their eight-day New World Society assembly.

At one time the heat inside the big Bronx stadium was 92 although the official heat reading outside was 81.

The heat prostration cases were treated in both grandstand and bleachers as well as at first aid emergency stations. None of the victims was reported in serious condition.

More thousands of Witnesses were expected to go to the stadium today for the assembly's second day program which emphasizes the group's international scope. Delegates are here from 96 countries outside the United States.

Flowers ringed the infield, and the pitching mound bloomed as a formal garden. A green-boughed speakers' platform was placed above second base. Vivid posters decked the green girders of the stands.

Members of the sect, known formally as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, volunteered for various duties at the stadium and vicinity. Some were detailed to policing and handling traffic and cleaning duties. Others worked in huge kitchens set up to feed the members in tents near the stadium.

The opening ceremonies were heard by several thousand Jehovah's Witnesses who remained at New Market, N. J., to care for a huge trailer and tent city set up there to provide housing for 30,000 members. The ceremonies were carried over a direct telephone wire from the stadium to a public address system at the camp.

Yugoslav Mission to U.S.

BELGRADE, July 20 (AP)—Tanjug, the official Yugoslav news agency, announced yesterday Yugoslavia will send a military delegation to Washington next month. An invitation was extended from Washington for discussions of military assistance.

$8,915,323 SPENT AT CONVENTIONS HERE BY 102,077

A total of 102,077 visitors attended 364 conventions in St. Louis from April 1, 1952, March 31, 1953, and spent a minimum of $8,915,323 here in that period, the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, said yesterday in its annual report.

"From a community viewpoint, the money spent by convention visitors is essentially 'new money'—money entering the channels of trade in St. Louis purely as a result of a particular convention meeting here," the report said.

Forthcoming conventions with large anticipated attendances include the American Legion, 25,000; Missouri State Teachers Association, 8000; National Conference of Social Work, 7000, and National Association of Master Plumbers, 5000.

Boy, 4, Dies of Knife Wound.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 20 (AP) —Ronnie Dean Brady, 4 years old, died at a hospital here yesterday of a knife wound suffered at play earlier in the day. Two older brothers, Harold and Lawrence, were throwing knives at a tree. A knife thrown by Lawrence missed the tree and struck the younger child in the stomach as he was playing behind the target.

His is the responsibility for watching over as many as 75 to 100 cars of valuable freight. His office is inside the familiar red caboose at the rear end of every Illinois Central freight train. With him aboard the train are usually four other men, the engineer, fireman and two brakemen—one riding in the locomotive cab with the engineer and fireman, the other in the caboose with the conductor.

A train crew like this is the focal point of the most economical transportation system yet invented, a system costing the Illinois Central hundreds of millions of dollars that carries freight for an average of only 1¼ cents per ton mile. Low cost transportation like this is the very heartblood of Mid-America's industrial and agricultural prosperity. It benefits you and every other citizen of Mid-America.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN 1952 LOWEST SINCE WORLD WAR

Farm Exodus Goes On, Working Wives Total High as Ever, Census Bureau Finds.

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) —Unemployment in the United States last year reached the lowest point since World War II . . . agricultural workers continued to leave the farms . . . the number of working wives remained as high as ever.

This broad picture of the United States labor situation in 1952 was given yesterday in the Census Bureau's annual report on employment.

Unemployment averaged about 1,700,000, compared with 1,900,000 in 1951 and 3,100,000 in 1950. Most of last year's decline in unemployment was attributed to the fact that fewer housewives entered the labor market in search of jobs.

Working Wives.

However, the number of working wives in April 1952 topped the peak World War II figure by about 2,000,000. For the first time since the war's end, the bureau said, there was no significant advance in the number of married women working or seeking jobs.

Both the number of married women working—about 10,400,000 in April 1952—and the proportion working—26.8 per cent—were almost unchanged from 1951.

The greatest unemployment, the bureau said, was in the ranks of discharged Korean war veterans. In October 1952 about 7 per cent of the veterans were looking for work, compared with 2 per cent for other men of comparable age. The bureau noted this was about the same rate as immediately after World War II.

Unemployment was heavier among non-whites than among whites.

Increase in Employment.

The increase in civilian employment from 1951 to 1952 was not large. Last year it ranged from 59,750,000 to a summer peak of 62,500,000, when seasonal laborers and college students were working. The annual 1952 average of 61,293,000 compared to 61,005,000 in 1951 and 59,597,000 in 1950.

Non-agricultural employment reached a record high last year, the bureau said, with an average of 54,488,000 workers. This figure was about half a million higher than in 1951 and 2,000,000 greater than in 1950.

Agricultural employment did not fall off greatly last year but was well under 1950 and the years before that. The 1952 average of 6,805,000 compared to 7,054,000 in 1951, 7,507,000 in 1950 and 8,905,000 in 1947.

The bureau said this continuing trend away from the farms "may reflect some further consolidation of farm holdings, as well as the abandonment of farm operations on marginal lands."

Labor Force Expansion.

The nation's labor force continued to expand in 1952, but at a slower rate than in other recent years. However, because of continued inductions into the armed forces, the civilian labor force — employed and unemployed — showed practically no gain over 1951.

"Nevertheless," the bureau said, "the total labor force—at an average of 66,400,000 in 1952—was at a record level. It exceeded for the first time the peak in World War II, when some 11,000,000 persons were serving in the armed forces.

The report noted a pronounced drop in the number of older men working in the past few years. This it attributed partly to "more comprehensive coverage and higher benefits under public and private retirement plans."

Information available in April 1952 showed the proportion of men working in the 65-69 age bracket had dropped to 58.1 per cent from 68.3 per cent in April 1947. The percentage of men past 70 working dropped during the same period from 34.2 per cent to 28.5.

PERLE MESTA REFUSES $7319 TERMINAL PAY

MOSCOW, July 20 (UP)—A sympathetic gesture by party giver Perle Mesta saved the government $7319.50 today.

Mrs. Mesta, currently touring Russia, announced she has decided not to accept the money owed her by the United States State Department in terminal leave pay at the end of her tenure as Minister to Luexmbourg.

Mrs. Mesta said she is in "great sympathy" with the Eisenhower Administration's efforts to cut government spending and, therefore, will refuse payment to which she legally is entitled.

She told reporters the government owes her for 862 hours. She said Eisenhower had asked his appointees not to request terminal leave payments when their terms expire and that she wanted to go along with the President's wishes, even though she was a Truman appointee.

BLAST, FIRE AT CUBA (ILL.) MINE; LOSS PUT AT $500,000

CUBA, Ill., July 20 (AP) — An explosion and fire that roared through a mine tipple of the Rowland & Son Coal Co. caused damage estimated at $500,000 yesterday.

D. E. Rowland, head of the firm, who estimated the damage, said the truck mine is the largest in Illinois.

Cause of the explosion and fire was not immediately determined, but firemen said it probably was due to spontaneous combustion.

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

TCP*, a Shell discovered additive now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, actually re-powers your engine by stopping short circuiting of spark plugs and controlling pre-ignition. Gives up to 15% more power . . . increases spark plug life up to 150% . . . gives extra mileage, too

The reason the majority of engines lose their new car power—often within three or four thousand miles—is now known.

Today's driving—often at low speeds in traffic and around town—increases the amount of engine deposits on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. These engine deposits do two kinds of harm. First, they short-circuit spark plugs—causing misfiring. Second, because they get red hot in the combustion chambers, they often cause the fuel-air mixture to ignite prematurely—this is called pre-ignition. The combined effect of short-circuited spark plugs plus pre-ignition is lost power and wasted gasoline. This loss of power is especially noticeable when accelerating, hill climbing, or cruising on the open highway.

But now there's a way to get rid of this power and fuel waste—quickly!

It's TCP additive, discovered by Shell Research. Now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, it actually stops the short-circuiting effects of the deposits on the spark plugs. And, because it also keeps engine deposits in the combustion chamber from getting too hot—"fire proofs" them—TCP additive stops the pre-ignition caused by engine deposits.

And, the result for the average motorist is a net gain of up to 15% more power, up to 150% longer spark plug life as well as increased gasoline mileage!

Not since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922 has there been such an important development in gasoline.

All engines are helped!

Because these engine deposits accumulate in all engines—both old and new—you need Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP additive to keep your engine delivering the full power built into it by the manufacturer. Even if your car has gone 30,000 miles or more, your engine can get back much of its original power if you use Shell Premium with TCP additive.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium increase your power you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. Of course, these engine deposits are constantly accumulating, and continued use of Shell Premium with TCP additive is essential to retain its benefits.

Available only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP is Shell's trademark for the remarkable additive now available in Shell Premium Gasoline. Originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels, until now it has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Now at all Shell Dealer Stations.

A Factor in Korea

Mme. Rhee Wields Power for Husband

By Claudia Parker

TOKYO (ONA).

ANY discussion here of the complex and unpredictable South Korean crisis is bound to produce the question, "How important is Mme. Syngman Rhee?"

MME. RHEE

The much younger wife of America's problem ally is something of a mystery woman who, many observers believe, has exercised greater influence over recent events in her adopted homeland than is generally recognized. While others maintain that Austrian-born Mme. Rhee is little more than a sounding board for her husband's opinions, they concede that she is his closest confidante and probably the only person whom he entirely trusts.

That alone would make her a person of considerable significance. Among the small coterie of advisers to whom Rhee will even listen, his ever-present wife necessarily must be a powerful influence.

MME. RHEE IS no mere intrigue-loving wife of a head of state. She is a university-trained economist and the veteran of years of political machinations among Korean exiles in America and Europe. She has long served her husband as a secretary and a kind of top-level receptionist who bars the door to all but the "right" people.

Rhee has appropriated to himself not only all real political power in Korea but most of the important administrative duties as well. By informally relieving him of many of these details, Mme. Rhee wields power herself. Rhee insists that all foreign currency allocations in his bankrupt little land must be personally approved by him. In practice, Mme. Rhee rules on such applications in his name—a fact which makes business men and bureaucrats understandably careful not to displease her.

★ ★ ★

PERHAPS EVEN MORE important than this aspect of her influence is the fact that Rhee is an octogenarian, tired and in uncertain health, despite his apparent vigor. According to some reports, his wife, born Francesca Donner in Vienna 53 years ago, has been the steadying hand behind him in the crisis which he provoked by defying the will of the United Nations.

If this assigns too great a role to Mme. Rhee, it is nevertheless true that the clique which surrounds Rhee, few of whom ever have been outside of their own country, accept her not only as an economics expert but as an authority on the West. Though Rhee speaks serviceable English, his wife's English is flawless and she often acts as his interpreter.

"President Rhee may not know it," said one American diplomat who has served in Seoul, "but he sees many things through her eyes."

★ ★ ★

THE RHEES were married in Washington 20 years ago, and Mme. Rhee saw Korea for the first time after World War II. As a foreigner, she was not much liked by her husband's countrymen and was even regarded as a political liability. She immediately set to work to win over her adopted people, in the course of time becoming, in the words of one skeptic, "Korean in everything except her hairdo."

She now always appears in the billowy, high bodiced costume which is traditional for Korean women. She is at her husband's side whenever he makes a public appearance, even on visits to frontline troops. Indefatigable in her wartime activities on behalf of the maimed and homeless, Mme. Rhee has gradually won acceptance among the Korean people.

Gray-haired and daintily pretty, only her steel gray eyes disclose that she may be composed of sterner stuff than she looks. She weathered Korea's violent political feuds in which Rhee, alone of the oldtime exiled leaders, has managed to survive. One by one, his political opponents have been disposed of — several by assassination. His political allies sooner or later find themselves booted into positions of insignificance. Rhee — and Mme. Rhee — have remained on top.

★ ★ ★

BECAUSE RHEE SUFFERS from insomnia, he and his wife frequently sit up most of the night, talking politics and telephoning officials. Gen. James Van Fleet, who was personally friendlier with Rhee than any other American has been, once pleaded with him to stop calling Eighth Army Headquarters in the middle of the night because he was unable to get any rest.

But sleepless nights seem to have little effect on Mme. Rhee. The next day, she is always bustling about, often acting in her husband's name. During the current crisis, she has appeared even busier than usual.

The other two didn't fret about his non-appearance for over an hour, then one glanced at his watch and murmured, "Hmm! Wonder what's eating Bill?"

Japan Again Hit by Floods

In the second major flood in Japan in less than a month, only a few rooftops are visible above the waters which swept over the village of Minoshima on Honshu island. The floods, products of cloudbursts that started last Friday, left thousands homeless and more than 2000 either dead or missing. Area affected is about 200 miles southwest of Tokyo. Dogs of the Week

With much growing to be done before they catch up to the size of their feet and legs, these are the current Dogs of the Week at the Humane Society shelter. As gangling legs and drooping ears would indicate, the pups, about 3 months old, have hound ancestry. Part black and tan hound and part beagle is the guess of shelter workers. They are available for adoption on application, in person, at the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue. —By Luster Linck, a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

There's a Busy Time Ahead for Bing

Studio Has Movie Jobs All Lined Up, and There's a TV Show in Prospect

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, July 20.

BING CROSBY can well afford to knock off work for six months, as he's in the process of doing right now, but his bosses at Paramount aren't quite so well fixed. They want their roving boy back—in a hurry—so the combined exhibitor and fan cry for more Bing pictures can be satisfied.

The croon king has only one feature in the backlog hamper right now and that's a new low for him. This is "Little Boy Lost," a serious, heart-tugging drama decidedly off the usual merry Crosby path and slightly reminiscent of the old "Going My Way" pattern. It was previewed the other night to a mixed verdict, but in any event it will create discussion—and keep Bing well in the public eye and mind until he gets back into actual production.

This is scheduled for Sept. 1, when (barring further upheavals) he will start that much-delayed, much-rewritten "White Christmas," which Paramount originally planned to produce in 1943—as a sequel to the tremendously successful "Holiday Inn."

Fred Astaire won't be back to co-star with Bing in the followup and the old dance star's spot will be filled by the younger and equally talented Donald O'Connor. Vera-Ellen will be Don's dance partner. Rosemary Clooney joins Bing in the singing department, thus rounding out a cast that should make the bulbs on any theater marquee jump with joy.

Irving Berlin himself is already on hand grinding out new Berlin tunes—and these, including the undying "White Christmas" number, first sung in "Holiday Inn," will total 18.

No rest for Bing after that, either. Paramount will quickly put him in "Country Girl," a light rural comedy with plenty more songs and when the curtain goes down on that one—about Jan. 1—Bing and Bob Hope will join once more for their umpteenth "Road" picture. This will be "The Road to the Moon" and (you guessed it) the thing—with Dorothy Lamour in there, too—will lampoon the life out of space movies, flying saucers and all that sort of hysteria.

A very probable debut on television this fall and a completely new type of weekly radio show are other propositions that will keep Crosby's off-studio hours full of activity when he returns from the family summer home at Hayden Lake, Idaho.

After his arrival in New York July 6, following a leisurely tour of Europe with 15-year-old son Lindsay, Bing took off for Elko and the Northwest. The Crosbys all meet in Elko where, for six weeks after school is out, the boys work as hired hands at $1.50 an hour. They then move up to the lake resort Aug. 1 to rest and have fun.

Crosby's decision to change his mind and take a whirl at television was no surprise to his friends. He made such a powerful appearance and impression when he first bowed with Bob Hope a year ago on a 24-hour telathon show that he was immediately tagged as "Hollywood's greatest gift to TV." Bing was happy about his curtain raiser, too, but for only a few hours. The dismal news was flashed that the contributions pledged to the amount of more than $1,000,000 by viewers from coast to coast had fallen so far short in the paid up totals that the million-plus had dwindled to less than $200,000.

Angry and disillusioned, Bing declared then he was through, washed up for good with the medium. Time apparently has tempered all that bad feeling and the word is out today that he has an understanding with an important sponsor to do a bi-monthly half-hour TV show — and at a price well above that paid any entertainer in the field today.

ADDING TO ALL other outward indications that she intends a complete screen retirement, now that her 20th-Fox contract finally has been settled, Betty Grable has been claiming horses like mad during the Hollywood Park meeting. She and husband Harry James now have close to a score of running thoroughbreds, whereas last year they had but seven.

Betty proposes to supervise these interests personally hereafter while James, not nearly so interested in the animals, plans to pursue his band career.

As one of Betty's close friends, knowing well her fondness for the nags, said: "If she makes one picture a year, as has been reported, it will have to be an awfully fast quickie!"

SCHOOLHOUSE GLAMOUR: Greer Garson in "Miss Baker's Dozen," will play a schoolteacher guaranteed to keep classroom attendance up to par—especially among male pupils. She'll be decked out in 20 chic gowns and the MGM wardrobe department is all excited, too, over three other Garson items. They're tricky, much-revealing beach outfits, already stirring the curiosity of even Esther Williams, who manufactures a line of her own.

Felt for a Smart Frame

By Elizabeth Hillyer

NO plain frame is hopeless, even if it is battered and dingy. It will take to a smart cover-up with felt, and the cover-up can come straight from the bag of tricks you know how to do.

Felt by-the-yard comes in wonderful colors, shades to fit the old picture or mirror into a new color scheme. Use a single piece of felt, cut out in the middle for small frames, or strips cut diagonally to miter at the corners for larger frames.

Because felt is stretchable, it takes the shape of the frame's ridges and curves, and because it cuts to an unfrayed edge, pieces can be fitted together without turning under.

Spread heavy glue evenly over the front of the frame and smooth the felt down. Then spread glue on the sides and edges of the back of the frame, turn the felt back and smooth it down.

Corner piece must be cut out in back when a single piece is used.

BAREFOOTED fashions are much in vogue. Around the beach or pool, on the terrace or in the patio and at summer dancing parties, it's a little difficult to be a foot-hider and still achieve the height of fashion. And it's a fashion that is decidedly revealing. It proves that the feet should be attended to all year round. Only toe-wise grooming makes it glamour-wise to don the current toe fascinators.

If, after your bath, you have taken a moment to push back the cuticle around your toenails—gently with your bath towel—you're ahead of most of your sisters in foot beauty. If you haven't taken this precaution, your toenail cuticle line can be reclaimed by dipping an orange stick wrapped in cotton into cuticle remover and then pressing the cuticle back. Take care, though! If you are too bumptious about this, injury will ensue and you may have a painful toe for some time.

★ ★ ★

IT'S A GOOD IDEA to treat your foot cuticle to this attention once a week. A once-a-week application of cuticle oil will also be beneficial.

The next step is to clip your toenails straight across with a manicure scissors. Tapering toenails with a file or orange stick is a very dangerous practice; it can result in ingrown, unsightly and painful nails. Your toenails should be no longer than your toes. For the sake of your nylons, carefully smooth rough edges.

Next, using plain lanolin or your favorite hand cream, massage your entire foot and don't stop this skin smoothing and polishing maneuver until you reach your knee.

IF YOU WISH to accent your toenails with a bit of color, apply two coats of polish with the same professional finish that you use in your manicure. Any inept slips of your polish brush will only defeat your purpose. Placing a tuft of cotton between each toe helps to prevent smudging.

To make an attractive public appearance, feet must be pampered. By taking just these few precautions, you can "put your best foot" forward at any time, anywhere and know it will point only to your fastidious ways!

How It Started

By Jean Newton

Giving Him a 'Thrashing.'

TO "thrash" a child, or a person is, of course, to give him a beating; but it is hardly in the intention of the speaker to liken the object of the corrective action to grain being winnowed or fanned.

That is how the "thrashing" started. What we have here is the same word as "threshing." The Old English "threschen" gave us both words, meaning "to beat," primarily in the sense that grain or corn was beaten, to remove the straw or husks. Cognates in the Teutonic tongues are numerous, with the same significance.

Actually, the words are interchangeable. As early as Chaucer's time we find the poet writing, "He would thresh"; and as recently as the last century, Herbert Spencer tells us, "The wheat was reaped, thrashed and winnowed by machines."

It seems grain may be "threshed" or "thrashed" — but persons may only be said to be thrashed!

When refinishing floors with a floor seal, try using one of the seal applicators with a long handle. They do a good job and save you from having to work on your knees.

Pollen-Free Areas

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

IF you have hay fever in the late summer and have not been desensitized to the pollen, results of a recently published pollen survey show you where you can vacation most comfortably. Oren C. Durham, chairman of the Pollen Survey Committee of the Council on Aeroallergens of the American Academy of Allergy, recently published results of years of pollen sampling all over the country, including Alaska and Canada.

Pollen sampling is done by counting the pollen grains falling on a vaseline coated slide during a 24-hour period. A special exposure device is used and it is put on the top of some tall building in the business section of the city. This method is approved by all those working in the field, both private groups and the United States Public Health Service. These pollen counts are figured daily. They are converted by a special formula into the number of grains per cubic yard of air.

★ ★ ★

BECAUSE RAGWEED and its close relatives are the commonest cause of late summer hay fever in the United States, you might be interested in the following list of places with zero or extremely low ragweed pollen counts. Those who have hay fever in August and September usually have it from ragweed and closely related pollens. If you are sensitive to ragweed and have not been desensitized, you would be better off vacationing in pollen-free areas. This is true even though antihistamines are available to lessen your symptoms.

The drawback of the antihistamines as a substitute for either staying away from the pollen or becoming desensitized to it is that they do not protect you from the likelihood of eventually developing asthma.

Although these pollen-free parts of the country make good vacation spots, don't plan to move to one of them permanently. You can't escape allergy for more than six to 18 months by moving. You will just become sensitized to some other pollen in the new location. It will produce symptoms that are just as bad as the original hay fever from ragweed.

★ ★ ★

GENERALLY SPEAKING, the area between the Rocky Mountains and the Eastern seaboard is loaded with ragweed and related pollens. Also generally speaking, Alaska; western British Columbia; western Washington and Oregon; Havana, Cuba; and Hamilton, Bermuda, are ragweed pollen free. Canada, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, the Gaspe country beyond Quebec, and Newfoundland are all relatively free from ragweed pollen.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

YOU never can tell what will pop up in the daily mail from high school girls and boys. Today's crop of letters with "What shall I do?" questions range from corsages to introductions. Do you know the answers?

"I would like to know how a corsage should be worn. I always thought it should be worn with the ribbon up, but some girls wear the flowers on top. Which is the correct way"

Answer: It's a deep, dark mystery why so many girls and women wear corsages upside down with the ribbon on top and the flowers drooping heads down. After all, the flowers are what count, so they should be uppermost. The ribbon is used only to cover the stems and wires . . . merely a finishing touch. So pin the flowers upward, stems down, as they grow, and you'll be correct.

"What do you do when you meet a friend and he has someone with him and is careless or thoughtless enough not to introduce you?"

Answer: It's an awkward situation. Sometimes you can prevent embarrassment by giving a hint when introductions are in order but are overlooked.

In a friendly way, you should say, "You go to Central High, don't you?" or something similar. If this doesn't prod your friend into making the introduction, do it yourself. . . . "I'm Jane Smith, a junior at Central . . ." Then it's correct for the other to reply with "How do you do . . . My name is Bill Brown."

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

THE letter published recently in your column written by the young woman who married on the rebound and finds herself still in love with the first man makes me feel I must say something of what has been my own experience. There is no minimizing this emotion called love and it is like putting on a pair of blinders. One cannot see the shortcomings in the loved one as one clothes them in all the virtues. So it is that even though she disagreed enough with him in the first place to have a quarrel, she refuses to realize that his failings are still there. Losing love is hard, but to be disillusioned by love too late is even more painful. On the other hand, even though she doesn't have the same attraction for her husband, he loves her and is good to her. The fact that she would write you for advice shows that she has a conscience. It is one thing to wish, but it is something else to take the step because, as you put it so very well, Martha, it is against common sense and decency. One suggestion to this reader is to apply herself to being a good wife, making a good home and good friends, taking up various activities, and she will be surprised to discover she is becoming happy. Another is to get out and really take a good look at the world, at those who are struggling against poverty, illness or brutal home surroundings. Next, examine some of those marriages that looked so blissful. She will be horrified to find the amount of disillusion and heartache with a brave front for the world. And then suddenly her good husband will look awfully good.

ANOTHER READER.

I hope the young woman who wrote the original letter will read yours, because it adds a great deal to my answer and will give her a new insight into the problem. I agree with you whole-heartedly. She made her choice. She married a good man, one who loves her. Her only fair course is to forget the other man and to give all her attention to her home and her husband's happiness.

★ ★ ★

IN ANSWER TO Brown Eyes: I can only urge you to take your mother's advice in this matter. He may seem like a nice fellow, but if for some reason he has a bad reputation, you shouldn't be going with him, especially if your mother has asked you not to do so. It's mighty easy to get a bad reputation, just by associating with the wrong people, but it's not so easy to regain a good name, once it is lost.

★ ★ ★

IN ANSWER TO Confused: If you and your fiance cannot agree on a religious faith, by all means talk to your clergyman before deciding whether to marry him. Don't assume that he can change his beliefs any more than you can change yours, and if it is to be a stumbling block to happiness, better to separate now than to marry and be quarreling constantly about it.

Daughter's 'Debt'

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

IT costs money to rear children, send them to school, feed them and pay their doctor bills. People who marry expect their children to cost them money. It's part of the price of the happiness that marriage should bring and all intelligent parents pay it gladly. But did you know there are some who actually want their money back? What do you think of Joyce's father? Listen to her:

"I'm 23 years old, making a good living, and want to marry. For the past two years I have been engaged to a young man in the Navy. He will be coming home this summer and we'd like to marry then. My difficulty is that my father insists I must first pay him back the money he spent on my education.

"I live with my father and mother—the latter is easy-going and doesn't have much to say. I wanted to go through college and my folks really couldn't afford it but my father put a mortgage on the house to send me. He says I am honor bound to pay off this mortgage before I leave home. I turn over most of my pay-check to him now, but it will be nearly three years before he would feel that my debt—if it is one—is satisfied.

"I haven't dared to tell my fiance about this, Dr. Popenoe. I know if we married he wouldn't be satisfied to have me continue to work merely for my father's benefit. I just can't see any way out. Can you?"

★ ★ ★

WHEN A FATHER tries to hold his daughter in this way it is often because of a desire to keep her at home and dominate her, quite as much as for financial reasons. I remember one such case I dealt with years ago at the American Institute of Family Relations. The daughter wanted to marry; father insisted she must first repay him for her education; she got a job and did so; then could she marry? Not at all.

"Now, you'll have to repay the $800 I spent on having your teeth straightened when you were in high school," the father informed her.

Such outrageous treatment is as inexcusable morally as it is legally. If you assumed some sort of definite moral obligation to repay your father, of course you must live up to it, Joyce. Talk it over with your fiance and get him to agree that you can continue your job for a while and pay a certain amount each month to your father.

★ ★ ★

BUT IF YOU ASSUMED no "debt of honor," then I think you'd better leave home and run your own affairs. Your parents should be very anxious to see you happily married, rather than interfering. If they aren't willing to consider your welfare and happiness, you'll have to look out for yourself and you are entitled, at your age, to do so.

In any case, it's time for you to marry—if you have found the right man. That's my idea and if any father who reads this column has a different idea, I'll be mighty glad to hear from him.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A WIFE writes: "I would like to know what you think is the best way to handle payment of a large bill under the following circumstances. We are 10 couples who have been putting aside a small amount of money each week for an evening at a well-known supper club. We all have the same amount in the 'kitty,' which we figure should cover the price of dinner. However, there are some in the group who will undoubtedly have cocktails which, of course, will bring the bill up a good deal. Should the others in the group be expected to pay this additional expense? My husband is the 'banker' and would like to know the correct procedure to follow."

Your husband should pay the check for the dinner, and the check for the drinks should be paid by those who had them. This arrangement should have been understood and agreed to by all at the time the dinner was planned.

The Final Assault on Mt. Everest

Hillary Tells of Cutting Steps in Snow, Surmounting 40-Foot Rock Barrier as He and Tenzing Kept Climbing, Finally Reached Top of Highest Peak

This is the second of four articles written by the two daring conquerors of Mt. Everest—Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing. Sir Edmund gives his account of the adventure in the first three articles. Tenzing's own story follows in the fourth article.

Yesterday's article told how Hillary and Tenzing had struggled to a point far up the side of the mountain. Today's installment begins as the two daring climbers continue their efforts to reach the top of the world's highest mountain, which hitherto had baffled all efforts to climb it.

AS we were fighting our way up the ridges, we found that our first partly full bottle of oxygen were exhausted, so we disconnected them and threw them aside. We turned on our remaining full bottles — 800 liters of oxygen which should give us four and a half hours' going at three liters per minute.

Our apparatus was now much lighter, weighing only about 19 pounds, and I felt a distinct sense of freedom and well-being. As my ice ax bit into the first steep slope my highest hopes were realized. The snow was crystalline and firm.

Two or three rhythmical blows of the ice ax produced a step large enough even for our oversized high altitude boots. And, best of all, a firm thrust of the ice ax would sink in halfway up the shaft, giving a solid and comfortable belay.

We moved one at a time. I would cut a 40-foot line of steps, with Tenzing belaying me as I worked.

Then, in turn, I would sink my ax, put a few loops of the rope around it and Tenzing — protected against a breaking step — would move up to me. Several of the cornices were particularly large and in order to escape them I cut a line of steps down to where the snow met the rocks. Half scrambling on the rocks and cutting handholds in the snow, we managed to shuffle past these difficult positions.

On one of these occasions I noted that Tenzing seemed to be breathing with difficulty and stopped to examine his oxygen set. I found that his exhaust tube, some two inches in diameter, was blocked with ice.

I was able to clear it out and give him much needed relief. On checking my own set I found the same thing was occurring and from then on kept a much closer eye on this problem.

The weather for Everest was practically perfect. This did not mean that it would be an ideal day for the beach, but equipped as we were in all our eiderdown clothing and windproofs we suffered no discomfort from cold or wind.

HOWEVER, on the one occasion on which I removed my snow glasses in order to examine more closely a tricky section, I was very soon blinded by fine snow drawn by the cool wind. I hastily replaced my glasses.

After an hour's steady step-cutting ascent, we reached the foot of the most formidable-looking problem on the ridge, a 40-foot vertical rock step. We had seen this step through the binoculars from far away Thyangboche Monastery and realized that at this altitude it might well spell the difference between success and failure.

The rock itself, smooth and almost holdless, might have been an interesting Sunday afternoon problem to a group of expert rock climbers in England's Lake District, but here it was a barrier far beyond our feeble strength to overcome.

But once again a possibility of tackling it remained. On its east side was another great cornice and running up the full 40 feet of the step was a narrow crack between the cornice and the rock.

Leaving Tenzing to belay me as best he could, I moved into this crack. Then, kicking backward with my crampons, I gained a purchase on the frozen snow behind me and levered myself off the ground.

Taking advantage of every little rock hold and of all the friction of knee, shoulders and arms I could muster, I literally cramponed backwards up the crack, with the fervent prayer that the cornice would remain attached to the rock. My progress was slow, but steady, and as Tenzing paid out the rope I inched my way upwards until I could finally reach over the top of the rock and drag myself out of the crack onto a wide ledge.

★ ★ ★

FOR a few moments I lay still, regaining my breath. For the first time I really felt the fierce determination that nothing now could stop our reaching the top.

When I had recovered I took a firm stance and commenced towing in the rope as Tenzing, in his turn, wiggled his way up the crack. He collapsed exhausted at the top like a giant fish that had just been hauled from the sea after a terrible struggle.

I checked our remaining oxygen and roughly calculated our flow rates. Everything was going well.

Tenzing had been moving rather slowly, but was still climbing safely and well. His only comment when I inquired about his condition was to smile and wave along the ridge.

The ridge curved away to the right and as I cut around the back of one hump, another higher one would swing into view. Time was passing and the ridge seemed never-ending.

To save time I tried cramponing without cutting steps, but quickly realized our margin of safety on these steep slopes at this altitude was too small, so went on step cutting. I was starting to tire a little now.

Tenzing was moving very slowly. As I chipped steps around still another corner, I wondered rather dully just how long we could keep it up.

Then I realized that the ridge ahead, instead of still rising, now dropped sharply away and far below I could see the East Rongbuk Glacier! I looked upward to see a narrow snow ridge running up to a sharp point. A few more whacks of the ice ax in the firm snow and we stood on the summit!

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IT would be unfair to say that there was a defensive error in the following hand, but the fact remains that the slam contract could have been beaten.

North-South vulnerable.

♠Q ♥QJ92 ♦AKQJ7 ♣K108	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠8 ♥10874 ♦1085 ♣J9532
	♠AK1097654 ♥A5 ♦6 ♣AQ

West	North	East	South
1♠	Pass	Pass	2♠
Pass	2♥	Pass	6♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

No one can deny that South had a tremendously strong holding, but his single-handed slam bid was nevertheless an out-and-out gamble.

West led the diamond king, then the queen. South ruffed, drew one round of trumps, then entered dummy with a trunp and ruffed another diamond. This left the diamond nine blank in dummy. South then cashed every trump, keeping two hearts, the diamond nine and one club in dummy. West held on to a high diamond, and K-10 of clubs and one heart, leaving it to his partner to stop the heart suit. When, however, South then cashed the heart ace and led to the heart king, west was squeezed. He could not afford to give up the high diamond, so he blanked the club king. Thereupon, having placed West with the club king for his opening bid, declarer led directly to his own club ace, ignoring the opportunity to finesse. When the king dropped, the slam was home.

Considering his bidding, it was inconceivable that South had two diamonds. That being so, West was only furthering the enemy's interest when he continued with the second round of diamonds. Admittedly, it was difficult to foresee any bad effect from that play—but observe that a shift by West to hearts or spades would have made it impossible for South to ruff the two rounds of diamonds that robbed East of his stopper in that suit. With East allowed to keep the diamond ten, the squeeze would not have been operative.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1

YES. They should take the "Sex Knowledge Inventory," devised by Dr. Gelolo McHugh, Duke University, Durham, N. C. It is astounding how little knowledge and what an amazing assortment of wrong information people have about sex, men more so than women. Taking the test would save much unhappiness and many divorces. Only trained persons can give it.

Answer to Question 2

If so, many millions have missed their appointments in recent years. In 1900, the average man had his appointed time to die at 45, but science has increased this appointment to 68. If you have an appointed time to die, why take care of your health and why not walk in front of autos, as many do, or stop your auto on a railroad crossing?

Answer to Question 3

Slightly. Psychologists divided groups of children by their father's occupation—day laborer, semi-skilled, skilled, business; professional. Their IQs ran in the same order on the average, but the differences were extremely small. Many competent psychologists believe the tests are not accurate enough to tell the difference—if any. Anyhow, you can't predict a particular individual's brains by his father's job.

Emily Post's TELEPHONE TIPS

A woman writes: "I understand that service is faster when long distance calls are placed by number—but what happens when I don't know the out-of-town number?"

The operator will place your call even if you can give her only the name and address of the person you're calling. To do this, however, she must reach the Information operator in the distant city and that causes delay. Your local operator will repeat the number for you and it's a good idea to jot it down for future reference. Then, next time, call by number and your call will go through more quickly.

A housewife asks: "Is it proper to extend and answer invitations by telephone?"

It is perfectly permissible to extend informal invitations by telephone. However, a telephone invitation should not be given at the last minute. It is also permissible to accept or decline informal written invitations by telephone. Only formal invitations require a written answer.

A party line user writes: "Will you please repeat your rules for good party line manners?"

(1) Keep conversations reasonably brief. (2) Space calls so others have a chance to use the line. (3) Always comply with a request to hang up because of an emergency. (4) Most important—consider your party line neighbors as you would have them consider you.

Summer Activities In New York

By Frances Conant Richards

NEW YORK, July 20.

FORMER St. Louisan Juan Monasterio and his dark haired Carlota returned from Europe early last week on the Queen Elizabeth. They were in town just one night before flying home to Mexico City. They went over for the coronation, then spent the latter part of their European holiday motoring in Spain. Ten days ago they were in San Sebastian visiting members of Mrs. Monasterio's family.

David and Marjorie McElroy flew home from Paris a week ago after also spending their vacation in Spain. They shipped their car over, caught up with it in Lisbon, then toured the south of Spain. A stop in Majorca, then back to Madrid, wound up their tour. His mother, Mrs. Warren F. McElroy, is now visiting them in Westbury, L. I.

Various members of the Kimball, Hiemenz, Bates clan were at the St. Regis early this week following the Saturday wedding in New Canaan, of the former Joan Wood to W. Geoffrey Kimball Jr. In one way New York seems deserted at this time of year. Dark blue shades are drawn all the way down on most apartments up and down Park avenue and shops and restaurants are shut tight until September. On the other hand, how can one be lonely when about 10,000 Shriners and wives are milling about town, pleasure bent, sightseeing and blowing sirens and fire engine bells on wildly painted jalopies.

* * *

THE INDOMITABLE Clara Bell Walsh has stuck to New York so far. She sauntered out of her chambers in the Plaza one warm noonday last week for a luncheon date at "21." Mrs. Walsh is rarely seen not sporting a pink rose or two. At "21" the other day, as she climbed the stairs to the second floor dining room dressed in impeccable New York black, a pink rose was fastened at the deep V of her neckline and more of the roses adorned her hat.

Outdoor evening concerts at Lewisohn Stadium are as much a favorite with New Yorkers as the Municipal Opera is with St. Louisans. On warm clear evenings what could be nicer than to hear a bit of Brahms or Beethoven in the open air—even though the obbligatos are often accompanied by the drone of planes pulling up and away from LaGuardia airport. One-time St. Louisan Henri Deering was the guest artist one night last week when Pierre Moneux led the orchestra through Schumann's piano concerto. Deering, who has been giving recitals in and around New York for some years, drew an enthusiastic audience of about 4000.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH HORNBLOWER (Priscilla Blumer) drove down from Stamford last weekend for the invitation guest golf tournament at the Apawamis Club in Rye. The distance is not so great, but boundaries and crowded communities being as they are around this part of the country, the mere fact that Ralph Hornblower lives in nearby Stamford, makes him eligible to be classed as an out-of-town golfer. Priscilla, daughter of the Tom Blumers of Boston and Hobe Sound, is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Henry Scott of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Plant McCaw (Louise Goddard) will now live permanently in Rye, N. Y. They have been occupying his apartment there since returning from their honeymoon and have just recently bought a piece of property on which they will soon start building.

Barbara Bitting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bitting, gave up her working career as of Friday and caught the noon plane to Nantucket. She is up there painting portraits of two children. When the youngsters are on canvas, she will return to New York and organize her summer plans further. She has been commissioned to paint another portrait in Massachusetts in August, and en route will stop off in Newport, R. I., to visit her brother and sister-in-law, the Ken Bittings Jr. Later she will go to Bass Rocks, outside of Gloucester, Mass., to visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. Meredith Boyce (Lila Jones) of Baltimore. Barbara, who last winter won the Watson trophy for painting, in competition with hundreds of other entrants, will devote her full time to portrait work from now on.

Robert M. Larmores Give Garden Party to Mark Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT McCAHAN LARMORE, who were married 25 years ago, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday night at a buffet supper in the garden of their home, 5261 Westminster place. Mrs. Larmore was Miss May Scott, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Scott.

Pink was the predominating color in the decorations. Pink geraniums filled window boxes on the north side of the house and the garage, and pink satin covered scattered small supper tables which were centered with hurricane lamps encircled by white stock and silver leaves.

In the center of the long buffet table stood a pink statue holding in his raised hand a large ball of pink carnations and ivy, and at either end pink candles glowed in large hurricane globes. Tubs of pink carnation trees about the lawn added color.

As a souvenir of the occasion each of the 50 guests was given a miniature silver picture frame, wrapped in silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Larmore's only daughter, Miss Constance, assisted them in entertaining, and Mrs. Larmore's aunt, Mrs. William Fielding Ogburn of Chicago, was an out-of-town guest. Mrs. Ogburn recently returned with her husband from New Delhi, India, where he lectured at 18 universities. In the fall they will go to London and he will teach at Oxford. He is the author of several books.

Taught to Be a Widow

By Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP). VANDA SAUERBORN'S husband deliberately taught her, during more than 20 years of married life, to be a successful widow.

Leo J. Sauerborn died three years ago, and his wife stepped into his shoes as president of the expanding chemicals business they launched on a shoestring at the height of the depression.

Today this blonde Milwaukee bombshell—a grandmother, a golfer and president of several related chemical products corporations — believes firmly that woman's place is in the office or factory; that the more the little woman knows about the source of the family cabbage, the better equipped she will be to cope with the problems of maintaining the supply if and when tragedy hits.

"Why, I never learned to cook," explained Mrs. Sauerborn, blithely unaware she was flying in the face of American tradition. "My husband thought that was a complete waste of time. But we always did a lot of entertaining because the thing I've always been most interested in has been bringing people together, getting them to know each other."

* * *

SHE AND HER HUSBAND believed that there was an important social side to business success, but as a closely integrated team they supervised every phase of their operation. Today Mrs. Sauerborn's companies are leaders in the fields of marine, industrial and automotive chemicals—almost entirely a male preserve.

Her firms (Lubaid and Zecol) produce some 26 different products which by chemical action clean the running parts of motors, police up the insides of boilers and chimneys and combustion chambers, and protect exteriors from rust and weathering.

"Most men," she said, "seem to feel that the less their wives know about their business the better. Then, if anything happens to them, their wives are left high and dry, without a clue on how to proceed, without knowing if they should try to keep the business in the family or sell out in a hurry."

* * *

WHEN SAUERBORN died in 1950, his wife was able to weigh the situation with intimate knowledge of her own experience. She turned down offers to sell. In the past three years her judgment has been verified by a 20 per cent increase in the business, worth more than $6,000,000.

"And the business," she said, "gave me something to plunge myself into, something stimulating, to keep my mind from dwelling unhealthily on my loss."

She works a 12-hour day, spending hours in long-distance touch with sales representatives all over the country. She travels a great deal, and spends considerable time in her New York office.

"My husband," she remarked, "was a very wise man to look ahead. I think more men should face reality —however unpleasant — and prepare their wives for the time when they are left alone."

Visit to Farm Of Widow in Yugoslavia

By Eleanor Roosevelt

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia. I STOPPED during a drive Friday morning to look at a small farmhouse, a very poor one, and found a woman of 60 running what I took to be a three-acre farm all alone. Both husband and son are dead and the married daughter lives some distance away but comes to help the mother in the busy season.

Mrs. Roosevelt

At the present the woman has six grandchildren with her. I asked what they ate and she said, "Oh, I have two cows and a little garden with vegetables and make butter and cheese and bread."

Cooking is done on an open hearth in summer and bread is baked over coals with ashes and coals spread over the top, so it is a good solid loaf.

* * *

THE STATE PAYS a sum for every child but I didn't think the woman or the children were getting much variety in their diet.

There was only one room besides the kitchen in use and that had two beds, so the other children must have slept on the floor.

Dr. Durevic and I strolled down the streets about 7 p.m. I think most Sarajevo strolls at that hour and it was interesting to watch the crowds.

Then all three of us drove out to another spa for dinner and Saturday morning started off for Titograd. The trip by air was uneventful. We looked down first on considerable war damage and then got into mountains. As one sees these mountains one realizes why Montenegrins never surrendered when they took refuge in them.

We stayed only a short time and then got off by car for the old capital of Cetinje where we were to lunch. Here, besides the head of the workers' council and city officials who met us, there was a delightful old gentleman, Dr. S. Grgin. He was nine years in the United States and a man of the world. Despite his 74 years he showed us around the city after lunch and saw to it that we missed nothing.

* * *

WE VISITED museums, including one on the history of Montenegro. Then he took us on a beautiful drive. Ostensibly it was only a short distance out of our way to Kotor, but we left the main road and went winding high up into the mountains to a beautiful spring which legend says makes anyone who drinks the water three years younger. Needless to say, we drank it, and then started to town on the regular road to Kotor.

The road to Kotor is called Serpentine Drive and there are 27 or 28 hairpin turns, but the views are the most beautiful I have ever seen in my life. By 5 o'clock we reached Kotor and the plan had been to go on to Dubrovnik, but we all felt we had had about as much motoring as we could take in one day, so we had a rest and stroll before dinner. We dined on the hotel veranda and since it was Saturday night an orchestra played until almost 1 o'clock in the morning and young people danced modern dances as well as some that looked to me like folk dances.

Attendance

ATTENDANCE is one's presence at a class of instruction in some useful subject, such as flower decorations, a foreign language or contract bridge.

Attendance may be regular or irregular. If it is irregular, little will be learned and it will not be worth having paid a tuition fee. Therefore, on enrolling a person will have every intention of attending regularly. No doubt at the first meeting the intention will be followed.

But it will not be foreseen that on the occasion of the second meeting an old friend will turn up from out of town and have to be entertained. There will be no inkling that on the occasion of the third meeting a delightful invitation to dinner will be received and it would be a shame to miss it.

It is possible the next meeting will be attended if it does not conflict with a business engagement, or if a person does not come home exhausted from the day's labors and with not enough energy to do anything more. Under those circumstances it will be argued that there is not much use going, since a person is too tired to take anything in.

Bad weather may interfere with regular attendance. So may illness. So may forgetfulness of day of the meeting. So may a trip out of town or conflict with a movie that is showing for the last night.

Or it may be that the instructor is not as interesting as had been anticipated so that, after the first few meetings, the class gets to be a bore. Or, having missed a number of meetings, a person may have lost all hope of ever catching up.

That is why there are so many people who do not get very far in flower arrangements, speak no language except their native tongue, and go through life playing a disgraceful game of contract bridge.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

Hand-Knitting Yarn

Development of a Dacron hand-knitting yarn has been announced. It is being made in a four-ply sports yarn and is available in 13 different shades. The yarn is interchangeable with nylon sweater and sock yarn, size 2 knitting needles giving eight stitches to the inch, 10 rows to the inch. The yarn is shrink-proof, wrinkle resistant and resilient. Dacron also is known to dry quickly so this is another practical feature of the new yarn.

Place the pointed end of the file where the hole is to be made and rotate the file with your hands or in a hand drill. Use turpentine to lubricate the file as you cut.

My Neighbor Says:

When painting around hardware, put some petroleum jelly on the metal before you start to paint. If you should get paint on the hardware, it will come off easily even if it has been there several hours.

RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

THE JUNIPER TREE

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

EM took her time writing, Dave thought. March went out in a snowstorm and April came in with another. Bets on the day the ice would go out had been placed before he heard from his wife.

Em had been transferred to Italy; his letter, missing her in Greece, had been forwarded. She wrote:

"I'm not coming home yet. When I undertook the job I promised to stay six months. Before the time was up they asked me to extend it. Recently I was offered a permanent, salaried job. It entails responsibility and at the same time a moderately free hand. There'd be a lot of traveling, for inspection, organization, and reorganization.

"I asked for time to consider. By early fall I must decide. Before then I'll come home; either for good or for a leave before taking up the offer.

"You have no plans. I have to have a plan, Dave. And you're right, our situation can't be settled by letter. I think a great deal about it and try to see it as clearly as I can. It was Tim who held you to me. I'm putting this badly, I know. But I didn't feel that way about you. You were my husband as well as Tim's father; we had a separate relationship. I could see you apart from him. And yet when he left us, you left me—almost at once—within a matter of weeks. What kind of life would we have together now? You say your experiment has failed. If this is so, it would be a life of tolerance and habit. It's not good enough. Before we were married I remember you asked me what I'd do if you fell in love with someone else, after. I had fixed ideas, and was emphatic about them. But you didn't fall in love with someone else. If you had, I'd have known, and I'm sure you would have told me. I believe I could have dealt with it as long as I was certain you loved me; also there was Tim. I've always realized you were a little susceptible but it never really worried me. I thought you loved me. You haven't been in love with me for a long time but, I suspect, that happens to most couples, still they go on loving each other. I did you. There was never anyone else, not even for a foolish moment. But if you'd loved me, I would have been able to help you. Before I went away I asked Pete where I'd failed you. He said I hadn't. I asked him what I lacked, and, after a while, he said, weaknesses and humor. I didn't see what that—if it was true—had to do with you and me. I don't now. I've never thought of myself as an especially strong person nor lacking in humor. We used to have so many little jokes, privately, between us and Tim—"

* * *

HE stopped reading. He couldn't see the words. After a while he read the rest:

"It seems to me," the letter went on, "that we had a better than average marriage but a great deal went out of it when Tim—died—for you, I mean.

"I can accomplish a lot here and am lucky to be here in spring, not that there's much time to think of seasons. Dave, you know how I feel about divorce. I haven't changed. Yet, if there were a reason—if you met someone with whom you could start again, and be happy, I suppose I'd consent, if you asked.

"It could be legalized as the next step, if you like. I can't take up where we left off. If we are to be together again, it must be on a new basis, as I suppose it couldn't be on the old. Don't try to answer this. I'll let you know when I plan to return and I'll leave my decision until we've talked. I want to believe we can work it out; I pray for that, every day. But I don't know, I honestly don't know."

He put the letter away; from time to time he would reread it, and think about it, sentence by sentence. This much was clear: she wouldn't divorce him unless there was what she called a reason; but would, if he wished, agree to a legal separation. In a limited sense she offered him his freedom now. But what he would do with it, if he accepted, he did not know.

For the present he went on living his two lives, not always integrated: that of the body and that of the mind. And sometimes he tried to recapture a blurred, dissolving memory, less substantial than the residue of a dream. In the storm when he was close to the limit of endurance, had he heard Tim's voice? Occasionally, between sleeping and waking, he could almost grasp and, so, relive this. Not quite. It had probably been a fantasy of exhaustion. If he could persuade himself that, in his extremity, Tim had made himself heard and known, his entire world must again be altered. He would then stand where his mother stood, where Roger Newton and Em stood—rooted in certainty, with nothing to fear.

But he could not be persuaded; this was scarcely memory, being so nebulous; and perhaps it hadn't even seemed to happen during the storm, but had been part later of a pattern of fever, pain and semi-consciousness.

You couldn't build on it; this was the sort of thing that sent tragic people to mediums, sitting around tables in the dark, listening to bells ringing and thinking they heard voices. . . .

He took pads and pencils and went out to sketch the hesitant spring, and soon tired of it; went fishing, alone and with the boys, drove to town to have dinner with the Dawsons and to speak privately to Hank.

"How about Peters?"

Dave said: "I'd like to own the place. I suppose there are others, if Peters refuses. But I'm used to this one; it would be fine to come back to, vacations and hunting seasons. And I don't want to lose touch up here." Dave hesitated. He hadn't seen Sheila tonight. She'd taken an aversion to strangers and Hank had apologized: "It's too hard on Louise, getting her calmed down."

"Hank?"

"Yeah?"

"I've a good many contacts through the business. If you and Louise ever decide to make a drastic change about Sheila, I hope you'll feel free to call on me. I'm sure an arrangement could be made which would mean the best possible care for her at the least possible burden to you."

Hank cleared his throat. "Thanks," he said. "I'll remember. Sounds like you were planning to shove off."

"Not for a while. Emily—my wife—writes that she won't be back from her work in Europe until late summer and, far as I know, I'm not being missed at the office."

LATER he sounded Cas out. "If Joe decides to go on to college, perhaps when the matter of his subjects comes up he'd talk to me? I'd like to have him for a visit, some vacation, so he could look at our set-up. If he took to it, his courses could be steered in that direction, and then, if he was of the same mind on graduation, there'd be a job and, I believe, considerable future. My brother has no sons; I suppose he'll have sons-in-law some day, but at this distance we don't know what they'd want to do. Besides, there'd be room. The business has never stood still."

Cas was silent for a moment. Then he said: "It'd be up to Joe. He wants to go to college, all right, now. Your doin' mostly. He thinks a lot of you. I appreciate the offer, but you aint' in no way obliged."

"I'm obliged, all right," Dave said, "but I don't make the offer because of that. I like Joe. I like both your kids. If Joe came to us of his free will, and fitted in, why not? He'd work hard. It isn't a case of making a job or showing favoritism. My father didn't. George and I were under a lash; he was harder on us than on the rest of the employes. I might have been just as tough with Tim. Don't get any foolish notions about this, Cas. Joe's good material. And, as you say, it's up to him. I wouldn't want him influenced, least of all by me."

"Better not say anything to him yet, Dave. Like Mrs. Rogers says, he thinks you're gold. I'll talk it over with her; we always do, her'n me. She has a good head on her shoulders. I've been worried some, that's a fact. The farm ain't big or productive enough to make a livin' for two families after we're gone. Two families shouldn't be together anyway, not even if there's two houses. But I've known for quite a time that Joe ain't interested in farmin.' He does his chores, like any farm kid, maybe better'n most but grumblin'. Herb likes the farm; maybe he don't work as good but he's younger, and I don't expect it. But the interest's there. Like I say, it worried me. I'll think about what you said, Dave."

With May the punkies arrived, an invasion of irritants, and Dave bought insect repellant. No Eden without its serpent. All around, Dave heard the clear ringing of axes, the rasping of saws. There was another sound, the peepers calling from every pond and swamp.

FROM time to time writers make statements about the universe which go beyond what is really known. I observed a case of this kind last month when I read these words in a magazine article:

"For every 1000 parts of hydrogen in the universe as a whole, there exist 100 parts of helium and only 10 or 20 parts of all other elements combined."

To the writer of that paragraph, and to the public in general, I should like to say:

"Not even the greatest scientist knows, or believes that he knows, what the universe as a whole contains. Slowly, painfully, knowledge has been built up, but the limits of the universe are beyond the sight of the best telescopes."

* * *

OUR OWN GALAXY has billions of stars in the Milky Way and elsewhere, but our knowledge of this galaxy falls short of any such definite list of parts. We know about surface elements of the sun, the planets and many stars, but we have failed to reach into the inside of any plant or of any fairly solid star, except by theory.

Our ability to tell about the elements at the surface of a star is one of the wonders of modern times. Isaac Newton and others learned that a prism of glass would divide white light into colors. This fact was used in designing the spectroscope, and from that grew the spectrograph and the spectrohelliograph. Tomorrow I plan to tell some facts which these instruments have revealed about the surface of the sun.

* * *

EVERY WRITER on science should set theory apart from fact. A theory may seem excellent, but it differs from a known fact. Let those who speak about the inside contents of stars be careful to point out that their statements are based on theory, except in certain cases.

Super-giants among stars have gases so thin that we can see far into them, and can tell their contents fairly clearly. These super-giants, however, make up only a tiny percentage of the stars in general.
